Farm Hand Admits Killing Mattson Boy

Thomas Takes Big Lead In Oklahoma's Primary

Incumbent Gets 62,096 Votes, Smith 47,210, Marland 28,245.

Senator Carries Roosevelt Favor

Phillips Is Heading Race for Governor, With Murray Second.

By the Associated Press.

Oklahoma City, July 12.—Senator Elmer Thomas, called "my old friend" by President Roosevelt, maintained a steady lead tonight in his race for renomination on the basis of scattered primary returns. —He pulled away from Gomer Smith, who voted against the President's reorganization bill, and E. W. Marland, New Deal Governor.

In 1,213 of the State's 3,522 precincts Thomas had 62,096, Smith 47,210, and Marland, 28,245.

Phillips Ahead for Governor.

Leon C. Phillips, cigar-chewing Okemah legislator and New Deal supporter, ran ahead of four major rivals in the race for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

In the second place was former Gov. W. H. "Alfalfa Bill' Murray, referred to inferentially by Mr. Roosevelt as "nationally known as a Republican."

Murray replied with an attack on what he termed "carpetbaggism" and a declaration that if the governorship was appointive, he didn't want it.

W. S. Key, former State WPA administrator, who based his campaign on thorough co-operation with the Roosevelt Administration, was running third in the Governor's race.

Will Rogers Ahead.

Returns from 1,255 precincts gave Phillips, 48,000; Murray, 45,179; Key, 42,932; former Gov. Jack Walton, 9,003, and Ira Finley, president of the Veterans of Industry of America, 9,427.

McNutt Boom Wins Van Nuys Renomination

Indiana Convention Picks Foe of Court Bill by Acclamation.

Political Developments.

From Maryland and Pennsylvania came demands that the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee look into alleged unethical political activities in the election campaigns.

Van Nuys Is Victorious.

By Geoffrey Parsons, Jr.
Special Dispatch to The Post.

Indianapolis, July 12.—Senator Frederick Van Nuys, who only a short time ago held No. 1 ranking in the New Deal's "to-be-purged" list because of his opposition to the Roosevelt court enlargement bill, was renominated by acclamation by the delegates to the Indiana Democratic State convention today.

The Presidential ambitions of Paul V. McNutt, High Commissioner to the Phillipines, and former Governor of Indiana, were almost solely responsible for restoring Senator Van Nuys to the good graces of his party, and those same presidential ambitions completely dominated the convention here today.

A 12-minute demonstration reminiscent of a national convention, with marching delegates, siren and a 21-gun salute from a toy cannon, greeted the reading of a plank in the Democratic platform which "proudly" presented "to the National Democratic Party as a candidate for President of the United States in 1940, the former Governor of Indiana and present United States High Commissioner to the Philippine Islands—Paul V. McNutt."

There in Spirit.

The Pacific Ocean and two-thirds of the American continent separated McNutt from the convention scene in the bunting-bedecked coliseum at the State fair grounds here today, but he was its dominant personality just as much as if he had been there in person, instead of merely pictorially in a tremendously enlarged tinted photograph which flanked similar portraits of President Roosevelt and Gov. M. Clifford Townsend, high above the speakers' platform.

Frank McHale, Democratic national committeeman for Indiana and McNutt's chief lieutenant, kept a tight rein on the convention, holding in line not only the strong McNutt machine, but also the followers of Gov. Townsend and Senator

American Way 'Good Enough' For Roosevelt

'We Won't Copy Others,' He Says in Pueblo; Is Silent on Primary.

By the Associated Press.

Aboard President Roosevelt's Train En Route to San Francisco, July 12.—President Roosevelt drew enthusiastic cheers from a Pueblo, Colo., crowd today with a statement that "we don't want and are not going to copy other forms of government. Ours is good enough for us."

Mr. Roosevelt, speaking under a glaring sun, made the assertion after saying he thought that if States could work out their problems on the "common meeting ground" of the Federal Government it would mean "we can make democracy work."

The President had nothing to say about Colorado's Democratic Senatorial primary, in which the incumbent, Alva B. Adams, is opposed by Judge Benjamin C. Hilliard of the Colorado Supreme Court.

Adams stood on one side of the President during the speech from the rear platform of Mr. Roosevelt's special train. Senator Johnson (Democrat), of Colorado, stood on the other. Hilliard was in Kansas at the bedside of a brother.

Mr. Roosevelt's silence on politics, even though he was speaking in Senator Adams' home town, left Colorado as one of but few States through which he had passed without intimating preference in Democratic primaries.

Senator Adams told reporters the President's speech was all right in every way. Senator Johnson, an Adams supporter, said the talk was "completely satisfactory" to Adams backers.

91 Degrees Fells One; Today to Be Fair and Warmer

As the temperature receded from its peak of 96 on Monday to 91 yesterday the weatherman took a deep breath, crossed his fingers and said, "Rain, maybe, later this week."

Today, however, will be fair and moderately warm.

Only one heat prostration was reported yesterday. Raymond Bell, colored, 25, collapsed at work on a project at Alabama and Pennsylvania avenues southeast.

Yesterday's high occurred at 3:30 p. m., with a low of 72 at 6 a. m.

Earle Fights Graft Quiz With Attack On State's Courts

Harrisburg, Pa., July 12 (AP).—Gov. George H. Earle, fighting to prevent a grand jury investigation of primary campaign charges, ordered by a judge named by the State Supreme Court, denounced six of the seven judges of the high court tonight as "Republican and partisan to the last degree."

The Governor first made a blanket denunciation of the court, but later said he did not mean in include Justice H. Edgar Barnes, his own appointee.

The Democratic Chief Executive termed Judge Paul N Schaeffer, called from a neighboring county to take over the case "one of the most pronounced reactionaries . . . in Pennsylvania."

Earle insisted he was motivated by a desire to bring the charges against himself and a dozes other prominent Democrats into the open.

"This is a case of trying to influence public sentiment before the election," Earle said.

Roosevelt Agrees to Serve As Chaco Dispute Arbitrator

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt has agreed to act as an arbitrator of the Chaco dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay and delegated Spruille Braden, Minister-designate to Colombia, to represent him.

The State Department announced yesterday receipt of a telegram from Argentine Foreign Minister Jose Maria Cantilo, asking if President Roosevelt would be one of the arbitrators under article 2 of the draft treaty of peace, friendship and boundaries, recently approved by Bolivia and Paraguay.

Secretary of State Hull telegraphed Maria Cantilo:

"President Roosevelt has requested me to inform your excellency that he is pleased to accept the honor of appointment as one of the arbitrators, but in view of his manifold other duties, he was de-

Confesses Kidnaping After State's Police Grill Him 36 Hours

Tells Sheriff He Beat, Strangled Child; Names Another.

By the Associated Press.

Tacoma, Wash., July 12.—William Cole, chief of the Washington State Patrol, announced tonight a man giving the name of Frank Olson, 32, arrested at Ritzville, Wash., yesterday, had confessed the kidnap-slaying of Charles Mattson, 10, in Tacoma December 27, 1936.

The officer said the man was being held in the Winthrop Hotel here while details of his story were being checked.

Cole said Olson's story involved several other persons, but added it did not check in several details with known facts in the kidnaping case.

"For that reason," Cole said, "Olson is being questioned further and is being held without charge."

The patrol chief said several persons mentioned by Cole had produced alibis covering the period of the kidnaping. One man who was detained for investigation was released after some questioning.

Cole said Olson would be held "for several hours, perhaps all night," during investigation.

Mrs. Mattson, reached on the telephone at 7:25 p. m., said her family had had no notification of an arrest.

SEC to Study Bond Backing Of Insurance

Douglas Announces Inquiry After Conference With Monopoly Board.

Investigation of large private placements of security issues with insurance companies yesterday was ordered by the Securities and Exchange Commission, after a conference of departmental members of the 12-man joint monopoly investigating committee.

Chairman William O. Douglas of the SEC said placement of entire blocks of corporate securities with insurance company takers will serve as the commission's "entering wedge" for a more general investigation of insurance companies, investment banking and large corporate concentrations.

Douglas said these "private placements" of whole issues with insurance concerns have reached a high volume in recent months, and "result in giving insurance companies a preferred status over other investors."

Life insurance companies are said to have been particularly heavy buyers of such unregistered issues, some investment banking estimates placing the total of such placements at about $1,500,000,000.

The SEC decided to proceed immediately with the study after executive members of the joint investigating group, meeting at the Federal Trade Commission, ironed out overlappings cropping up in the inquiry between the six executive agencies.

Just before the meeting, Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, chairman of the group, assigned each of the six members of Congress on the committee to one

Powers to Urge Reich to Let Jews Keep Possessions

Evian, France, July 12 (U.P.).—The "Big Three" powers of the International Refugee Conference—United States, Britain and France—today agreed to demand of Germany that the Reich contribute to solving the refugee problem by permitting Jews leaving Germany to take their possessions with them.

The demand was incorporated in a draft resolution to be acted upon by the conference Friday. Its adoption was considered certain.

Agreement was reached on this important point after a two-hour conference between Myron C. Taylor, chief United States delegate and president of the conference; the Earl of Winterton, chief British delegate, and Senator Henry Berenger, head of the French delegation.

The resolution also provides for creation of a new permanent intergovernmental committee to handle the refugee problem, to meet first in London August 3.

PWA Prepares To Make Power Grants to Cities

Announcement of Loans to Compete With Private Utilities Due Soon.

By Robert C. Albright.

The Public Works Administration today or tomorrow is expected to announce approximately a score of "conditional allotments" for municipal power projects in direct competition with privately-owned electric facilities.

First of a series of "competitive" PWA allocations, under the Administration's new power policy, the private company in each case will be given an opportunity to sell out its plant to the municipality before PWA money is actually advanced.

Meanwhile, Public Works Administrator Ickes will proceed to announce allotments on a "conditional" basis. Actual payments will be made only after municipalities satisfy the PWA "that they have been unable, after reasonable efforts made in good faith, to acquire upon reasonable terms and conditions the facilities of the existing private utility."

Ickes Sole Judge.

Ickes in each case will be the sole judge of the "reasonableness" of the municipal purchase offer. He will consider not only whether the price offered the private company was a fair one, but the length of times the purchase negotiations were under way, it was learned at the PWA.

Decision to announce the competitive phase of the PWA power program immediately was prompted by the short time remaining before the application list closes.

Wealthy Farmer Found Murdered At Port Republic

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Prince Frederick, Md., July 12.—William Warren Ganntt, 55, well-to-do farmer, was found murdered tonight in the yard of his farm house near Port Republic in Calvert County.

He was lying in a pool of blood with five bullet wounds in his body and one in his head. His pockets were turned inside out.

Police of Calvert County and State police at Waldorf immediately broadcast a lookout for two white women and a white man with whom Ganntt was seen in Port Republic yesterday.

The murderers were belived to have fled in the victim's car.

Ganntt was believed to have carried $1,000 on his person when he returned to his home after what States Attorney Arthur Dowell described as a "spending spree" in Port Republic.

Four Billion Deficit Seen By President

Total Public Debt Will Skyrocket to Peak of $40,650,000,000.

Sum Is $3,035,000,000 Over His Estimate Given Last Year.

By Sidney Olson.

President Roosevelt last night estimated the deficit for the 1938-39 fiscal year at $3,984,887,600, an increase of $3,035,000,000 over his estimate of last January, before the extent and depth of the present depression had been fully gauged. It is an increase of $2,525, 639,500 over the actual net deficit of the last fiscal year.

The public debt, now at the all-time peak of $37,208,532,856, will skyrocket further to the total of $40,650,000,000, the President estimated.

It will be the ninth successive year the budget has been "in the red."

$2,805,000,000 to Raise.

In his annual midsummer revision of his January budget figures, the President made no reference of any kind to prospects of a balanced budget in the future.

By decreasing the working balance in the Treasury's general fund, now at $1,570,000,000, by about $500,000,000, and by making available $680,000,000, chiefly from social security fund accounts, for investment in special issues of Government obligations, the Treasury will not have to borrow the entire needed $3,485,000,000 in the market.

The total of new money to be raised, therefore, will be $2,805,000,000.

The President stated as the reason for the ballooning deficit the increased authorized expenditures of $2,116,000,000 and a reduction in the estimated revenues of $919,000,000.

The increase in expenditures, he noted, was primarily due to increases in the general public works program and the relief budget, totaling $1,912,000,000. Other increases include $129,000,000 for the Agricultural Adjustment program, $45,000,000 for the Civilian Conservation Corps; $45,000,000 for the expansion of national defense, $10,000,000 for refunds of taxes, $25,000,000 for supplemental items, and $50,000,000 under the Reconstruction Finance Corporation because of the elimination of the credit item for that account under the new Treasury policy whereby the RFC will be more exactly self-maintaining.

Half-Billion More Relief.

There is one reduction in expenditures of $100,000,000 below the January estimate under "Transfers to Trust Accounts."

The President revealed that he expects to spend an additional $500,000,000 for relief during the last four months of the fiscal year, which would make the total fiscal year expenditures for recovery and relief, $2,649,350,000.

The President estimated in the revised summary that total receipts for the fiscal year 1939 would Columbus, Ga., July 12 (AP).—Maj. John R. Brooke, jr., was indicted by a Federal grand jury today on a charge of first-degree murder in the mysterious death of his wife, Elizabeth.

New Japanese Bombing Raids Fulfill Threats to Foreigners

By the United Press.

Shanghai (Wednesday), July 13. Japanese troops today smashed into the suburbs of Kiukiang, one of the key cities in the southeastern defenses of China's provisional capital in Hankow, after their airplanes had killed or wounded hundreds of Chinese in sensational raids on Hankow, Canton, Ichang and other cities.

The Japanese were confident the whole Wuhan (Wuchang, Hankow and Hanyang) area—traditional military heart of China—would be occupied before August 1.

Japanese war planes early today bombed Canton again.

Twenty-four attacking planes raided the city for a half hour, dropping 20 bombs in the vicinity of government buildings in Canton proper and also on Honan Island.

World-Circling Plane Speeding Across Siberia

Expect to Reach Yakutsk 11 Hours After Take-Off From Omsk.

Fliers Day Ahead Of 1933 Record

4th Leg of 14,700-Mile Dash Is Under Way; 6,000 Miles Left.

By the Associated Press.

Omsk, Siberia (Wednesday), July 13.—Howard Hughes and his four 'round the world flight companions roared into the Siberian dawn today at 4:37 a. m. (5.37 p. m., E. S. T. Tuesday) on the fourth leg and second half of their globe-girdling flight.

The American fliers headed their silver monoplane east across the vast Soviet steppes toward Yakutsk, 2,177 miles away.

[The Hughes plane reported by radio relayed to New York flight headquarters tonight that it expected to land at Yakutsk at 5:20 a. m. (Eastern standard time), 11 hours, 43 minutes after the takeoff at Omsk on the fourth leg of the journey.

400 Miles in 2 Hours.

[Hughes was 800 miles from Omsk, en route to Yakutsk approximately four hours after he took off fro. Omsk, Lubert I. Lodwick, his personal representative, said tonight, the United Press reported. —Editor's note.]

Hughes' flight headquarters was advised his plane passed over Novosibirsk, Siberia, at 7:42 p. m. (Eastern standard time), 400 miles beyond Omsk, 2 hours, 5 minutes after the takeoff.

They were still almost a day ahead of the 1933 flight schedule of the late Wiley Post, who circled the world in 7 days, 18 hours and 49 minutes.

20 Hours Ahead of Post.

First major city on the millionaire pilot's itinerary was Novosivirsk, which he flew over without halting, and then Krasnoyarsk, Kansk and Yakutsk.

Early summer dawn was just breaking over mid-Asia when the flying laboratory got away.

Hughes spent about four and a half hours in Omsk.

He had landed his huge monoplane here in the heart of Asia last night more than 20 hours ahead of the comparative time of Post.

Mechanics immediately started refueling the plane for the flight to Yakutsk.

42:40 From New York.

It was still daylight in this ancient, northern city, center of caravan routes and important station on the Trans-Siberian Railway, when the millionaire sportsman pilot set his plane down at 9 p. m. Moscow time (1 p. m. E. S. T.).

Omsk, 6,696 miles from New York, is approximately the half-way point of the scheduled 14,709-mile course.

The plane's wheels touched the Omsk field only 42 hours and 40 minutes after the take-off from New York in a flight to better the 1933 globe-girdling record of Post, who

Prince Gustaf In City--Sh!--It's Unofficial

Heir to Swedish Throne Here With Wife; Not as Royalty.

The rumored arrival of an all-but-mythical prince kept Washington reporters on the go yesterday.

The Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden, with the Crown Princess Louise, allegedly pulled in at Union Station yesterday, according to several colored porters who claim to have witnessed the event.

Later a hitch-hiker reported seeing a hypothetical royal cou-

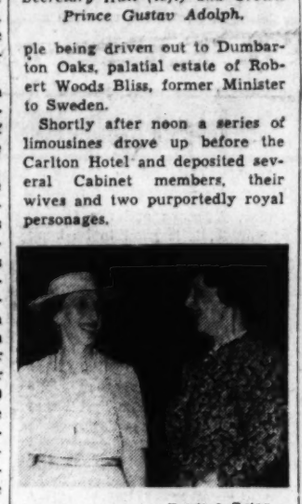
Shortly after noon a series of limousines drove up before the Carlton Hotel and deposited several Cabinet members, their wives and two purportedly royal personages.



Harris & Ewing.

The story is that the crown prince and princess, traveling so incognito as to be practically invisible, will return to Union Station today and entrain for Chicago, next stop on their mythical tour of the United States.

The atmosphere of unreality which accompanies the royal Swedes is heightened by the fact that no one in authority will come right out and say they're here. The Swedish Legation denied up to the moment of their alleged arrival that the crown prince and princess were arriving at all.

The State Department explained gently that Prince Gustaf Adolf, if he is here at all is here in an unofficial capacity and thus is out of its jurisdiction.

A few facts filtered through the haze of unofficialism. The Crown Prince is in this country as head of the delegation sent to celebrate the 300th anniversary of the first Swedish settlement here. The Crown Prince has not yet recovered fully from the kidney ailment which prevented him from filling many of his scheduled engagements. The Crown Prince will grant no interviews while in Washington.

Al Smith Assails Federal Failure To Assist Rails

Deplores Administration 'Refusal' to Answer 'Cry for Relief.'

Albany, N. Y., July 12 (AP).—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith criticized President Roosevelt and Congress today for failure to help the railroads "get out of the red."

He made the criticism at New York's Constitutional Convention in a speech opposing an amendment to a proposal which would require the State to pay the cost of grade crossing eliminations. The amendment would require railroads to pay part of improvements incidental to crossing eliminations.

Deploring what he termed the Federal Government's refusal to act on the railroad's "cry for relief," Smith said:

"I can't understand how Congressmen seeking re-election, after throwing around billions of dollars like sawdust on an old-time barroom floor, can talk against a bond issue which would aid the railroads. The real reason they give for the expenditure of money today is to get rid of unemployment. This proposed amendment would put thousands of men back to work."

South Asks Rate Parity.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 12 (AP).—Two witnesses at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing today urged "rail parity" for Southern shippers as an instrument for national good.

Joseph G. Kerr, of Atlanta, Ga., chairman of the Southern Carriers Association, said parity would be "in the interest of the great mass of consumers in Northern territory and therefore in the general public interest."

Benjamin Russell, of Alexander, Ala., president of the State's Chamber of Commerce, insisted it would "expand the Southern market for Northern and Eastern products."

Both testified as the ICC began the second session of a hearing on Southern demands for readjustment of rail rates.

At present, freight rates within the Southern area are generally higher than those in the Northern or "official" freight rate district.

Working for Washington

David Cushman Coyles Apply Social Philosophy to District

Washington, Says New Deal Author, Is Highly Pertinent to His 'Waste by Saving' Theory; Wife Active in Showing It to Local Women.

By Christine Sadler

When David Cushman Coyle needs another array of facts to illustrate the workings of a social philosophy about which he is writing, he calls on Mrs. Coyle to supply it. Since research and facts are her specialties, the two make a powerful combination.

"She keeps my feet on the ground," declares the author of such best sellers as "The Irrepressible Conflict" and "Brass Tacks," who is usually mentioned among the President's "brain trusters," although his first book was published before the Roosevelt nomination and he has often criticised various phases of New Deal action.

Coyle's writings cover many Governmental and economic subjects and are for Nation-wide consumption; but in the District of Columbia Government he finds much material—especially when he is wishing to illustrate his philosophy that a nation must spend to save and build up its resources.

"Waste by Saving."

"The District of Columbia," he declares, "is one of the most conspicuous examples of how we can waste by saving." Health, crime, relief and "inhabited alley" statistics are given in proof.

Mrs. Coyle is an expert on social conditions in Washington. She came to the city after a varied experience in personnel, research and vocational guidance. Since her arrival she has been unremitting in her study of social problems. As secretary of the Washington Self-Help Exchange she has been connected with the successful development of a movement motivated by the idea that through an exchange of labor the unemployed can supply themselves with many of the necessities of life.

Last winter she was chairman of the joint committee from the Voteless League of Women Voters and the A. A. U. W. that made the comprehensive study of what happens to persons who cannot find employment and are denied relief. Nearly 500 cases were studied and some astounding facts uncovered. The study will be considered by the group studying relief conditions in Washington this summer in an effort to determine the need for additional welfare appropriations here.

Mrs. Coyle also was a leader in the committee which conducted wives of Congressmen through Washington's alleys, to show them Washington housing conditions at first hand. Both she and her husband believe that persons are not wilfully neglectful of their welfare duties, but that conditions must be presented in a graphic manner. Washington, they think, is especially hard for many to understand—because its white marbled exterior is so obvious and its "other third" so submerged. The alley tours will be continued this fall, in order that more persons may know actual living conditions in various sections of the city.

On Friday—Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes will be next in the "Working for Washington" series.

President's Pueblo Talk

Pueblo, Colo., July 12 (AP).—A stenographic report of President Roosevelt's rear-platform remarks here today follow:

Gov. Ammons and my friends of Pueblo, it is good to be back here. I wasn't quite sure this morning whether I was going to be back here or not, because I read in a Denver paper that this was the first time in 20 years that a President had come to Pueblo. I figured out that either I was dreaming about my 1936 trip to Pueblo or else that I was not President at that time.

I have been having a very delightful trip across the country. It is a very big country, and there are a great many parts of it I couldn't possibly see on a given trip, but what impresses me are two things on this trip. The first thing is we seem to have had a pretty good agricultural year even down in the Dust Bowl, so much so that when I got to the last place in the world where I thought I could possibly find rain, Amarillo, I got soaking wet.

The other things that impressed me was the growing understanding that everybody seems to have of our national problems. The example I used back East is one that directly affects this part of the State of Colorado, the Arkansas River. The average person on the eastern seaboard thinks of the Arkansas as some kind of a little creek that starts in Arkansas and drops down with a lot of floodwater in the Mississippi.

River an Illustration.

When I tell them that the Arkansas River starts away west of Pueblo, Colo., back on the transcontinental divide, and you were nearly wiped out by a flood on that river, and, that it wanders on down through this State and Kansas and Oklahoma and Arkansas for about 1,500 miles or more before it reaches the Mississippi, then they go and get their geography books out to verify what I saw.

It is a good illustration because that river isn't the problem of one State or one community. It needs national planning, and that national planning for the Arkansas River involves a great many different angles, not only flood prevention, but irrigation, reclamation and reforestation and power development, and all of the things that go with development of an entire water site.

Problems for Nation.

It is a pretty good illustration, and I always talk about the Arkansas River in Pueblo, when I use it.

The same thing applies to every other water site in the State. You people in this State have a pretty well rounded picture of it and its importance because you are on two water sites, one running into the Gulf of Mexico and the other into the Pacific. Your Governor and I have talked about your different problems over the use of the water in the Colorado River, and some of our good friends in the lower Arizona valley and in California have different ideas about the use of that water.

That illustrates why we have to have more Federal Government running everything, but the Federal Government has a local meeting place for all kinds of national problems where States can settle the difficulties they have between each other, a common meeting ground, and we are getting over the selfish points of view and are thinking of our problems in national terms.

We have been trying, I think all of us sincerely, to make you conscious of the fact it is a national problem. If we succeed in that it means we can make democracy work, and that is our big objective.

Beauty of Rockies.

We don't want and we are not going to copy other forms of government. Ours is good enough for us.

So, today, I am going for the third or fourth time, I have forgotten which, up through the Royal Gorge, one of the finest scenic spots in the whole United States. More and more this scenery of ours in the Rocky Mountains is being recognized as a national assets by the people all over the country. They are coming here for their vacation time.

I believe that also is a good thing. If we could get everybody in the United States to travel all around the United States it would eliminate in a major part many of our political differences and we would get to know ourselves better, and all in that spirit of the traveler, the man who wants constantly to go around the country to take a look-see, to find out more about the problems of every section.

I am passing through Pueblo today, and I wish I could stay longer, but this trip is helping me to get a reorientation of what is going on in the United States. It has been fine to see you, and I hope to be able to come back and see you very soon.

ard expressed pleasure the President did not mention the senatorial contest.

Mentions Ammons.

Two Colorado party leaders, James A. Marsh, national committeeman, and Worth Allen, State chairman, rode on the President's train from Amarillo, Tex., to Denver.

Gov. Teller Ammons of Colorado introduced the President at Pueblo. Prior to the talk, former Gov. William Sweet and Charles Ginsberg, Denver attorney, spoke to the Chief Executive in his car. Both are supporting Hilliard.

The President took occasion during his speech to mention that he discussed problems of water conservation with Gov. Ammons.

Representatives Lawrence Lewis and John Martin, Colorado Democrats, were among the visitors to the President's car. During his talk, Mr. Roosevelt took the Arkansas River as an example of a stream which presented a national problem and thus called for national planning.

Government a "Meeting Ground."

Many people in the East, the President said, are surprised when they learn that the river begins west of Pueblo and runs hundreds of miles or more before reaching the Mississippi.

"The river is not just the problem of one State," or one community, Mr. Roosevelt continued. It calls for national planning. This planning should include flood control, irrigation and power development, he added.

The need, Mr. Roosevelt said, "is to have the Federal Government, not running everywhere, but being a focal point, a common meeting ground on which States can meet and solve their problems."

"I think we are getting over the selfish point of view and are taking the national view. That means that we can make democracy work." It was then that the President made his remark that the country wants to copy no other form of Government.

The President's special rolled into the mountain country today under clear, sunny skies.

At Pueblo, the crowd overflowed the station ground. A nearby bridge across the tracks was lined with spectators, and, across the tracks, some people stood on roofs.

The President took it easy for the rest of the day. Another platform appearance was scheduled later tonight at Grand Junction, Colo.

The President stopped at Hanging Bridge for a view of the Royal Gorge, which he described in Pueblo as one of the finest scenic spots in the whole United States. He sat on the rear platform of his train and viewed the bridge, 1,500 feet above.

Praises Scenery.

The beautiful scenery of the West, he said, now is coming to be recognized as a national asset.

Main interest in Mr. Roosevelt's speech had centered on whether he would follow his action in some other States by indicating his preference in the senatorial primary.

Adams has favored many Administration proposals, but voted against the Government reorganization bill on the ground that it would give Congress no check over the President's authority to revamp governmental administrative machinery. He was not committed on the court bill, but has been floor manager for the Administration's relief measures.

Hilliard, a former Representative, announced his candidacy after a call at the White House. He pledged 100 per cent support of the Administration.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in a minute and put you back on your feet. Bell-ans is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

PWA's Grants For Municipal Power Ready

Power

Under the relief act, no applications for loans can be accepted after September 30, and it was pointed out this would leave only two-and-a-half months for purchase negotiations.

Although Ickes yesterday announced approval of 24 allotments for public power projects having a total estimated cost of $13,158,848—first PWA power allotments under the 1938 act—he said none of these would compete with private plants.

On these first noncompetitive public units, the PWA will advance $5,918,834 in grants and $3,243,000 in loans, with the difference in cost being supplied by the applicants. They range in size from a $5,190,000 transmission system for Platte County, Nebr., to $4,200 in street lighting improvements in Ketchikan, Alaska.

Barkley Told Policy.

Expected announcement today of conditional allotments on strictly competitive municipal power projects will be in line with a new PWA power loan policy announced by Senate Majority Leader Barkley on the eve of relief bill passage.

A futile attempt had been made by the Senate Appropriations Committee to ban all PWA loans for public projects in competition with the private power industry. This was vigorously opposed by the Administration, which later beat down a compromise amendment providing for allotments only after the private plants had refused to sell.

Following conferences with the President, Barkley announced that although the Administration opposed such a provision in the law, it would follow in practice a similar policy. Last week Ickes announced PWA acceptance of the policy enunciated by Barkley.

No Ulterior Motives.

At the PWA yesterday it was reiterated that in the conditional allotments to be announced today or tomorrow, there is no hidden purpose to induce the utilities to sell their plants but instead to assure them of "an opportunity to sell, at a fair and reasonable price," before money is advanced for duplicating facilities.

Meantime, Ickes announced approval of a $50,000 PWA allotment for completion of a "comprehensive up-to-date power survey of the Nation" by the Federal Power Commission. The War Department favored the survey as a contribution toward plans for the mobilization of industry in event of war.

The President authorized the power survey in March, but the Power Commission needed additional funds to finish the work, make a preliminary report at the close of this month and a final report in November or December.

Relief Act Loophole.

Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson is co-operating with Basil Manly, of the power commission, in gathering power information necessary to an industrial mobilization program. In its broader phases the mobilization study involves availability of all raw materials, transportation, manufacturing and other facilities.

A loophole in the 1938 relief act may enable the PWA to make some power allocations for projects commenced after next January 1, it was disclosed yesterday.

Although Section 201 (b) of the act denies funds for work that cannot be started by that date, a proviso removes the limitation if any project is held up by litigation. Thus if a utility goes into court and enjoins PWA construction, it would automatically lift the time limitation on the project.

Bank Dividends 79% of Earnings

New York, July 12.—Out of combined earnings amounting to $39,591,072 shown for the first six months of 1938 by ten of the country's leading banks, of which eight are in New York and two in Chicago, a total of $31,260,893, or 79 per cent of combined earnings, was paid out in cash dividends, according to a compilation prepared by Monahan, Schapiro & Co., of New York.

The compilation shows that Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co. in Chicago led in earnings with $7,178,163. The Chase National Bank of the City of New York and Guarantee Trust Co. of New York ranked next in earnings, with $6,057,910 and $5,720,338, respectively.

The Gallup Poll

Roosevelt's Poppularity Off Slightly in Colorado as He Enters State.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP.
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

New York, July 12.—When the Roosevelt special train rolls into Colorado today for a short stop at Pueblo, the president will find that a comfortable majority of Colorado voters are for him at the present time. But his popularity in the Silver State is not as great now as it was in the 1936 election.

George Gallup

These facts are revealed in surveys conducted throughout the State by the American Institute of Public Opinion. The trend of Roosevelt sentiment in Colorado has been as follows:

Major Party Vote in Colorado.

	For Roosevel	Against
1932 election...	57%	43%
1936 election...	62	38
Today	58	42

The President's visit to the State today may, of course, increase sentiment in his favor. As the Institute reported Sunday, his popularity throughout the Nation generally has been on the rise since early June.

Colorado has voted Democratic in seven out of the last eleven Presidential elections. But the Democratic vote in the last two decades has been marked by peaks and valleys as sharp as those characterizing the topography of the western part of the State. And during that period Colorado has never been carried by one party more than three consecutive times.

It was Democratic in 1908, 1912 and 1916. But in the next three elections is gave huge majorities to Harding, Coolidge and Hoover, respectively. Then, in 1932, it joined the Roosevelt landslide, and went Democratic a second time in 1936. If Roosevelt's present popularity in Colorado is an indication of basic Democratic leanings, the State may repeat its recent pattern and go Democratic for a third time in 1940.

June Building Shows Increase

New York, July 12 (AP).—Building permits in June were the largest since January and only 7 per cent below the comparable 1937 total, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., stated today.

The value of permits issued in 215 cities last month totaled $87,625,427, against $77,606,469 in May and $94,752,583 a year ago. The 13 per cent June increase over the previous months compared with a normal movement showing little chance.

Aggregate value of permits issued during the first half year dropped 10 per cent behind 1937 totals. A number of cities reported substantial gains over the like period last year; Jacksonville, Fla., 123 per cent, increase headed the group chalking up advances.

Among the largest declines for the first six months were: Boston, 68 per cent; Philadelphia, 61 per cent; Chicago, 43 per cent, and Washington, D. C., 41 per cent.

Rail Crossing Project Asked At Silver Spring

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9213 Clark Ave., Silver Spring, Md. Telephone SHepherd 4200.

Montgomery County Commissioners voted yesterday to sponsor a meeting with State and Federal authorities next Monday morning in an attempt to have the Silver Spring underpass of the B. & O. Railroad widened as a Federal grade crossing elimination project.

The meeting was arranged at the behest of the Silver Spring Business Men's Association, which sent a delegation to the board meeting in Rockville. The parley is scheduled for 11 a. m. in Silver Spring and will seek an appropriation for immediate work on the project.

William F. Carlin, who headed yesterday's delegation, said he had been informed $506,000 has been allocated to Maryland for construction and improvement of grade crossing eliminations. The Silver Spring project is expected to cost approximately $100,000, and an effort will be made to secure this sum from the State allotment.

A letter was received by commissioners from the Group Health Association of Washington asking permission to operate a hospital on Davidson drive, in Chevy Chase. A hearing will be held in July 25 concerning the application.

The question of more police still remained unsettled, but indications are the board will seek to deputize a number of men in various communities to serve as nonsalaried special police officers. It was stated at yesterday's meeting a number of American Legion members had signified a willingness to serve in that capacity.

A petition of Kate M. Bradley for rezoning from residential "A" to residential "C" to permit erection of apartment houses on Avondale road just east of Wisconsin avenue in Bethesda, was approved. The same application failed of passage last week when, with only four members of the board present, the commissioners voted 2-2 on the question.

Commissioner Robert D. Hagner, in whose district the property is located, opposed the petition and severely criticized his colleagues for overriding his veto in his own locality.

Application for a Federal grant of 45 per cent of the total cost for a school building program, amounting to approximately $436,489 has been made to the Public Works Administration by the Montgomery County Board of Education, the board announced at its meeting yesterday in Rockville.

The program includes the following projects:

Takoma Park Junior High School—to build first unit consisting of 11 classrooms, auditorium-gymnasium room, planned for future enlargement.

Massachusetts avenue extended—first section of a new elementary unit to consist of about eight classrooms.

Damascus—Two additional classrooms to the elementary school and treatment of the school grounds to make them available for play use.

Gaithersburg—To build two rooms as a first part of a separate structure and to relocate sanitary rooms in the present building.

Sherwood at Sandy Spring — To build one additional classroom to the elementary school unit, complete the grading of the grounds, enlarge the disposal plant and otherwise improve sanitary conditions.

Poolesville—Build two rooms as first part of a separate structure and to recondition lavatories, improve the sanitary conditions and enlarge the disposal plant.

Colored schools—Addition of two classrooms to the Laytonsville School to care for children from nearby schools; two additional rooms at Sellman School for nearby elementary children and construction of a two-room building with land purchase for the Wheaton School.

Furniture and equipment and necessary sites—Purchase and equipment of necessary educational and fixed equipment and to purchase required sites where new schools are to be established.

J. Upton Leaman, of Germantown, recently appointed a member, sat with the board for the first time yesterday. Scholarships were awarded as the result of examinations as follows:

St. John's College, John H. Musselter, jr.; Washington College, John R. Scott, jr.; Maryland Institute of Art and Design, Miss Alice Griffith. The awards are subject to the approval of State Senator Stedman Prescott.

The site of the abandoned school at Etchison was sold to Miss Fannie Etchison for $75. The school building has been moved. The board appointed Mrs. Jane Chisolm trustee for Garrett Park School and Spencer Ward as trustee for Darnestown School.

Miss Alice Michel, 55, of Potomac drive, Brookmont, was in critical condition at Georgetown Hospital yesterday from poison. The woman has been in ill health for some time.

Fred Martin, colored, of Alta Vista, was being held by Montgomery County police at Bethesda yesterday as suspect in the series of attacks upon women which have alarmed the entire Bethesda-Chevy Chase area. Mrs. Leo Day, one of the women attacked, said he was not the man who attacked her. Other victims will be asked to view the suspect in an effort to identify him.

Merger of the Silver Spring National Bank with the Takoma Park Bank has been approved by the Treasury Department. Stockholders of the Silver Spring Bank will meet today at 3:30 p. m., to pass on the proposed merger. Takoma stockholders will meet next week. The merger has been approved by the directors of both banks.

The new financial institution will be named the Suburban National Bank of Silver Spring, and have assets of more than $5,000,000. The Takoma Park Bank would become a branch. The institution will be a member of the Federal Reserve System and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

If stockholders of both banks approve, new officers will be elected. J. H. Cissel is president of the Silver Spring National, and H. F. Taff is president of the Takoma Bank.

The Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission has beent given permission to intervene in the suit filed by Peter Fritz against the Montgomery County Commissioners, which challenges the constitutionality of the park and planning commission and zoning ordinances adopted by that body.

Fritz had been granted a temporary injunction restraining the commissioners from interferring with his business after he was arrested on charges of operating a business in residential territory. He charged the act of 1927 creating the park and planning commission was unconstitutional.

Failing to post an additional $4,000 bond ordered by the court, Fritz's temporary injunction was dissolved, but became in force again two days later when he filed an appeal to the Maryland Court of Appeals.

A clinic for healthy babies and preschool children was held yesterday at the county building in Silver Spring under the auspices of the Silver Spring public health lay committee. Dr. Katherine Chapman, of Kensington, attending physician, was assisted by members of the lay committee. The children were given physical examinations and were vaccinated and had toxoid administered. It is planned to hold the clinic every two months.

A petition of A. C. Ketcham for rezoning from residential to commercial a site at the intersection of Decatur and Lexington streets with Connecticut avenue in Kensington, was opposed by the Kensington town council at a hearing in the Silver Spring County Building. Wilson L. Townsend spoke in behalf of the town council and several surrounding property owners also opposed the proposed rezoning. Application of Marshall Lehman for rezoning to commercial of the northeast corner of the intersection of Columbia boulevard and Beltsville road at Fairland was opposed by Maj. Gen. Edgar T. Conley, U. S. A., retired, former adjutant general of the United States Army. Mr. Lehman stated he wants to erect a gasoline filling station on the property.

The second of a series of 13 bingo parties for the benefit of Our Lady of Sorrows Catholic Church, Takoma Park, Md., will be held Friday at 8:10 p. m., in the firehouse at Carroll and Denwood avenues.

J. J. McDonald, chairman, is being assisted by J. A. Corcoran, F. S. McNally, A. L. Reynolds, T. J. Fitzpatrick, Jean Pack, L. M. VonCulin, George Heale, E. V. Potter and S. H. Webb. The refreshments will be served by Mrs. A. L. Reynolds, chairman; Mrs. John McCartney, Mrs. Clarence Casey, Mrs. W. M. Schoenfelder and Mrs. J. J. Corcoran.

James W. Gill, Democratic candidate for election to the Maryland House of Delegates, was installed as new president of the Silver Spring Lions Club last night at a dinner party and dance held at Brooke John's Barn, Olney, Md.

Stedman Prescott, State senator and candidate for election as judge of the circuit court, was the principal speaker.

The officers—installed by Edward C. Holmead, retiring president—are Merritt Douglas, first vice president; Capt. William Bullis, second vice president; Dr. Kermit Smith, third vice president; Truman Dodson, secretary; Donald Masson, treasurer; Laurence Johnston, tail twister, and Griffith Ritnour, lion tamer.

Deficit Boosted By 2½ Billion, President Says

Budget

amount to $5,000,270,000, as compared with actual receipts in 1938 of $6,241,661,227.

This, he explained, resulted from an expected $621,900,000 drop in income taxes from last year, while miscellaneous internal revenue should be $370,800,000 less, and social security taxes lower by $98,200,000.

Further declines included $64,600,000 in taxes on carriers and their employes, due to the fact that 1938 collections included 1937 accruals deferred thereto by litigation; a decrease of $81,000,000 expected in customs revenues and a drop in miscellaneous receipts of $9,200,000.

$4,300,000 More on "Windfalls."

The tax on unjust enrichment, said the President, will produce $4,300,000 more revenue than in 1938. The tax referred to is the "windfall" levy slapped on processors who, while adding the cost of processing taxes to their goods, paid the tax under protest into escrow, whence it was awarded them by the courts after the Supreme Court decision invalidated the taxes.

The estimated expenditures for the fiscal year 1939, excluding the statutory debt retirement sum, aggregate $8,985,157,600, compared with actual expenditures of $7,700,909,327 for the fiscal year 1938.

The deficit for the last fiscal year, which ended June 30 last, totaled $1,457,248,100, the smallest deficit since 1931, when the Treasury began using red ink after 11 years in the black.

Deficits Listed.

Budgets for the past five years show:

1934	deficit	$3,989,496,000
1935	deficit	3,575,357,000
1936	deficit	4,763,841,000
1937	deficit	2,811,318,000

In defense of his January estimates, the President said:

"At the time the 1939 budget estimates were prepared, it was hoped that the business recession had run its course and that early in the calendar year 1938 we would witness a decided improvement."

After quoting a passage from his budget message to the effect that additional appropriations might be necessary, he said:

"Business conditions not only did not improve, but gradually grew worse. This made it necessary to request additional appropriations to provide work relief for the unemployed and to lay out a program of Federal public works which would not only aid the unemployed but would at the same time provide a needed stimulus to business."

The deficit set by the President for the present fiscal year at $3,984,887,600 is actually a net deficit, due to the statutory debt retirement fund. The gross deficit would be $4,084,887,600, the second largest since the World War.

Capt. Edward Zea, Of Old D. C. Light Infantry, Is Dead

Funeral services for Capt. Edward William Zea, 78, former captain in the old Washington Light Infantry, who died Monday at his residence, 2036 I street northwest, will be held tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. at Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth street northwest.

Dr. J. Harvey Dunham, pastor of Western Presbyterian Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery. Masonic rites will be held both at the funeral home and at the grave.

A native of Paris, Va., Capt. Zea came to Washington in 1884 and was for many years in the ladies' tailoring business, retiring about 20 years ago. He was a member of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants of the District of Columbia and prominent in Masonic circles. He was a member of the New Jerusalem Lodge, F. A. A. M.; Washington Commandery Knights Templar, and Almas Temple of the Shrine.

Following his retirement from the tailoring business Capt. Zea entered the War Department.

He is survived by two sons, Jesse and Ralph Zea; a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Perry; three sisters, Mrs. Eugenia Rollins, Miss Elizabeth Zea and Mrs. Albert Carter; three brothers, Joseph H., Stover E. and Hugh W. Zea, and two grandchildren.

SEC Exceeds Law, D. C. Court Is Told

The Securities and Exchange Commission exceeded its authority when it refused to permit the Resources Corporation International, of Chicago, to withdraw a registration it had filed with the commission, attorneys for the corporation argued yesterday in asking Justice Jennings Bailey to compel return of the statement.

The action of the commission was arbitrary and capricious and without warrant in law, George P. Hoover, former president of the local Bar Association, asserted.

The SEC claimed it rejected the statement because it lacked material facts. After a partial explanation of the commission's side of the case Justice Bailey adjourned the hearing until today.

Roosevelt's Statement and Tabulated Budget Summaries

The text of the President's statement in summation of the 1939 budget follows:

The attached summation presents revised estimates of receipts and expenditures for the fiscal year 1939 reflecting the changes which have occurred in the budget subsequent to its presentation to Congress in January.

At the time the 1939 budget estimates were prepared, it was hoped that the business recession had run its course and that early in the calendar year 1938 we would witness a decided improvement. In my budget message to the Congress, however, I said:

"Furthermore, the economic situation may not improve—and if it does not, I expect the approval of Congress and the public for additional appropriations if they become necessary to save thousands of American families from dire need."

Business conditions not only did not improve, but gradually grew worse. This made it necessary to request additional appropriations to provide work relief for the unemployed and to lay out a program of Federal public works which would not only aid the unemployed but would at the same time provide a needed stimulus to business. The business recession will likewise affect our revenues for the fiscal year 1939 and they will be materially lower and our expenditures much greater than were expected seven months ago.

Receipts and Expenditures for 1938 Compared With Present Estimates for 1939.

Receipts.

It is now estimated that total receipts for the fiscal year 1939 will amount to $5,000,270,000, as compared with actual receipts in 1938 of $6,241,661,227. Income taxes are expected to produce $621,900,000 less revenue than in 1938. Miscellaneous internal revenue will be $370,800,000 less, while Social Security taxes will be lower by $98,0000,000. Taxes on carriers and their employes, due to the fact that the 1938 collections included 1937 accruals deferred by litigation, will be $64,600,000 less. The tax on unjust enrichmen will produce $4,300,000 more revenue than in 1938. Customs revenues are expected to show a decrease of $81,000,0000, and miscellaneous receipts will be less by $9,200,000.

Expenditures.

The estimated expenditures for the fiscal year 1939, excluding debt retirement, aggregate $8,985,157,600, as compared with actual expenditures of $7,700,909,327 for the fiscal year 1938. The principal increases are $216,900,000 for the civil departments and agencies, due chiefly to public works projects relating to highways, rivers and harbors and flood control, public buildings and reclamation, and to additional loans by the Rural Electrification Administration; $75,800,000 for an elarged national defense program; $338,3000 under the agricultural adjustment program on account of cotton price adjustments, parity payments under the new farm bill, and increased sail conservation payments; $46,800,000 for the increased requirements of the Social Security program, and $49,700,000 for payment of interest on the public debt.

Expenditures for recovery and relief show a reduction of $113,500,000, but the funds provided for the Works Progress Administration are intended to cover only the period from July 1 to February 28, and there is therefore included under "supplemental items" in the present revision an estimated expenditure of an additional $500,000,000 for the last four months of the fiscal year, to make the total fiscal year expenditures for re very and relief $2,649,350,000.

Revolving fund items show an increase of $222,600,000, due to the increased expenditures under the Public Works Administration program for completion of projects under construction during 1938 and for beginning new projects in 1939. There is also included under "supplemental items" the sum of $100,000,000 to cover deficiency and supplemental estimates for the year.

Decreases Pointed Out.

There are decreases in estimated expenditures for 1939 below the actual expenditures for 1938 of $38,100,000 under the Veterans' Administration, $51,400,000 under the Civilian Conservation Corps, $23,700,000 under refunds, and $39,100,000 under "transfers to trust accounts."

The increase in the present estimated expenditures over the expenditure estimates contained in the 1939 budget is $2,116,000,000. Of this amount approximately $1,912,000,000 is due to increases in the general public works program and the program of the relief of unemployment; $129,000,000 results from increases in the agricultural adjustment program; $45,000,000 from increased expenditures for the Civilian Conservation Corps; $45,000,000 for the expansion of national defense; $10,000,000 for refunds of taxes; $25,000,000 for supplemental items, and $50,000,000 under the Reconstruction Finance Corporation on account of the elimination of the credit item of this amount, in accordance with the new policy announced in the statement accompanying the Treasury daily statement for July 1, 1938. On the other hand, there is a reduction of $100,000,000 below the former estimate under "Transfers to Trust Accounts."

Deficit and Public Debt.

The estimated net deficit (excluding debt retirement) for the fiscal year 1939 will be $3,984,887,600 which is an increase of $2,525,639,500 over the actual net deficit for the fiscal year 1938, and $3,035,000,000 more than the estimated deficit for the fiscal year 1939 contained in the budget submitted to the Congress last January. This last mentioned increase is caused by the increased expenditures of $2,116,000,000 and a reduction in the revenue estimate of $919,000,000.

To finance this deficit it is now contemplated that the working balance in the general fund will be reduced by about $500,000,000 and that the gross public debt will be increased by about $3,485,000,000.

It should be pointed out, however, that this increase in the public debt does not mean that the Treasury will borrow that additional sum on the market. There will be available during the fiscal year for investment in special issues of Government obligations, the net sum of approximately $680,000,000, leaving $2,805,000 to finance on the market.

Statement of Debt.

In order to show more clearly the condition and distribution of the public debt, there is set forth below a statement of the debt on June 30, 1938, and the estimated debt on June 30, 1939 (in millions of dollars).

Boxer Indicted For Murder of Racetrack Tout

Northampton, Mass., July 12 (U.P.) John Paul Bathelt, jr., 26, of New York City, 6-foot former boxer, was indicted by the grand jury today on a first-degree murder charge in the slaying of a racetrack associate.

Specifically Bathelt, son of a Holyoke contractor, was charged with slaying Charles (The Jeep) Morris, 48, race tipster, June 21, 1937, and entombing the body in the cement floor of a rented South Hadley camp.

The murder was not discovered until last June 22, when two girls wading in Connecticut River, stumbled over a bundle containing a skull, a few bones and a belt buckle bearing the initials "C. M."

The State contends the slayer had returned to the scene of his crime, exhumed the cement-incased body and tossed it into the river.

Hughes Racing Over Siberia, Beating Record

Hughes

made it in 7 days 18 hours 49 minutes.

Compared with Post's time of 66 hours and 17 minutes from New York to Novosibirsk—slightly more than 2 hours flying time beyond Omsk—Hughes' gleaming crouiser was nearly a day ahead.

Hughes covered the 1,380-mile distance from Moscow in 7 hours 35 minutes.

He left the Soviet Russia capital at 1:15 p. m. (5:25 a. m., Eastern standard itme), after a stop of but 2 hours and 12 minutes for refueling.

His previous hops were covered in 16 hours and 35 minutes, New York to Paris, and 7 hours and 49 minutes for the 1,675-mile leg from Paris to Moscow.

4,000 Miles to Strait.

He still had nearly 4,000 miles of Siberian steppes to cross before striking out over Bering Strait for Fairbanks, Alaska, and home.

Emergency fuel supplies were stored at numerous small airports en route as a precaution.

Hughes made a beautiful getaway in his departure from Moscow. He worried some of the spectators at first by taxiing to the end of the runway and waltzing his ship around in dusty circles. It appeared for a moment as if something was wrong.

But suddenly the trim, bright plane shot ahead and took off as lightly as a feather.

Landing Gear Safe.

Fears that his landing gear was damaged in the Paris take-off proved unfounded when the ship made a perfect three-point landing in Moscow.

En route to Omsk the big plane crossed the Volga River at Kazan, more than 400 miles from Moscow, and five hours and a half after leaving for Omsk was past Sverdlovsk, this side of the Ural Mountains and almost in Asia.

Hughes next was sighted over the Irtysh River.

Rumpled and unshaven, the fliers were in high good humor as they descended at Moscow. While his four companions ate lunch of fried eggs, cold ham, salami and refreshed themselves with beer and ice water, Hughes plunged into a study of weather maps.

Greeted by Troyanovsky.

The fliers were met by representatives of the American Embassy and Alexander Troyanovsky, Soviet Ambassador to Washington, now on leave.

Troyanovsky acted as interpreter in the pleasant greetings extended by Soviet polar air heroes headed by Mikhail Gromoff who flew to San Jacinto, Calif., via the North Pole last year.

"I'll see you in America," was the remark of Georgi Baidukoff, one of the Soviet fliers who made the trip with Gromoff, leading to speculation whether a similar trip was contemplated soon.

Hughes said his party had averaged scarcely two hours of sleep since leaving New York.

Stepping to the microphone, he congratulated Moscow on its airport, "especially the fact that it is centrally located and convenient to the city."

F. T. C. Reduces Charges Against W. W. Chambers

Two charges of "false and misleading" advertising against W. W. Chambers, local undertaker, were taken under consideration by the Federal Trade Commission yesterday after a major charge had been dismissed at the Government's request.

At a hearing before Trial Examiner John J. Keenan, a charge Chambers falsely advertised himself as "one of the largest undertakers in the world" was withdrawn. Attorney James M. Hammond, representing the commission, conceded the truth of this ad and asked dismissal of the count.

He took under advisement two other charges in connection with Chambers' offer of "free" services in his interments and in advertising descriptions of caskets. Keenan will present his findings to the commission.

W. Va. Businessman Drowns in Fish Pool

Huntington, W. Va., July 12 (AP).—Coroner F. X. Schuller withheld tonight pending further inquiry a verdict in the death of C. C. Moon, 44-year-old prominent businessman whose body was found lying in a fish pond in the rear of his heme.

Schuller said: "Our investigation shows that Mr. Moon drowned in the 10 inches of water in the fish pool, but whether he fell in accidentally or whether he jumped in intentionally remains to be determined."

Japanese Smash Into Kiukiang; Bombers Raid Canton, Hankow

China

close to the American-sponsored Lingnam University.

It was announced officially that 22 bombs fell in ten places in Canton during yesterday's air raid in which 52 persons were killed and 200 injured.

16 Killed in River.

The statement said the Japanese scored direct hits on the Yutwalo Road School, where three were killed and three wounded, and on the Women's Vocational Institute near Sun Yat-Sen University, where five were killed and five wounded.

Bombs fell on boats in the Pearl River, killing 16 and wounding 20 persons.

The air raids yesterday, which followed three separate warnings to the United States and other powers that foreigners should evacuaate military regions, were the most devastating in weeks.

Many Americans were endangered in the Wuhan cities and the following American-sponsored institutions damaged in the Hankow district:

St. Hilda's School, where Hazel Gosline, of Baltimore, only American attached to the staff, escaped because she happened to be away on an errand.

The Christian and Missionary Alliance Building, near which six bombs fell, smashing windows and outbuildings and killing three Chinese boys.

Boone University, now known as the Central China College, where only minor damage was done.

Wuhan University, where several bombs hit the campus while others destroyed nearby houses.

Hospital Bombed.

The Christian Alliance Mission, which was flying a large American flag, was missed by bombs which destroyed the maternity ward of the adjacent Hupeh provincial hospital killing a number of women and children. The Rev. and Mrs. Eric Ekvall, of Wheaton, Ill., were in the Alliance Mission when the bombs hit but were not injured. The mission's Chinese janitor was killed in a street near the hospital building.

A large area around the main Wuchang Railway station was devastated. At least 50 homes were knocked down and abot 60 civilians killed.

The Wuchang East Station area was damaged and long sections of railways tracks blown into twisted masses of steel. It was estimated about 100 houses were destroyed in this district.

A total of 150 bodies had been recovered and it was believed scores more were buried in wreckage. Wounded were estimated at 450, including 237 seriously hurt.

In the raids on Canton it was announced officially, at least 70 persons were killed and about 200 injured. Twenty-two bombs hit inside the city proper.

The Wongsha station area was devastated. Four locomotives were smashed, rails were twisted and many freight cars wrecked.

Three large bridges on the Canton-Hankow Railway were blown up stopping all traffic on the railway over which munitions have been flowing in a steady stream to Hankow.

Seven Japanese planes bombed the big Yangtze River port of Ichang, upstream from Hankow, and badly damaged the important airdrome there. A plane of the China National Aviation Corporation, from Chungking to Hankow, approached the airport while the Japanese were bombing, but was not molested. The pilot cruised to the north for four hours until the Japanese departed and then attempted to land, but could not do so because of the ruined runways. He finally flew on to Hankow and landed safely.

All the raids were part of the Japanese effort to isolate Hankow and facilitate early occupation of the Wuhan area, after which they hope that China's Gen. Chiang Kai-shek will agree to an armistice.

Van Nuys Wins Renomination By Acclamation

Indiana

Sherman Minton, ardent New Dealers who were bitterly resentful that they had been forced to call off the Van Nuys purge.

Senator Minton had made an attempt as late as yesterday to upset the McNutt plan to give the nomination to Van Nuys. With other anti-Van Nuys Democrats, including Clarence E. Manion, State director of the National Emergency Council and a professor of constitutional law at Notre Dame, and Sam Jackson, one-time candidate for Senator Van Nuys' seat, Senator Minton had attempted to have inserted in the party's platform a plank which voiced not only general approval of the Roosevelt Administration but also specific approval of the court and executive reorganization bills. The theory was that if these planks could be slipped into the platform, Senator Van Nuys, stubborn stickler for principle that he is, would withdraw in high dudgeon from the convention and leave the field open for the nomination of a progressive Democrat.

Plot Is Foiled.

The plot was foiled by McNutt's lieutenant, McHale. He told Senator Minton that if he cared to be returned to the Senate he had better string along with boss McNutt. At midnight last night, a concession was made, however, to the progressive Democrats who have been grumbling about the capitulation to Senator Van Nuys.

Most observers agreed that Senator Van Nuys' re-election in November is virtually assured. The kind things said in behalf of Senator Van Nuys in Republican quarters by Alf Landon, Will Hays, Col. Frank Knox and Frank Gannett by such Republican newspapers as the Chicago Tribune, and by columnists like Mark Sullivan, have placed the Senator in a position which makes him fairly invulnerable to Republican attack.

The Senator is in an enviable political position. He owes his nomination to no one, he is certainly not indebted to President Roosevelt or Gov. Townsend. The State organization went to Van Nuys and asked him to seek the nomination; he did not go to it beggi..g for endorsement. The net result of the New Deal purge directed at Van Nuys has been to make him a nationally known political figure.

Widower With 2 Mail-Order Loves Gets Plea for One

Matawan, N. J., July 12 (AP).—The widower whose hand in marriage is sought by two determined widows considered an offer of help today from a Brooklyn man who'd sort of like to make the strange triangle a foursome.

For more than a week, the 59-year-old widower, Judson Van Arsdale, has been trying to figure a way out of the situation arising from his successful correspondence with two eligibles chosen from a matrimonial agency list.

Both here to accept the marital proposal—one from Washington D. C., the other from Paris, Ill.—The two widows are dividing Van Arsdale's housekeeping duties pending a solution.

"I would like to correspond," the Brooklynite wrote, "with the lady who may be the loser in the strange affair. I am 44 years or age and would be interested in a decent person. Trusting that you will make it possible for a meeting and to hear from you as to chances, I remain, . . ."

'Always Goodbye' Reverses 'Stella Dallas' and Makes Her Happy Mother in End; Kurtzman Given Sendoff; Those Engaged Couples; Some Amusement Jottings.

THE law of compensation is beginning to work in favor of Barbara Stanwyck. In "Stella Dallas," it will be recalled, Miss Stanwyck was a crass, but doting, mother, for whom life held only anguish, disappointment and sacrifice. In "Always Goodbye"—the title is slightly misleading—previewed yesterday afternoon by a quorum of the drama desks, she is again the fond mother, tempted to leap off the deep end of the dock in the early sequences, but considerably luckier later on, after Herbert Marshall's sage counsel has had an opportunity to sink in.

BELL.

And that, on another sultry afternoon, is about all of the plot of the play that will be divulged by this soggy scrivener.

There are, however, a few salient points relating to "Always Goodbye" that may be disclosed without impairing the pleasure of future audiences in viewing a screen play that seemed to this observer to possess many virtues and few defects.

To begin with, Twentieth Century-Fox has devoted its most opulent and artistic efforts to the visualization of a highly diverting story by Gilbert Emery and Douglas Doty, crisply and skillfully adapted to the screen by Kathryn Scola and Edith Skouras. After its opening scene, "Always Goodbye" moves into the rarified atmosphere of smart trade and great wealth and finds itself all dressed up like the legendary million dollars. (Ed. Note: There may be such a thing as a million dollars, but to one who lacks about 80 cents of having a dime, that sum still must remain legendary.)

Another quality of merit to be discovered in this picture lies in the deftness of its casting. The principal roles, without exception, are impersonated by players who know their way about the more exclusive gown shops, the smartest Parisian hotels and the more lavishly furnished drawing-rooms. Miss Stanwyck is no tawdrily dressed scullion in this one, but takes her place among the glamour girls. The swank illusion is heightened by the presence in the cast of such personable beauties as Binnie Barnes and Lynn Bari.

On the masculine side, the adroitness in casting is equally evident. Mr. Marshall, of course, can play practically any type of role convincingly and has one to his liking in the part of the derelict medical scientist who reclaims his place in society after roaming the world on cattle boats. Preserving the niceties of polite society are Ian Hunter and Cesar Romero.

This swarthy Mr. Romero here turns in the best performance I ever have seen him give, as a volatile young Frenchman with a devastating weakness for beautiul women. The comedy of the piece is largely intrusted to him and he executes it with a proficiency and charm that should cause Mischa Auer to worry a little.

Most of the comedy not allotted to Mr. Romero falls to the lot of that little fellow Johnny Russell, whose handsome juvenile likeness will be found in the center of the art exhibit appearing on this page. This column has no recollection of having met up with Master Russell socially before, but has no hesitancy in placing him among the most precocious of the small-boy actors. The studio evidently takes Master Russell with some respectful seriousness. He is programmed as "John Russell," which sounds much older than he is, although his work is so expert that the prefix of "Mister" before his name might not be piling it on too thick.

If it is beginning to be surmised that this typewriter found "Always Goodbye" a pretty elegant bit of pastiming, that suspicion is entirely correct. And that private projection room wasn't any too cool yesterday afternoon, either.

• • • •

Monday night's first engaged couple to receive free seats to the performance of W. S. Gilbert's farce, "Engaged," at the Roadside Theater, were Helena Cook and Paul Travers—or should the prospective bridegroom be named first? There isn't much time to argue the point, because Mr. Travers and Miss Cook—that evens it up, anyway—are to be joined in the holy bonds of wedlock on Staurday of this week.

Speaking of these engaged couples, they will get a whack at the radio Thursday night, when a series of interviews will be conducted over the facilities of Station WRC in which the soon-to-be-newlyweds will be the interviewees. This is a co-operative enterprise fostered by the Roadside.

• • • •

That farewell smoker to Charles Kurtzman, erstwhile manager of Loew's Capitol Theater, who moves on to greater honors—and one hopes emoluments—in Pittsburgh, tossed by the Variety Club of Washington in its quarters in the Willard Hotel Monday night, was an affair that must have warmed the cockles of the honor guest's heart, as the saying is.

The attendance was so great that the club membership overflowed into an adjoining suite more commodious than its own ample rooms. Practically all of Washington's theaterdom was there and many brought groups of guests equally anxious to wish the slightly bewildered Mr. Kurtzman godspeed in his new affiliation. Among these were Smith and Dale, the veteran comics, headlining this week's stage bill at the Capitol in a recrudescence of the old act that made the Avon Comedy Four famous.

A feature of the evening—even outranking the midnight sandwiches and free beer provided by the club—was the presentation of two pieces of heavy hand luggage to the retiring manager, along with a camera of such intricacy that it probably will take him a year to learn how to operate it. Besides that, farewell speeches and felicitous wishes were emblamed on phonograph records by all and sundry so that when, as and if Charlie gets lonesome in Pittsburgh, he can turn the things on and listen to a lot of familiar—very!—voices from "home."

One ventures to guess that Charlie Kurtzman won't forget Monday night in a hurry.

• • • •

Among those present at the Monday night rout was Howard Burkhardt, who succeeds Mr. Kurtzman at the Capitol, a gentleman of the theater this column had not before had the pleasure of meeting. Come to find out, Mr. Burkhardt is one of the "old-timers" of show business who knows a great many of the people this desk has numbered among its friends down the years. It was pleasant to learn that we are "both members of this club"—not meaning Variety. Washington is going to like Mr. Burkhardt. I should like to be able to say "and vice versa," but it is impossible to say that Mr. Burkhardt is going to like Washington, because he already does. A native of Baltimore and a trouper of the old "legitimate" days, he knows his way around the Capital better than he does around the Capitol, if you know what I mean.

• • • •

Two subjects of particular interest are included in the new issue of the Paramount News that goes on the screen today at the Warner Brothers' Earle and Metropolitan theaters. One is the take-off and first stages of the Howard Hughes record-breaking airplane dash to Paris as the first leg of his and his associates' round-the-world flight; the other, the triumph of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody on the tennis courts at Wimbledon, which is in England.

It looks almost as if Howard Hughes might be back in America before his pictures get a fair chance to sprint through the sprockets.

• • • •

Since we are on the Warner lot, you should know that as a result of a midweek change in bookings, Marion Daniels, a young dancer, will be seen on the stage at the Earle, beginning Friday, in place of Melissa Mason, previously announced. Miss Daniels, said to be a gifted danseuse, will be featured on a program that also will include Borrah Minevitch and His Harmonica Rascals; Larry Blake, with his "Character Impressions;" Massey and Brach, and the 16 "Dancing Darlings." So now you know.

An alliance between two of the biggest comedy names in pictures—Harold Lloyd and W. C. Fields—is tentatively in the making.

The two, long close personal friends, are said by authoritative sources to have discussed at length the possibility of Lloyd's turning producer to make Fields' pictures. One of the reasons for Lloyd's presence in New York at this time, according to wire advices, is to determine what arrangements can be made for releasing Field films.

Lloyd, it is further stated would not give up his own career to become exclusively a producer, but would utilize the resources of his own organization, set up wholly for the production of feature-length comedies, to make the vehicles for his friend, with himself as the comedy-minded executive overseer.

Fields is a much sought-after star, but will not accept a story until it suits his own comedy requirements. Lloyd ought to be able to do something about that.

We shall see what we shall see.

INFORMAL GREETINGS ABOARD THE NORMANDIE

when Barbara Stanwyck, Master Johnny Russell and Cesar Romero get tangled up in a scooter and the traffic rules—only one of the breezy incidents that punctuate the new Twentieth Century-Fox production of "Always Goodbye," coming to the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater on Friday. Mr. Romero is not the star of the picture, but he, Master Russell and Ian Hunter slightly crowd Herbert Marshall, co-starred with Miss Stanwyck, for first honors.

In Hollywood

With HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood, Calif., July 12.—It's too bad they didn't have the premier of "Marie Antoinette" in the Hollywood Bowl. They could have filled that and then not have had room enough for thousands who wanted to attend the opening.

HEDDA HOPPER

Some years ago, Irving Thalberg had a magnificent dream about "Marie Antoinette." Friday night that dream came true and Norma Shearer gave her greatest performance.

The whole evening was something out of a story book. The parade of the stars outside all but matched the pageant of history on the screen, with this difference—the French populace jeered; our Hollywood crowd—among them visitors from every State in the Union—cheered loud and lustily. And that, after sitting on hard benches for nine hours. I talked with some of them and they said it was the greatest show they ever hoped to see.

We in Hollywood are so used to dealing in superlatives. We've even learned to spell those big words like colossal, gigantic, stupendous, so that when you do finally have something to use them on, they've almost lost their value, but is an occasion where they happen to be true. You can't just suddenly say: "I'm going to make a picture of Marie Antoinette" and then, phff—do it. The thought has to grow, seep in, until all the elements are finally woven together like a glorious tapestry. You've got to take your hat off to an industry willing to risk millions to recreate such beauty, extravagance and entertainment. And it's high time we stopped kicking it about, and give credit to those who made a night like this possible.

Don't have to go into details of the story—certainly you know it better than I do. But many times during the evening I felt like singing "You Leave Me Breathless."

Norma's beauty was set off by the most ravishing costumes these old eyes ever gazed upon. And the gradual growth of her performance was something to shout about. Her anguish in the latter part of the picture brought forth sobs from the audience which mingled with hers on the screen.

Her love scenes with Tyrone Power were things of joy and beauty and one criticism—if you could call it that—was that, telling as they were, they seemed to stop the flow of history. After all, any love between human beings, no matter how powerful, must be lost in the march of events of one of the most spectacular periods in the world's history.

Robert Morley was magnificent, and through Charles Laughton's refusal to come to Hollywood to do the part, they've discovered a greater star, who can do anything Laughton can and a lot more.

My congratulations to Adrian for his superb costumes, which could so easily have been exaggerated, but were'nt. To Cedric Gibbons and Ed Willis for the settings, to Bill Daniels for his photography, and to Woody Van Dyke, who put flashes of genius, spontaneity and brilliancy in his direction. And to Producer Hunt Stromberg, who was tireless in carrying out Irving's dream.

If they'd listened to their critics, it never would have been made. They said: "Remember, Marie Antoinette bankrut a nation. Be careful it doesn't do the same for Metro-Goldwin-Mayer."

They only laughed and gave us a night which will be remembered always.

Later on at the Trocadero, Louis B. Mayer gave a party. Norma danced only with Jimmy Stewart, who realized he had a queen in his arms. A boy whose name, in two short years, has become known everywhere.

Tyrone Power couldn't get a job in Hollywood three years ago, yet in the last eight months he has appeared in three of our greatest pictures, "In Old Chicago," "Alexander's Rag-time Band" and "Marie Antoinette." It's all fairy story stuff.

Four Stars?

IRENE BENNETT

posing with three other stars. She is cast with Francis Lederer and Ann Sothern in "My American Wife," soon to be released.

BungalowDesigned ForDeanna Durbin Is a Combination

Universal is building Deanna Durbin a new bungalow especially designed for her requirements.

The building, ready for occupancy in about two weeks, will serve as a combination dressing room, school house and rehearsal room for her music lessons. She will occupy it during the making of "That Certain Age," her current production.

Designed by Jack Otterson, Universal's supervising art director, the bungalow is to be modern colonial in architecture. It will have three rooms—living room, dressing room with shower and a small kitchen.

It is being built on the studio lot in what is known as the "hacienda," an expanse of lawn and garden, the equivalent of about a block from the administration building.

The purpose of the new quarters is to conserve the young star's time and energy. The building will make it possible for her to concentrate all of her activities at the studio. Her singing lessons and her regular schooling, both given off the lot at present, will take place at the studio in the future.

'Ghost Train' Makes a Stop At Cross Road

Mystery Comedy Enacted by Nearby Virginia Barn Players.

Inevitable as a Presidential special in these election years is the eerie tootle of "The Ghost Train" on the summer stages.

Played this week by the Cross Roads Theater Company in its Virginia hayloft, Arnold Ridley's "Ironhorse" of the stable stages is a welcome, if uncanny, conveyance away from the summer doldrums.

The slightly unbelievable tale of the handful of folk plunked down unexpectedly at a deserted backwater railroad station in Maine speeds its way through its witching hours in as spine-curdling a manner as the ghostly villians of the piece could wish.

Mr. Lewis Gannett will tell you in his book column in this journal this morning that when you write about mysteries there's nothing to write but the plot and that it isn't fair to give any hint of that! Obviously he's quite right.

Play Has Pace.

Peggy Johnson very likely would object if you knew just how good some of her screams actually are and Charles Hohein wouldn't like you to know just how perfectly he plays the silly ass. And how surprised Don Sisler and Peggy Mansfield would be if they knew the turn their wedding day would take! Janice Norton—like Sister Mimi out at Roadside—is having her matrimonial troubles this week and Theodore Field is something of a worm whose turning Mr. Gannett would hesitate to mention.

He'd very likely tell you that George Finger, Marguerite Barton, Charles Grunell, Ed. Thrashed and Neil Linger are some of the other characters and that Mr. Gassgold's directorial manipulation had aplenty.

It's simple to get out to Cross Roads, and if you go out on the bus they will very likely drive you home. In their barnyard there is no hayseed Lord Chesterfield to tell you to put on your coat; their loft has some of Father Brown's original hay in its eaves, and "The Ghost Train," with its passengers, both on-stage and off, will give you a pleasant, friendly evening.

H. L. C.

Sylvan Theater.

With a majestic yellow moon, the deepest of blue skies, and stately swaying poplars, providing a backdrop which even a Robert Edmond Jones couldn't match, the Federal Bureau of Investigation Theater Players, more familiarly known as Mr. Hoover's "G-men," brought forth with considerable effort last evening a production unworthy of the beauty of the National Sylvan Theater, and likewise considerably below their usual standard of excellence.

In fairness to these players, it might be noted that their vehicle as chosen to play, is noticeably lacking in the "punch" necessary to make a comedy "click," and though obviously intended for farcical interpretation on the part of audiences, falls short of its mark. The lines themselves are much on the negative side of humor, and the plot is the hackneyed theme of a group of politicians on the shady side, who endeavor through foul means or fouler, to cover their peccadilloes when they are apprised of the impending visit of the inspector general. Only this time it's Russia instead of Graustark or Tammany.

To Fordyce Lyman was entrusted the leading role of the sneak-thieving, chicken-livered mayor of the belatedly conscience-stricken citizens, and though it was at times difficult to ascertain where his ad libbing left off and M. Gogol's lines began, Mr. Lyman garnered the major share of the laughs, and had more rehearsal been evident, would, no doubt have stolen the show. Dorothy Lee Jones was seen briefly in an effective bit of characterization. The remainder of the large cast included John H. Holloway, Grant Stetter, Robert Foster, Dan Jones, Sam Caldwell, Mildred Mussey, Peggy Chamberlain and Don Chase, among others.

Immediately preceding the drama's presentation, a half-hour of musical selections was furnished by the Washington Gas Light Co.'s band.

E. E. C.

Clever.

Although Peter Lorre, a Hungarian, portrays an Oriental in his starring role for "Mr. Moto in Egypt," his makeup consists of merely a pair of gold-rimmed spectacles and a darker shade of makeup paint, a testimony to his ability as a master of character roles.

Foe of Tydings Asks Inquiry by Senate Group

Pennsylvania Candidate Also Urges Investigation of Politics.

Urgent demands that the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee investigate alleged unethical political activities came yesterday from both Maryland and Pennsylvania.

Arthur E. Hungerford, New Deal candidate opposing renomination of Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland, asked "a full and immediate inquiry" into "the unbelievable charges" of Tydings that Henry A. Webb, State director of the FHA, was dismissed in an effort to undermine the Senator's candidacy.

Meanwhile, Representative David J. Lewis, another New Dealer seeking Tydings' seat, was reported to have halted an attempt to oust a Tydings-sponsored postmaster in Havre de Grace.

In Pennsylvania, Bernard Davidowitz, State chairman of the small Royal Oak Party, alleged that Republicans were planning to gain control of the party so they could appoint election watchers from both Royal Oak and Republican parties in each precinct.

Supports Gov. Earle.

Davidowitz, until July 1 an employe of the Democratic State administration, told reporters he had "documentary evidence" of "a well schemed plot to buy the election in Pennsylvania." Davidowitz, whose party polled less than 170 votes in the primaries, said his party was supporting Gov. George Earle, Democratic opponent of Senator James J Davis.

Senator Morris (Democrat), of Texas, said he asked Davidowitz to make his complaint in writing. He also stated that Hungerford's request for an investigation in Maryland would be laid before the committee.

Sheppard said the committee will receive a report tomorrow from Ralph Burton, its representative, on an investigation into charges made by Senator Nye regarding illegal and unethical practices in the campaign in which he defeated Gov. William Langer for the Republican Senatorial nomination in North Dakota.

Hungerford, former State director for the National Emergency Council, wired Sheppard that "newspaper stories tell of prospective wholesale dismissals of Federal officials who are supporters of Senator Tydings. It is urged to take such action as may be necessary." He said he had asked Senator Tydings to join him in the request to the Sheppard committee.

Tydings asserted last week that Webb was "guillotined in the interest of political expediency" by the Roosevelt Administration. FHA officials in Baltimore contended Webbs' dismissal was a "routine matter."

Lewis Supports Coy.

Generally conceded to have national Administration support in the three-cornered battle for Democratic Senatorial nomination, Representative Lewis was said to have taken a strong stand against any attempt to replace Postmaster Harry A. Coy, of Havre de Grace, by Robert R. Lawder, ex-member of the House of Delegates and long a Tydings foe. Havre de Grace is Tyding's home town.

With two months to go before primary day, supporters of Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore, who is seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, yesterday started distribution of 150,000 pamphlets recording chievements of the mayor's administratoin.

Sasscer Speaks Tonight.

Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor, another of six Democratic candidates for Governor, announced that his supporters were not conceding a single county. O'Conor will visit Dorchester County tomorrow night and plans to spend Friday and Saturday on a handshaking tour of Montgomery County.

Lansdale G. Sasscer, president of the State Senate and "favorite son" of Prince Georges County, was guest last night on a Potomac River steamer chartered for a cruise by more than 30 Democratic clubs. He will make a Baltimore radio address tonight.

State Comptroller William S. Gordy, jr., who opened a concentrated drive in Cambridge, faces speaking engagements which will take him into every section of the State in the next two weeks.

Argentine Cadets Visit at Quantico

Quantico, Va., July 12 (AP).—Four naval officers and 37 midshipmen from the Argentine training ship Presidente Sarmiento were entertained at the U. S. Marine post here today during a halt in their trip to Washington from Charleston, S. C.

The group left late this afternoon to continue the trip to the Capital.

The midshipmen, in charge of Lieut. Comdr. Avaro Gomez Villafane, were met at the station here by the post chief of staff, Col. Edward A. Ostermann, and several Spanish-speaking officers. The party was taken for a motor tour of the post and then to lunch at the officers' club, where they were welcomed by Maj. Gen. James C. Breckinridge, in command of the barracks.

After lunch the party visited the aviation field and the rifle range, and later watched a tank demonstration.

Broker Kills Self With Anesthetic

Richard M. Curtis, 50, of 1361 Taylor street northwest, committed suicide yesterday at his home.

He was found in his bed by a maid. Police said a towel saturated with an anesthetic was over Curtis' face and that the bed sheet was pulled over his head.

A business broker, Curtis is survived only by his wife.

On The Wings Of The Morning.

The newspapers, for all their proficiency in keeping abreast of current happenings, are hard pressed to maintain pace with Howard Hughes. Almost before there is time to headline his arrival in Moscow the aviator and his companions are reported at Omsk. It is entirely possible that many a placid vacationist will hear of the completion of this epic round-the-world flight on the heels of a first realization that it is under way.

In the wake of this silver bird of passage time and space seem to merge and give to the average man a clearer understanding of what the modern physicists are discussing. Jules Verne, giving imagination free play a few decades back, envisaged a circuit of the globe in 80 days. Hughes threatens to cut that estimate proportionately as much as Phineas Fogg and Passepartout cut the circuit of Magellan's successful ship, which four centuries ago took three years for the first circumnavigation.

What is implied in the speed which enables modern man to fly from New York to Paris to Moscow and then on into Siberia between newspaper editions? Few will offer a dogmatic answer, but surely the globe cannot be so contracted without important political and social consequences to all who live upon it.

Perhaps an indication of the ultimate outcome is seen in the hospitality and assistance so generously accorded these daring American aviators wherever they touch ground. All men of goodwill wish success to their endeavor. For all men of goodwill must recognize that in a world where distance is defeated the narrow animosities of parochialism are similarly doomed.

A Miracle In Indiana.

Indiana has performed one of those miracles that are possible only in politics of the old school. While lauding the New Deal in superlative terms, the Democratic convention at Indianapolis yielded the foremost place on its 1938 ticket to a conservative Democrat who is known throughout the Nation as a foe of the two most controversial bills advanced by the Administration since 1936.

The tone of the convention suggests that the desire to "purge" Senator Van Nuys is still strong. Senator Minton was particularly unhappy because the scheme to discipline this court bill "rebel" collapsed. Gov. Townsend must have an acute case of indigestion because of the many hot words against Senator Van Nuys which he has now been forced to swallow. But the McNutt machine remained impervious to all these personal considerations. The anti-court bill Senator commands neither the good will nor the confidence of the Hoosier leaders, but they had to accept him for the greater glory of Indiana Democracy in 1940.

Because of the special circumstances surrounding the Indiana convention it is difficult to draw general conclusions as to its effect on the "purge" movement. Nominees for public office are hand-picked in the Hoosier State. The rank and file of party members have no opportunity to manifest their preferences. Most of the other candidates who have felt the sting of New Deal disapproval have to face voters of their own parties in primary elections.

Few other States, moreover, have Presidential candidates with the vigor and foresight of Paul V. McNutt, at present High Commissioner of the Philippines. The fight against Senator Van Nuys might have been carried to the bitter end if Commissioner McNutt and his supporters had not feared a disastrous split in the Democratic ranks on the eve of his bid for the Presidential nomination. In large measure, therefore, Mr. Van Nuys owes his present anomalous position to the ambitions of former Gov. McNutt.

In spite of these considerations, however, it is obvious that the clever political move to defeat "yes, but" legislators in the Democratic primaries has suffered another significant set-back. Most of the "rebels" who refused to go along with the court and reorganization bills are experienced legislators with strong following in their own States. Every move to oust them is a threat to harmony in the Democratic Party. If they fight "the purge" as vigorously and courageously as did Senator Van Nuys, the casualties among them when the primaries are over may be very light.

As for Indiana, the coming campaign will be watched with particular interest because of the strange position which the head of the ticket occupies. Senator Van Nuys has made damaging charges against the political machine which has rewarded him. Will he insist upon reforms at Indianapolis with the same vigor that he fought unwise legislation at Washington? The acid test of his statesmanship is still far from being completed.

The Objective Approach.

Just as the Temporary National Economic Committee under Senator O'Mahoney's chairmanship is preparing to launch its inquiry into the causes of the concentration of economic power the Federal Trade Commission issues a preliminary report citing the dominant position of the International Harvester Co. as evidence of monopolistic conditions in the industry. Promptly the F. T. C.'s findings are denounced by the company's spokesmen as "unjust," "witch-burning" pronouncements based, moreover, upon ex parte investigations.

Regardless of the truth or falsity of the charges, the mere fact that they have been brought forward at this juncture creates an atmosphere of uneasiness and distrust emphasizing the need for a "New Deal" in the regulatory field. Amicable co-operation between governmental agencies and private industry should be the goal of endeavor. But unfortunately mutual suspicion and strong hostility have been the inevitable results of the regulatory methods followed by the Government in its endeavors to prevent illegal restraint of trade. The fault is not due entirely to the deficiencies of the regulatory agencies nor can it be ascribed solely to the misdeeds of the regulated.

The root cause of our difficulties lies in the lack of a carefully conceived, consistent program of regulation which would enable industrial managements to distinguish between legal and illegitimate activities and act accordingly. A regulatory plan having certain well-defined objectives would relieve would-be law-abiding concerns of the constant fear that Government prosecuting agencies may pounce upon them for alleged wrong-doing. Law breakers, on the other hand, would be deprived of specious excuses for failure to conform to the rules laid down for their guidance.

There never has been unanimity of agreement as to the proper method of dealing with numerous business practices which may bring social benefits but are at the same time capable of being seriously abused. In a radio address this week Senator O'Mahoney emphatically asserted that the purpose of the so-called monopoly inquiry is "neither punitive nor political." "It is," he says, "an effort to meet an acknowledged need for the establishment of a clear, stable and practical relationship between Government and business, a relationship that will stimulate free private enterprise and preserve the democratic institutions bequeathed to us by the fathers."

How far we are from attainment of that goal is revealed by our inability to give authoritative answers to various fundamental questions which Senator O'Mahoney proposes to put to committee investigators. He asks, for instance, what is the effect of trade association methods on the maintenance of prices and suppression of competition. He asks definition of the boundary line between proper co-operation between competitors to avoid destructive competition and agreements penalizing consumers. Replies to such queries must be found before we can hope to formulate plans for the firm and intelligent handling of problems created by restraint of trade.

The monopoly inquiry should be of great value if it follows the method of procedure laid down by its chairman, who certainly does not belong to the "witch-burning" fraternity. On the contrary, Senator O'Mahoney repudiates the notion that the punishment of a few malefactors would correct social evils rooted in impersonal forces or appreciably further his aim of laying down "a national rule for national commerce."

It will be comparatively easy to assemble factual material showing how our economic system works. But the labor of appraising the results is a much more difficult task calling for a high degree of objectivity. The surest way to arrive at the unbiased conclusions at which the inquiry aims is to supplement the information collected by those engaged in research with that acquired by making direct contacts with the business community. As Senator O'Mahoney evidently realizes, it is very important to establish a better understanding between business and Government. One efficacious method of achieving that end is to seek advice from co-operative businessmen who by training and experience are equipped to render constructive aid to lawmakers.

What! No Subsidies?

At Amarillo, Tex., President Roosevelt asserted that the farming and cattle-raising population of the United States "has no desire to be paid a subsidy or given a handout from the Federal Treasury." "They have come to understand," he said, "and the rest of the country is learning, too, that the agriculture program of this Administration is not a subsidy."

As proof of this astounding statement the President noted that the Government has only three objectives: To help the farmer use his land in the best way, to prevent overproduction and low prices and to increase farm ownership. He neglected, however, to mention the fact that the farmer is being paid large sums for diversion of his lands from certain specified uses and for reduction of his output. If benefit payments, price-sustaining loans that involve losses to the Government and aid in the form of abnormally low interest rates on farm loans may not be called subsidies, the word should be dropped from our vocabulary.

From present indications farm benefits during the coming year will be about double the somewhat less than $500,000,000 appropriated for so-called soil-conservation benefits during each of the past two years. Yet the price-raising goal of the Administration's agricultural program seems a good deal more remote today than it did at this time last year. At the middle of June, for instance, prices received by farmers for their products were on the average about 26 per cent lower than at the same time in 1937. Moreover, the AAA is faced with the problem of a bumper wheat crop expected to be the second largest in history, in addition to the perennial cotton problem which has become increasingly difficult due to the shrinkage of foreign outlets.

Thus the Administration's agricultural program has not only been a costly form of subsidization; it has also added new unsolved problems to those already existing.

Japanese-American Trade.

The first months of this year saw a decided falling off in the volume of American imports, a development attributable for the most part to the recession of business activity in the United States.

Thus in the period from January through April, 1938, imports from Great Britain amounted to only $34,843,000 as compared with $76,256,000 for the same months last year. A similar decline is to be noted in the case of Canada, which, for the first four months of 1937, sent us goods to the value of $135,562,000. During the comparable period in 1938 her sales to the United States totaled $77,064,000.

What was true in the case of Great Britain and Canada was also true in the case of Japan. Exports from the island empire followed the general curve. They rose sharply during the first part of 1937, slackened in the course of that year and headed into a downward spiral during the winter and spring months. In the first five months of last year American purchases of Japanese products amounted to $92,386,000. In the same period this year Japan sold us only $47,848,000 worth of goods.

In view of general trends affecting our trade with most countries, those with whom the American people have no quarrel and those whose policies have aroused the antagonism of large sections here, it would be rash to assume, therefore, that the current decline in Japanese exports to the United States is wholly or even largely attributable to the consumer boycott.

It would be equally fallacious, however, to assume that the boycott has been without appreciable effect on Japanese sales to the United States. Figures published by the Department of Commerce suggest otherwise. In certain categories of low-priced imports, such as Japanese canned tuna fish, crabmeat, toys and electric lamp bulbs, the decline went far beyond the average, indicating that the quiet and persistent refusal of individual Americans to buy Japanese goods is producing results.

If continued and intensified, the cumulative harm the boycott movement would render to Japan's export trade to the United States and thus to its capacity to acquire exchange indispensable for the purchase of war materials, may be considerable.

At Spike Island.

In a time of international turmoil, such as the present, what happened at Spike Island, off the southern coast of Ireland, is refreshing by way of contrast.

Spike Island, which the British originally occupied in 1790, is one of the three Irish naval bases which Great Britain retained even after the settlement of 1921 and the creation of the Irish Free State. However, willing the London government then was to come to terms with the Irish, it was unwilling to chance the possibility that some hostile power might use the Irish coast as a base for an attack on Great Britain.

But this year, as a result of the statesmanlike efforts of Premiers de Valera and Chamberlain to let Anglo-Irish bygones be bygones, Great Britain agreed to turn over those naval bases to Eire, provided the Dublin government agreed to keep them up as fortified zones. The British wisely concluded that Irish friendship was worth more than a precarious foothold on the Irish coast.

On Monday the transfer took place. The Union Jack was hauled down from Spike Island and the flag of Eire was raised. And when the tender with the departing British troops moved away the Irish army band played "God Save the King." The whole episode occurred in a setting of extreme amity. Living under forced unity, Anglo-Irish relations were constantly troubled. But as independent nations both now recognize the advantages of friendly relations in the preservation of their common interests.

A machine has been constructed at Harvard that applies a pressure of 750,000 pounds to the square inch. Before the Government finds out about this machine the taxpayer had better take to the tall timbers.

"New York co-eds say they will marry only handsome men with brains, character, culture, ability and a well-balanced sense of humor." That's all very well, but in these days of economic stress can a co-ed support that many husbands?

A 4-year-old boy in Colorado, who had never spoken a word before, casually remarked at the breakfast table the other morning, "This is one hell of a world." Instead of talking, that boy had been thinking.

New York's Budget.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Much is being written about the reported balancing of the New York State budget by Gov. Lehman, compared with the $100,000,000 deficit at the close of President Roosevelt's two terms as Governor of New York, to the detriment of the latter. If those critics of the President, who so delight to vent their spleen upon him, would take time to ascertain the facts and reasons for many of the things they rave about, instead of going off half-cocked, they would have a better understanding of current events.

Replying to the letter of Donald G. Clever in The Post of July 11, I would say, that if he will read the President's speech at Covington, Ky., on Saturday last he will be enlightened as to the cause of the Roosevelt deficit as Governor of New York and the present ability of Gov. Lehman, and other State Governors, to balance their State budgets. In that speech the President explains that during his terms as Governor from 1929 to 1933 he was unable to secure any assistance from the National Government for the care of the needy and unemployed and was, therefore, obliged to accumulate deficits. That was with the consent of the Legislature, which was Republican in one or possibly both branches during that time.

Since 1933 the policy of the Government has greatly changed and much assistance has been rendered the States in the care of the needy, which accounts in large measure for the national deficits. The financial resources of many of the States, cities and counties were practically exhausted and without Government aid it would have been utterly impossible for them to have coped with the situation.

Far be it from me to detract from Gov. Lehman any of the credit due him for his ability to show a balance of $6,500,000 in State finances, which, however, is disputed by New York Republicans, but there is one further item that should be taken into consideration, and that is the new revenue bills of New York State that bring in $80,000,000 a year. These were not in force when President Roosevelt was Governor.

The Mail Carrier.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I used to look upon mail carriers as I would upon the handle of an eggbeater or a wheel on a bus—something that just keeps going around. But since getting a close-up on the life of two or three of them I am now wont to fawn upon every one I see with eyes all swimming with sympathy and admiration.

The average mail carrier rises between 4 and 5 every morning, when most folks do their best sleeping. He beats it to the postoffice, often arriving in a lather because if he is two minutes late it is something like a major offense. He sorts his mail with one eye on the clock, the face of which glowers at him like that of a sullen slave driver. Then out he goes in all kinds of weather to distribute the mail. Woe to him if it's heavy and its delivery takes six minutes longer than it did one day last week.

About once a month he is trailed by a private detective with a stopwatch. It would have to be a stopwatch. The detective is politely known as an inspector. If your mail carrier occasionally scoots across your grass or straddles your snapdragons, remember, the detective is probably on his track. Just why, with 11,000,000 men out of work, it is necessary to squeeze and press out of shape every minute of his time is a little obscure, but you might find a reason.

There is much discussion about the "merit system" but in this case it is the demerit system. A mail carrier is baited along with the promise of a small annual raise which he forfeits if he gets a certain number of demerits. Early in the year he is given demerits almost to the hilt and he then sweats like a bath attendant the rest of the year, trying to stave off the remaining half dozen. You get the idea! It reminds one vaguely of the witch with 12 hungry cats tied to the floor and a mouse dangling just out of reach of each of them. But the mail carrier has one compensation. Everyone is glad to see him coming, except on the first of the month.

Palestine And Refugees.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to express my gratitude for your publications (in the issues of The Post of last Saturday and Sunday) of the maps showing the proposed division of Palestine under the auspices of the British government. First, it is to be noted that Transjordan can be omitted from consideration because the clauses of the British mandate relating to the establishment of a national home for Jews have been specifically declared to be inapplicable to the Transjordah area. (Enclycopaedia Britannica, thirteenth edition, Volume III, page 821.) The area of Palestine affected by the Balfour declaration is about 6,000 square miles, but little more than half that of the State of Maryland.

The British now propose to divide this area into three sections, one for the Jews, the second for the Moslems, and the third for the British. The Jewish area contains three-fourths of the arable land and the only sea port worthy of the name (Haifa) and the remaining inferior port (Jaffa) is in the British area. The Arabs are to have a small frontage on the Mediterranean which contains no sea port worthy of the name.

The British retain the cream of the territory. They retain Nazareth, Jerusalem, Bethlehem, and a corridor leading to Jaffa which supplies the bulk of the income of the entire country. Palestine lives on its visitors and pilgrims and upon the institutions maintained and supported by foreign religious bodies. Even the Quakers have an establishment. Jerusalem maintains the King David Hotel, which is perhaps the world's "swankiest." Such an establishment could not live on the patronage of commercial travelers.

At the time of the Balfour declaration (November, 1917) the population of present Palestine was predominantly Arab, over 80 per cent. Even today two-thirds of the population are Moslem.

Under the Balfour declaration the British government undertook not only to give away what it did not possess, but entangled itself in the necessity of dispossessing unwilling Moslems.

An analogous declaration would be for Secretary Hull to state that the United States Government proposed to establish a national home for German and Austrian refugees in Australia, which happens to present the largest available area with the smallest population per square mile.

As a citizen of the world, I have sympathy for the German and Austrian refugees, but they cannot possibly be accommodated in the Jewish state in Palestine shown on your map, and until our own immigration laws are amended we cannot receive our share. In this situation the world smiles at our hypocrisy. Assuming that we share the responsibilities in proportion to our area and population as compared with the rest of the possibly available world we should welcome at least one-fifth of the refugees. It is fantastic to suppose that we will do so.

Housing And Poverty.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of July 9 Mr. Richard Neutra attempts to define the housing problem. He is a technician whom I have long regarded as one of the ablest in the world. He has seen the art of building as a natural task, based firmly on the ever-changing needs of human beings.

When I say that he attempts to define the housing problem I do not wish to misjudge him. I gather from the article to which I refer that he accepts the task of housing many millions of Americans as one of packing them tighter—houses must be small, rooms must be small—and so on and on in the old language of the housing reformer.

I will not attempt to do more than suggest the social evils of packing people tighter and tighter. These are bad enough, as our experience in putting millions of Americans into cities has already made clear. What I would like to point out is this:

Assuming that Mr. Neutra's plans could be carried out, what would then be the result? We would have accepted as fundamental the idea that an increasing number of our people must steadily be packed tighter and tighter.

To me, this seems a suicidal step. These millions are consumers of our products. Instead of making it possible for an increasing number of people to buy more and more, all plans leading toward the tighter packing of human beings can mean only that more and more people are going to be able to buy less and less of our products. This factor has been so evident during the last ten years that no one longer disputes it. The gradual slowing down of buying dries up the flow of everything.

Those who have made any attempt to think through the present tragic state of American life must have come to the conclusion that the housing problem, like every other, cannot be defined. It is folly to try to split up the basic needs of human life into a series of isolated problems. It seems tragic indeed, to see small armies of technichians hammering away desperately at problems they cannot define. Until a problem can be defined how can it be solved?

The basic problem facing man has never changed. If he wishes to live in peace with all men, it is the problem of distributing more and more. It is today the problem of sharing the total money income ever more fairly and ever more widely, that more and more things may be shared amongst all men. Until we can see this problem and see it whole, all our efforts to pack more and more people into semi-poorhouses will lead us only more perilously astray.

Hopeless?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The political situation in our country is hopeless. The old way of turning the rascals out, in the hope that the new set of "promisers" will be an improvement on the former, has reached the limit. Shall we start a fight to settle the question of who has the power to control the situation, as has been done in Europe? Is it too late to save the republic?

I do know that no government can make "prosperity" for the people. That is a situation that the people themselves must produce, and when we see the home sites in town and the farm sites in the country held out of use for prohibitive prices, the end is not far off.

What to do? Stop taxing business and industry. Tax the "land values," so as to force into use the "site values" which are so badly needed by industry to bring about prosperity.

Socialize the public utilities, and take over the natural resources which God gave us. Pensions at 60, and a youth well matured and properly "trained" will carry the whole structure of civilization to higher levels.

The Post Impressionist

Co-ed Dormitory.

I WORK in Washington, Capital of the United States—city of boarding houses. My boarding house is one of the largest and best in Washington. There are telephones in every room and the place is run more like a small family hotel than anything else. Only to me it seems like a co-ed dormitory.

My three-bed room opens on a bathroom which in turn opens on a two-bed room. This means five fellows rushing in each morning, showering and shaving. Yet our work hours are so well staggered that we are never crowded. Someone always turns the radio on and we usually dress and shave to music—until Ray plugs his electric razor into the circuit and then the radio goes haywire.

We dash off to work the same way we dashed off to classes at college. We hurry back to our boarding house the same way we hurried back to our dorms. We talk about our bosses the same way we talked about our profs. Later in the evening we date one of the co-ed's or we study—many of us are still taking advanced night school courses. At midnight we walk over to Greasy Joe's for a spot of coffee or a beer; if it's raining we have it sent up. We have our rooms decorated much as we did at college, too. There's a NO PARKING sign over my bed that Frank placed there and a placard on our hatrack: THIS TREE TO BE SPRAYED. But there also are two excellent charcoals and Allen has a lovely, vivid water-color hanging over the fireplace.

We get home from classes—I mean the office—at 5 and immediately flop on our respective beds for our "exercise." This nap lasts about an hour and then we dress and go upstairs to the dining room. We grumble about the menu choice, the food and the service; we eat everything that is put before us, then we come down and smoke a pipe or cigar and feel like pretty hot stuff.

Every time a new girl moves in we study her carefully from across the common meeting ground—the dining room. We say: "Don't look now but there's a new girl in a red dress behind you who looks smooth!" Then the others at our table—the tables seat four and two—will glance around, casually. Maybe they'll agree and maybe they won't but there's always something intriguing about a new girl.

We really have a swell time in our dormitory. Charlie invited one of the new co-eds to his State society's spring dance and brought her down to our room to meet us before they left. She was blonde and nice looking and we kept her talking as long as we could, while Charlie fumed about being late. At midnight the rest of us went out for our snack and Charlie taxied back from the dance long enough to fill my bed with ice cubes. I discovered them before sliding under the covers so I promptly dumped the whole lot into Charlie's bed. Then we lay awake until Charlie came in, after 2, feeling a little high from his big evening. He took a hot shower and a running dive into his warm bed . . . and what he said then would be Banned in Boston.

Hanging from the crystal chandelier in our room is a dried sprig of mistletoe. It's a leftover from our Christmas party. We held that a few days before we broke up to go home for the holidays, home to Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, North Carolina, Oregon and Maryland. Almost every State is represented in our dormitory, the same as it was at college.

In our dormitory, co-eds are not allowed in men's rooms after 11 p. m. One night we were having a party and at 11 the night clerk came in and solemnly announced that our party was over. A few minutes previously we had been shooting pictures under home floodlights so we grabbed him, turned on the lights, stuck a glass in his hand while a girl posed beside him, and I shot a candid exposure with an F2:9 lens. Then we broke up. But we've never broken up on time since; we simply show this picture to the night clerk when he comes around and when he thinks how the boss would react if he saw it, he wilts.

This all sounds pretty collegiate. It is. But don't get the wrong impression. Night after night Frank and Duke put in their share of home-work, studying. Allen reads. I write. And we're all beginning to cash in on our work.

But we live in a co-ed dormitory, nevertheless. On warm nights there's generally several couples of us sitting on the steps—they could be campus steps—and sometimes, when its dark, we'll sing. Or we'll talk about our schools, and work, and politics, and home—and home was never like this. But all in all, it's a good experience, and a broadening one. I doubt if it could be lived quite in this manner in any other place except Washington, Capital of the United States—city of boarding houses.

Relative Importance.

("Shirley Temple Visits Hyde Park."—News item.)

I.

The President's a famous man,
We honor him as such;
We know the great "First Lady," too,
And like her very much;
A lot of Roosevelts live up here—
They're all of great renown—
But, frankly, they are not so hot
When Shirley comes to town!

II.

Whenever Hyde Park's spoken of Folks think of Franklin D.—
Of Presidents and leadership
And aristocracy;
But he knows when to get away
And dodge a crucial test—
He takes it on the well-known lam
When Shirley's Hyde Park's guest.

III.

Now Mrs. Roosevelt's fame is wide—
She's Lady Number One;
All Hyde Park's very proud of her—
It's high respect she's won.
She knows the handshakes and the cheers,
And hold the spotlight hot,
Except when Shirley comes to town—
And then she holds it not!

IV.

There's "Sistie" and there's "Buzzie;" they
Are very famous kids;
There are no other Hyde Park tots
Who put 'em on the skids;
They are real notables, of course,
But they run second, too,
When Hyde Park rings the bell and shouts,
"Miss Shirley coming through!"

V.

Hyde Parke is known as Roosevelt town,
And when the name you see,
You think of all the Roosevelt clan—
The whole big family.
The newsreel men to keep in touch
Roost in the Roosevelt trees—
But when our Shirley comes around
The word is, "One side, please!"

VI.

The moral of this little tale,
If there is such a thing,
Is that, while it is great to be A President or king,
Or member of his family,
The greater fame by far
Attaches to some child who's made
The grade as movie star.

Nothing Unusual.

A Los Angeles youth, Douglas Corrigan, flew a 1929 plane nonstop from Long Beach, Calif., to New York in 27 hours 50 minutes. He carried only a few bars of chocolate and a bottle of water. And he is taking back the bottle so he can get back the 5-cent deposit. Many a time we've covered almost as much territory before finding the place where we got the bottle.

Howard Hughes took only milk for food on the hop from New York to Paris and at the speed he made it must have been fresher than when he started.

We still can't see why Woody Hockaday wanted to shine President Roosevelt's shoes unless to increase the contrast between him and those Republicans who haven't had a shine in years now.

Japan announces that in the first year of the war with China she has killed or wounded 1,300,000 Chinese. When a nation really concentrates on bringing peace and happiness to another nation, as a friend and brother, it's amazing what can be accomplished.

Of Human Pleasures

Apology For Smoking.

IT IS ALWAYS inspiring to see a brave man fighting for a lost cause and I never cease to admire the Jacobitish zeal with which year after year Mr. St. John Ervine carries on a kind of guerrilla warfare against tobacco. I admire it all the more because I have fired a few shots in the war against tobacco myself and have invariably retired defeated, with the sign of defeat, a cigarette in my mouth. I can go on fighting for a week or a month, but there always comes a time when, like a coward, I strike my colors—and a match. Yet I think I have better reasons to hate tobacco than Mr. Ervine. I have endured at its hands sufferings such as he has never known.

I have been its prisoner, its slave, and during the greater part of my life have gone about clanking its ignoble chains. It has drained my purse like an usurious moneylender. It has inflicted on my throat aches and pains that, had tobacco existed at the time, might have been among the punishments of Caliban. It has half-robbed me of at least one of my senses—the sense of smell—so that, when I walk in a rose-garden, the roses, for all the fragrance they communicate to me, might almost as well be made of paper.

* * * *

WHAT I cannot make out about Mr. Ervine is what comparable motive he has for his savage onslaughts on tobacco. Apparently, it has never done him an injury. He has never worn its chains or been mulcted by it in large sums, or even endured the pains of a smoker's throat. Many people will say, and with some reason, that it is all the nobler on his part to fight this monstrous evil since he stands to gain nothing by its suppression. He is as disinterested, they will say, as was Wilberforce in working for the freedom of the slaves. Would that it were so! If Mr. Ervine would boldly come forward as the Wilberforce of the enslaved smokers, how many of us would rally to his standard? But, alas, Mr. Ervine is no Wilberforce. He hates the slaves almost as much as he hates the slavedriver. He dislikes smoking, not because it injures the smokers, but merely because it is a filthy and disgusting habit.

This is clear from a recent article of his. There Mr. Ervine describes how he recently got into a smoking compartment in a railway train by mistake and how he "had to sit for three hours and 30 minutes in the company of a man who belched forth smoke the whole time, as if he were trying to give an imitation of Battersea Power Station in full blast."

It seems to me that in this description of a fellow-creature smoking, Mr. Ervine betrays symptoms, however faint, of prejudice. He declares, for example, that the man "belched forth smoke" surely an unprecedented phenomenon in the history of smoking. I cannot believe that the man belched forth smoke any more than a garden bonfire belches forth smoke or an April sky belches forth clouds.

* * * *

SMOKING is not in itself a whit more filthy and disgusting than most other human habits. It results in certain untidinesses, but what habit does not? Look at a plate from which someone has just eaten a leg of chicken. What an unpleasant array of skin and bones and remains of vegetables and gravy! If we overlooked everything in eating but its untidy consequences, most of us would abjure meats and fall back on orange juice.

Mr. Ervine says of the habits of some smokers: "If I were a maid who had to wash up after cigarette fiends had done their worst in a coffee cup, I should rub their noses in the sodden butts in the hope, perhaps, delusive, of teaching them manners." But how would he like if the maid conceived a similar antipathy to the equally untidy porridge fiends, curry fiends, chicken fiends and Lancashire-hot-pot fiends, and rushed into his dining room to rub the noses of his guests in the unclean plates? The fact is that, where human beings have been enjoying themselves, there usually is some tidying up to be done after they are gone; they should not hesitate to enjoy themselves all the same.

Land Without People

Correspondent Deprecates Suggestion Northwest Australia Would Serve As Haven For Jewish Refugees; Sees Proposal As A Mare's Nest.

By C. Hartley Grattan.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Sydney, Australia.

AMONG THE many odd suggestions made by those deeply concerned to ease the appalling and increasing pressure on the Jewish population of disintegrating Europe, none is odder than that a group settlement be established in northwest Australia.

No doubt the idea originally arose in the mind of some individual who, having a map knowledge of Australia, and a newspaper reader's awareness of the fact that the continent is underpopulated, discovered that the northwest contains very few people. The same reasoning would lead to the selection of many other parts of Australia, so the northwest was undoubtedly chosen by accident.

It must, however, be rejected by design for reasons which apply with equal force to most of the other empty portions of the continent. If Jews are to be settled in Australia with the support of community-accumulated capital, they should insist upon having access to the areas where most of the Australian people are now found. This should be the basic requirement for the very excellent reason that only in such areas can the population of Australia be multiplied with any hope of success. Queer as it may seem to the uninformed, the pattern of Australian population distribution is pretty much fixed for all time. Multiplication of numbers, which is entirely feasible, barring economic considerations of the present moment, will not materially change the design.

This is so because of the fact that rainfall is the controlling factor in Australian activities and population distribution. Only in three parts of the continent is there precipitation in sufficient quantity and properly spread over the year to guarantee successful close settlement: the rich southeastern segment of the continent where most of the people are now located; the southwestern corner centering on Perth, these two being temperate to subtropical in climate; and a thin segment of tropical country along the northeastern coast of the state of Queensland.

Erratic Rainfall An Unfavorable Factor.

TAKEN TOGETHER, these areas account for about a quarter of the land area of the country. Even within the temperate, thickly settled portions, rainfall is so erratic that resort must be had to irrigation to bring certain portions into production; for example, in Darling, Murrumbidgee, Murray River basin. Outside these favored areas, low rainfall, coupled with seasonality of fall and a high evaporation rate, arbitrarily divides the land into good, fair and poor pastoral country, and useless country.

The tropical portions of this land of low population potential frequently show a high average annual rainfall, but it falls seasonally, creating a wet-dry situation which as yet baffles the Australians. In the existing state of knowlege, tropical Australia (barring the small portion of the Queensland coast) is pastoral country and that alone.

With economic incentive in the form of markets avid for goods, parts may in some distant future be utilized for tropical agriculture. To develop the pockets of good soil will require extensive irrigation works, involving high capital costs, and consequently markets to absorb the produce at high prices. The requisite economic conditions obviously do not exist today.

Some Areas In Transitional Stage.

IN THE MORE favorable parts it is in a transitional stage from cattle to sheep. No agriculture is carried on in it, and future agriculture must be prepared to carry high capital charges for irrigation works. Pastoral country running sheep carries more population than country running cattle, but in neither case is the population-absorbing capacity very impressive, being infinitely lower than agriculture.

Under present world conditions, the northwest of Australia, if left to itself, is unlikely to emerge from low pastoral development and it is a shockingly poor prospect for any people. While it would undoubtedly absorb millions of money if development were arbitrarily pushed beyond this stage, it is impossible to see how any kind of economy other than one heavily and permanently subsidized could ever emerge, short of a complete transformation of world conditions.

Much time, energy and money has been put into projects for developing this country in times past. Yet the recurring complaint is lack of capital resources. The government of Western Australia is reluctant to relinquish its hold on the area, though admitting its inability to find requisite capital. The idea of erecting it into a separate state does not meet with general favor, not yet does the idea of turning it over to the commonwealth to be developed along with the northern territory, on which it abuts and to which, in considerable degree, it assimilates in character. The favorite idea is state-commonwealth co-operation. Jewish settlement, involving provision of capital from outside Australia, would resolve this dilemma in part.

The whole matter, therefore, turns upon the question of latent productive power, which must be considered in the light of world-economic conditions. A purely scientific view, ignoring costs and returns, is not enough. A good deal of fatuous optimism is current about the area. To a commonwealth royal commission of 1925 it was stated that: "The possibilities of the north are enormous . . . In our north the country has been developed to a certain extent, but away in the interior, which we still tell our children is a desert, the country has a magnificent underground water supply."

Picture Not At All Rosy.

THIS ALL SOUNDS mighty attractive when it first falls on one's ears or appears before one's eyes, but it is to be treated with the utmost skepticism. The high rainfall is seasonal. The evaporation rate is tremendous. The run-off water, if to be used for agricultural purposes, would have to be conserved and distributed through extremely expensive works. There would be the problem of handling soils, always a puzzling matter even for irrigation experts. Closely analyzed, this dazzling picture bodies forth nothing more astounding than the bases for good pastoral country.

A report on Northern Territory, rendered in 1937, overlaps at one point on the northwest country. In this report is it pointed out that of the three regions in Northern Territory which can, subject to the adoption of proper policy, be transformed in part from cattle to sheep country, one straddles the borderline between the Territory and Western Australia. This is the Victoria River District, centering on Wyndham, specifically mentioned in the London reports. During the World War the Western Australian government built a meat works at Wyndham. Today it represents a capital investment of about $3,200,000. The accumulated operating loss (capital charges remitted by the state) to 1937 is $4,800,000! For various reasons, the country back of the works cannot provide enough cattle, and cattle of high enough quality, to make the works pay.

By introducing sheep, upon which heavy emphasis is placed, it is hoped that this relatively isolated area will be linked up with the sheep country farther south in tropical Western Australia which is of its own force slowly being extended to the north. The commissioners do not look beyond sheep grazing at present; they do not look to agriculture at all. This envisaged development will cover all the country allegedly to be opened for Jewish settlement.

Nothing could be plainer than that the Australian tropic belt, including the northwest, is a most difficult and puzzling area about which a vast deal of nonsense is talked and written. It would be a tragedy if Jewish men and women were induced to undertake some wildcat scheme of development of a portion of it with delusive hopes of building a high civilization. Let us hope that the talk of the Australian northwest will end in talk. But if some enthusiasts try to push the suggestion forward, they should be forestalled until an expert commission examines the whole position on the ground in the light of Australian experience.

A justifiable retreat could then be beat from an utterly fantastic project in isolated, difficult, country without bringing more trouble to the Jewish world community. I am sure that the decision would be in favor of establishing colonies in Australia, if at all, within the areas now carrying the bulk of the Australian population for the purpose of producing noncompetitive products.

New Rinehart

Lewis Gannett.

"The Wall."

"HEAR they found that woman's body."

"Yes. Queer story isn't it?"

. . . That's the refrain that runs through Mary Roberts Rinehart's new mystery novel, "The Wall" (Farrar & Rinehart, $2). And it is queer. Before they got through there were two women's bodies—four, if you go back far enough; maybe even five, if you count that way, and a man's.

Maybe that's telling. I'm a rank amateur at writing about mystery stories, and a mere layman at reading them. I don't average more than four or five a year; and a real mystery expert gobbles that many in a week. It's a drug habit, a brand of literary dope. But when I say that to my wife, she answers: "Well, you do cross-word puzzles."

Ruth says that I'd better not try to write about mystery stories at all. I seldom do; but every time it happens, Ruth looks up from her conscientious daily duty of reading about books and things and remarks that I'd better just leave mystery stories alone. I give the story away, and that is criminal. I betray to any mystery reader that I really don't know what I'm talking about. I haven't read enough mystery stories to judge.

* * * *

IT'S ALL TRUE. Now and then, when I hear a mystery writer talked about again and again, I try it out. I've read a Dashiell Hammett or two, and I've sampled Dorothy Sayers and Agatha Christie and Erle Stanley Gardner and I've forgotten just who else. There are only two mystery writers who've led me on from one book to another. With most of them, it seems to me—and here again, Ruth says I'm just plain ignorant—when you've read one, you've read them all. I have a little evidence to support me, however. I've noticed that even the most ardent addicts become a little confused when they attempt to distinguish one of their master's masterpieces from another. But I can always read another of Rex Stout's Nero Wolfe stories (even though the publishers have quit sending them to me, because I've never reviewed them); and I can always read another Mary Roberts Rinehart. There's Phoebe Atwood Taylor, too; it seems to me I've been led on into reading a good many Asey Mayo stories.

It's a sheer waste of time, I know. When your business in life is reading books and writing about them you can't afford to ruin your eyes lying in bed after hours finishing a mystery story. Because, obviously, you can't fill a column writing about a mystery. There's nothing to write about but the plot, and Ruth says it isn't fair to give any hint of that.

* * * *

NOW HERE'S Mrs. Rinehart's latest. Of course, I can read anything Mary Roberts Rinehart writes, even if I can't always write about it. I'll admit that one Tish story is very much like another; but, after all, how the faithful followers of Tish would complain if Mrs. Rinehart should depart from the sound and trusted Tish recipes which have delighted us for years. To be sure, I somehow missed Tish in my youth. I met "The Book of Tish"—four volumes in one—as a reprint; and it was my daughter, then aged 11, who began reading them. She used to retell the stories, all of the 100 miles down from Cream Hill, Sunday nights, and she never tired of telling or I of listening. Eventually I found myself reading Tish stories. And will never miss one if I can help it.

"The Wall" is, I believe I have hinted, a mystery. It surely is revealing no secrets to tell that. It's laid on one of those islands off the New England Coast—a sort of Phoebe Atwood Taylor locale; or who was the other woman who wrote a mystery which could almost be spotted on Martha's Vineyard—and I'm a fool for offshore local color. I'm not sure that a Russell Shand, who'd practically never been off the island in his life, isn't almost preferable to the extremely urban Nero Wolfe, who never budges from his orchidaceous house and his supply of ice-cold beer.

* * * *

"THE WALL" has the most satisfyingly long list of suspects I have ever encountered in all my—well, limited, but not negligible—reading of mystery stories. They're almost all nice people, too; and I think there is a certain superlative pleasure in the extra shudder which comes when you fear that suspicion points in the direction of a really nice character. That, of course, is one of Mrs. Rinehart's specialties—nice people. She fills her book with them—nice summer folks and nice all-the-year-round folks. And she has a sharp understanding of the ties which bind, and the lines which separate, perennial summer visitors from all-the-year-round folks. Russell Shand, of course, had watched them all—both classes—from babyhood, and understood them all, even when the dark finger of suspicion pointed most certainly. But the slick district attorney up in the county seat was a cocksure type who sometimes made mistakes.

Mrs. Rinehart, of course, began telling stories before half the famous detectives of modern fiction were born; and part of her art is her sheer craftsmanship as a story teller. There are no loose ends in her tales, no faintly sketched characters. Her stories may not be subtle, but they are smooth; and they are up to date. Mrs. Rinehart's understanding of a modern divorce is not the least Victorian; she even knows that there are as many varieties of divorce as of marriage.

What I'm trying humbly to say is that, while I don't know much about mystery stories, I think Mrs. Rinehart was quite right when she quoted Russell Shand as saying: "Maybe we'd better get at it from the start. It's not a pretty story; but as a matter of human interest and—well, human motives, it's a humdinger." And if you get at it from the start, you won't quit. You'll ride fast to the end—and make no objection to one of the most magnificent collections of highly improbable and perfectly possible coincidences which I have ever yet seen gathered together in one mystery writer's net.

Raskob, duPont '29 Stock Sales Held Taxable

Appeals Board Decision Sharply Doubts Deals Were Bona Fide.

By the United Press.

The Board of Tax Appeals yesterday upheld the Government's contention that criss-cross stock sales made in 1929-30 by Pierre S. du Pont, Delaware industrialist, and John D. Raskob, former financial "angel" of the Democratic Party, were not bona fide and are subject to Federal taxes.

Private sales between the pair totaled nearly $30,000,000. At the close of the transactions, the participants emerged only $46.86 apart. As a result, Raskob paid no income tax on his operatoins in 1929. Du Pont paid $8,180.85, but this amount was refunded to him in 1932. In 1934, however, a deficiency of $13,000.03 was assessed against du Pont and he paid it.

The Government is seeking to collect $78,000 additional from du Pont and $1,026,000 from Raskob in levies on their 1929-1930 incomes. There may be future conferences looking toward redetermination of the deficiencies in the light of the board's verdict, which du Pont and Raskob may appeal.

Pair Sharply Rebuked.

The board's decision was couched in sharp phrases, some of which accused Raskob and du Pont of being not altogether free from "suspicion of mental evasion and equivocation." Their defense of the stock deals tested "the credulity" of the board, the verdict said, adding that "justice is properly blind—but not so purblind as these parties wish us to be."

The decision was dominated, the board said, by examination of the ordinary actions and reactions of men, guided by criteria of reasonable human behavior in business transactions.

"So viewed, they demonstrate, in our opinion, the complete improbability of the asservations of petitioner that the sales were bona fide, real, free from agreement to reacquire, in spite of the result—the complete return to original owenership," the board said.

Bares Its Transparency.

"Such a result could conceivably be without design, but such a thing would be too remarkable for belief. Men do not conduct themselves and accomplish the end as did these parties toward each other, and attain an end so advantageous to their fortunes, without common understanding. This design was too complete to be without designer. The record bears its transparency. . . To reach a different conclusion would require us to be blind to fact and to place a premium upon ingenunity, rather than bona fides."

There is no hint of illegality in the action; duPont and Raskob merely availed themselves of a provision in the revenue act which permitted liberal deductions of stock losses against gains for income tax purposes. This was one of the so-called "loopholes" in the law which was plugged when the New Deal came into power. The rigid revision, however, operated to freeze capital transactions and leniency was voted by the recent Congress.

Wilmington, Del., July 12 (AP).—Pierre S. duPont, advised that the United States Board of Tax Appeals found he and John J. Raskob still owed additional income taxes on their 1929 transactions, said today "the amount in dispute, if finally decided against me," would amount to $250,000 more than he had paid for that year.

Washington attorneys estimated that du Pont might be held to owe $600,000.

D.C. Heads Puzzle Over Problem of Concrete Vs. Rock

The District Commissioners are up against a stone wall in trying to decide what kind of masonry to use in piers and abutments of the new Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge.

Bids have been taken on four types of stone and concrete, with the estimates differing $160,000 between the latter and pink granite, which is the most expensive. For once citizens of the community and the Fine Arts Commission are in accord. They both want the most expensive stone—granite.

Representative Virginia E. Jenckes (Democrat), of Indiana, has urged the Commissioners to use Indiana limestone, which, as she points out, is the cheapest of the stones, although a little more costly than concrete. Construction engineers' however, contend that Indiana limestone will not stand up under water. The other choices the Commissioners have are limestone, sandstone and gray granite.

Park Players Present 'Snow White' Today

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" will be the second presentation of the Rambling Theater, sponsored by the Community Center Department and National Capital Parks Service, at 2:30 p. m. today in Noyes School playground, Tenth and Franklin streets northeast.

Dorothy Cole will play Snow White and Robert Clagett will be Prince Charming. Dwarfs will include Joe De Lozier, Marie Taylor, Edward Cleary, Quinto Tacconelli, Ann Wagner and Raymond Duffy. Other actors will be Martha Rhyne, Mary Taylor, Lucille Clift, Mary Ann Rhyne, Ida Tacconelli, Ellen Flinchum, Peggy Ann Grefenstein, Richard Di Guiseppi, Theresa Conley, Lucy Stivaletti and Dorothy Duffy.

Red Cross Life Saving Classes Begin Monday

Junior and senior life saving classes are being organized at the Takoma Park and East Potomac Park pools by the Red Cross, Gordon O. Stone announced yesterday.

Classes at the Takoma pool will be held from 2 to 4 p. m. and 8 to 9:30 p. m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday, starting today. Edward Storey and Ernest Parsons will be in charge. Classes at East Potomac Park will be from 2 to 4 p. m. and from 7 to 8 p. m. the same days. Robert H. Duncan will be in charge.

The Federal Diary

Everybody now knows that the South is "the Nation's No. 1 economic problem."

They know it because President Roosevelt said so. And President Roosevelt said so in order to start off with a bang last week's conference of Southern businessmen, labor leaders, publishers and economists.

The conference focused the attention of the country on the ills besetting the South, and it was therefore a mighty important conference.

As so frequently happens, this particular conference was born of a casual after-dinner conversation in a Washington home. Only a week before the conference was called, three of the Government's brightest young men were discussing the South and bewailing the fact that the general public didn't know much about it.

Oh, the statistics are in the books, all right, but who has time to read 500-page tomes nowadays? So the boys decided something should be done—and they did it. They told Lowell Mellett, director of the National Emergency Council, of their idea. He was responsive, obtained the President's approval, and did a great deal of work in helping formulate the program.

The 17 reports comprising the agenda of the conference—they were described in The Post as "applying a critical statistical scalpel in dissecting 17 phases of the South's economic and social problems"'—were compiled in a hectic Fourth of July week-end. Work continued day and night, and wives were pressed into service as secretaries. Finally whipped into shape, the reports were sent to the mimeographers at 5 a. m. of July 5, the morning of the conference.

July 5, by the way, was chosen by men wise in the ways of newspapers, because they figured, rightly, that there wouldn't be much competing news so soon after the holiday.

The three originators of the whole idea were Clark Foreman, special assistant to the administrator of PWA; Arthur Goldschmidt, of the consumers' counsel office, National Bituminous Coal Commission, and John Fischer, director of information division, Farm Security Administration.

Speaking of farm security—one of FSA's star photographers has a standing offer to join a metropolitan newspaper at $4,500, but he prefers his present job at half the salary . . . Have you seen some of the brilliant work of FSA camera artists now on display in the 1300 block of G street?

Interior Department's tourist bureau has received a wireless report from the S. S. Iroquois that the ship will arrive on schedule at 8 a. m. today in New York. The Clyde-Mallory liner is returning from a cruise to the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico with over 300 Federal employes and also our own Scott Hart, Federal Diarist, and Mrs. Hart. Most of the party will return to Washington on a special train this afternoon (exact time not available yesterday). We expect to see them in varying shades of tan, rose and just plain lobster red. That Caribbean sun sho' is powerful this time of year!

The famed documentary film, "The Plow That Broke the Plains," will be presented at a meeting of S. S. B. Local 10, U. F. W. A., tomorrow in the old Interior auditorium.

The executive orders of June 24 will come in for some official discussion at a couple of U. F. W. A. gatherings tomorrow. Commerce Local 23 and Treasury Local 11 are holding a joint meeting at 4:15 p. m. in Commerce auditorium. Speakers will be President Harry B. Mitchell, of the Civil Service Commission, Edward J. Gardner, chief of the division of personnel, Department of Commerce, and Jacob Baker, U. F W. A. president, whose picture, by the way, appears in this week's issue of Time.

At the other meeting, also at 4:15 p. m., I. C. C. Local 7 will hear Ismar Baruch, chief of the personnel classification division of the C. S. C.; John B. Switzer, chief clerk and personnel officer, I. C. C., and Leo Hochstetter, of the U. F. W. A.

The largest A. F. G. E. lodge in the country—Internal Revenue No. 47, with some 1,400 members—has just elected its delegates to the national convention in Chicago on September 12.

The delegates are LaRue Tanner, Henry Iler, R. A. Babb, Mrs. Elsie J. Willis, Mrs. Alta Kaylor, Mrs. Mary Massar and Lester E. Eliff, and Charles T. Hoffman. Alternates are Miss Celeste Haughey, Richard C. Vingoe, Grady Nail, Miss Eleanor Capers, Miss Inez Justus, Richard Walsh and Mrs. Harriet Baden.

Delegates elected yesterday by General Land Office Lodge No. 153 were W. S. Towner, president of the lodge, and W. L. Huston, while alternates were Mrs. L. E. Turley, first vice president, and R. W. Ross.

The many friends of Undersecretary of Interior Harry Slattery, who recently underwent a major opertaion, will be pleased to learn that he has returned to his residence, where he is gradually progressing on the road to recovery.

Joseph I. Menehan, Reclamation Bureau, from Spokane, Wash., was given a hilarious surprise birthday party last evening by his associates, William F. Kubach, Walter Meyer, Frank Shiner, Jimmy Hengesbach, Rod Knowles, Fred Berberick, Charlie Dey, Glen Wilkinson, Wendell Bramwell, Mel Jenkins and other accountants.

Cost of Converting Hospital Studied

Col. Herbert Bainbridge Hayden, business manager of the Health Department, yesterday was directed to prepare estimates on his proposal to convert the old Tuberculosis Hospital at Thirteenth and Upshur streets into a departmental headquarters.

The District Commissioners, still hopeful of obtaining a PWA grant to build the second unit of the Municipal Center in which the Health Department would be given quarters, agreed to consider Col. Hayden's suggestion meanwhile.

The vacant hospital is also sought by the Board of Education, as a site for a new Wilson Teachers' College.

Postoffice Design Prizes Announced

Two Cleveland architects took the lion's share of awards announced yesterday by the Treasury in a national competition for small postoffice building designs.

Carl F. Guenther won two $1,000 prizes and John E. Miller won another. They shared a prize for a joint design.

Other winners were Francis W. Roudebush, Harvey Stevenson, and Eastman Studds, of New York; Theodore Ballow White, Philadelphia; T. Marshall Rainey, Cincinnati; Theodore Fletcher, Wilmington, Del., and Arthur F. Deam, Saugatuck, Mich.

Beets, Carrots and Flowers Grow at Wheatley School

Farming for some is tedious work but for these children who cultivate a "farm" at the playground garden at Wheatley School it's fun. At left, Carolyn Bayne waters the flowers. Above, Gerald Cohen (left), 8; Bill Smith, 10, and Dale Johnson, 9, get between the rows of beets and carrots with hoes and rakes to keep the weeds down. At right, Gladys Liff (left), 13, and Phyllis Knoll, 10, reap a harvest of flowers.

Hydrant Fails at Downtown Blaze

Washington's second multiple alarm fire within 24 hours damaged the M. S. Ginn Co. building at 1417 New York avenue northwest yesterday morning. The first fire company to arrive was delayed by a non-producing hydrant (arrow above) in front of the building and hose had to be transferred to another hydrant. There were two alarms.

Argentine Midshipmen Invade Washington By Land

Several officers and 36 naval cadets from the Argentine training ship, Presidente Sarmiento, arrived in Washington yesterday—by land. A group of the naval neophytes are shown climbing stairs at Union Station after detraining. They disembarked at Charleston, S. C., rode the train to Washington, including a stop-off at Marine headquarters at Quantico. They are on a 10-day visit in this country.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

It's Easy to Lasso a Husband, But It Takes Artistry to Win and Hold His Heart, Says Reader.

WHEN A MAN of 31 finds himself detesting his wife and hating his home because of her presence in it, in spite of his best efforts to care for her; when the problem is further complicated by the existence of a 6-year-old son whom he "dearly loves;" and when his wife weeps at the suggestion of separation and insinuates he would be a cad in deserting his child, regardless of how he feels toward her—what is that man to do? Such a problem was discussed in this column Saturday, July 9, and reader response was immediate. The next incoming mail brought many opinions on the subject. Two such contributions are published herewith. M. H.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: With respect to your answer to "L. K." (of Saturday, July 9), who knows that he has never loved his wife and now loves someone else, your suggestion that his wife had "set her cap" for him, while possibly true, is also amusing. Any woman who has been proposed to more than once must realize that the vast majority of our sex resort to such tactics, even if unawarely, at time. Nature has equipped woman with considerable allure, and also with instinctive (as well as acquired) knowledge of how to use it to best advantage. However, the test of her artistry lies, not in winning a mate, but in winning and keeping her mate's love, tenderness and friendship after marriage.

It seems to me that altogether too much importance is attached to love, so-called. Before marriage it is based almost altogether on physical attraction. After marriage, it is based on a very complicated arrangement of conditions and reactions. It takes some very intelligent thinking and acting to keep romance alive in marriage.

• • • •

It is necessary to know your man, his shortcomings as well as his assets, and necessary to make a continuous habit of trying to bring out his good points, while minimizing his undesirable ones. There are innumerable ways of doing this; first, of course, through encouragement and appreciation. Encourage his interests in worth-while activities which will develop his personality, give him a chance for self-expression, and bring him into contact with men of good personality and character. Hobbies and athletic activities are particularly helpful.

• • • •

What women need is more intelligent use of such brains as they possess. If they would forget their pettiness, jealousies, their gossip, their desire to climb socially, and try to be sincere friends, worthwhile individuals, with a great appreciation for beauty in all its forms, for knowledge and philosophical thought, they might find it hard to get rid of their husbands. Very few women are capable of genuine friendship. Premarital love is a comparatively worthless and transient physical attraction.

• • • •

Real love can be built up after marriage, little by little, through the exercise of infinite patience, reinforced by an infinite desire to achieve the best, and in spite of mistakes on both sides. With such an attitude, a woman can create a world of great beauty for herself and her family. But she must be prepared to throw out deadwood occasionally, and unafraid of making a fresh start when it seems indicated. Women, especially married women, need to know when to change their ways of thinking, their habits and get a fresh point of view.

• • • •

"I recommend poetry and philosophy. Emerson and Elbert Hubbard's Note Book and Sketch Book have some very fine things in them. I recommend pinning fine poetry and helpful philosophy over one's kitchen sink, and memorizing it so that it lift's one's mind above daily routine and petty irritants. It really is marvelous the way such inspirational bits can pull one up into a finer way of thinking, a finer mood which brings happiness and harmony. As Emerson says:

Scorn trifles and embrace a better aim
Than wine or sleep or praise;
Hunt knowledge as the lover wooes a maid,
And ever in the strife of your own thoughts
Obey the nobler impulse . . .

D. P.

"Practie Golden Rule."

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am glad I picked up The Post this morning and had opportunity to read of "L. K.'s" plight. You see, I happen to be the woman in a case quite similar to his . . . This is what I wish to say to "L. K.": There are always two sides to every story, but if you have explained to your wife that you do not love her (having made doubly sure that you don't, before you say so) then, even though it means heartache for her, the only right thing for her to do is to release you from what has proved to be a mistake.

• • • •

There is nothing so difficult as trying to pretend happiness. It cannot be done. Unless you can give yourself honestly and utterly, in mind, spirit and body, to your partner in the co-operative enterprise of marriage, you are acting a lie, and everything vital within you is done to death, either quickly or slowly. Eventually you are merely an empty shell of what a husband or a wife ought to be.

• • • •

You are young, "L. K."—only 31. Twenty years from now, your son will be grown and worrying about his own troubles, and you and your wife—if you remain together—will not only hate each other, but will have nothing but a lifetime's unhappiness to look back upon. I have learned that happiness is to be found only through absolute honesty and sincerity of conduct. If you deeply love a person, you wish for his happiness as well as for your own. And therefore, if "L. K.'s" wife loves him, I am sure she will see his point of view and wish him to be happy, even if it means setting him free.

• • • •

I speak from experience. I loved a certain man enough to realize I could not make him happy, and that someone else might. So much as it hurt. I made the break because it seemed the right thing to do. If we, as human beings, follow the Golden Rule, and do to others as we would be done by, I believe we will have done the best that could be required of us, and that some day, in some way, we will come to a full realization of this fact. Sincerely, READER.

Widespread Use of Feminine Pants Causes Prophets to Predict Dresses Are on Way Out

Wide World Photos.

INSTEAD of a ruffled dimity dress, the modern miss chooses a boyish garb for a picnic or a day in the country. The girl at left above wears a two-piece slack suit of powder blue and white striped denim with a shirt of sea island cotton. Her companion wears overalls of heavy cotton in a shepherd's check of blue, brown and white, with a royal blue linen shirt.

Slacks Invade All Except Most Formal Circles; Change of Blouses or Adding of Jacket Allows Them to Function Day and Night.

THE FEMININE pants situation seems to be getting out of control. While pajamas for sleeping and informal entertaining and slacks for sports have been generally accepted, yet this summer finds feminine trousers moving into new social circles. The woman of today not only goes to market in slacks, but she wears them at luncheon at home or at the country club and later in the day she dons a frilly feminine blouse with them and appears for tea or dinner.

While some designers are resolutely holding out against the feminine pants movements, yet the way in which slacks have invaded all except the most formal circles is causing some sartorial prophets to predict dresses are on the way out.

Femininity Emphasized.

Trimly tailored slacks are women's first choice. Designed with the idea to preserve and emphasize femininity they are as versatile as they are practical.

A change of blouse or the adding of a jacket enables slacks to function from breakfast to the midnight snack. For early morning wear there are severely tailored cotton blouses and slacks to double for the conventional house dress. Add a boxy jacket or bolero to top the combination and you are ready for your early marketing.

Sturdy denim overalls in blue, brown or color combinatoins are comfortable and appropriate for gardening. One smartened overall version comes in a shepherd's check of heavy cotton in blue, brown and white with a royal blue linen shirt. Overalls also make inexpensive and smart costumes for horseback riding or hard wear in the country.

Slacks of seersucker, flannel, rayon, crepe and linen are used for both sports and dress wear. The same slacks that you wore for bicycling, sailing or beach strolling can be worn for lunch at home or the country club. These can be made to suit the occasion by adding various accessories. After the late afternoon swim, a loose jacket of rough toweling, striped or plain, transforms the luncheon outfit to colorful beach attire that not only adds color but provides necessary warmth.

Dinner Costume.

Change the tailored shirt of your white sharkskin, crepe, flannel or linen slacks to a soft feminine blouse and you are ready for dinner. Tucks, shirring, lace and embroidery makes these blouses of crepe, sheers, chiffons, organzas, and organdies ultra-feminine. A frilly rumba blouse with tiers of lace around the long, wide puffed sleeves is worn with slacks of blue celanese rayon.

White crepe hostess pajamas with bright colored sash and jewels are correct for informal entertaining and will see you smartly through your date and midnight snack.

YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!

Less Strenuous Exercises Advocated for Hot Weather.

By Ida Jean Kain.

NOW THAT Old Sol has settled down to the business of making it hot for us, and keeping cool is the thing uppermost in your mind, we'll shift to cooler exercises. This is where you really begin to appreciate stretching!

Here is one type of exercise that does not leave you in a welter of perspiration. Actually, it takes so little energy while slimming your figure and soothing your nerves that it is your best on the muggy, exhausting days when you feel at low ebb and wonder whether your frazzled nerves will hold out until you get that vacation.

You wake up earlier these days, so there is plenty of time for exercise—perish the thought! But while you are lying there in bed and speculating on how high the mercury will rise, try this:

Push the pillow out of your way so that you are flat on your back with the arms down at the sides, legs together. Now very slowly move the right arm up until it is stretching straight up, in line with the right leg. Do not lift the arm as you move it. All right? Still very slowly and without exerting yourself, stretch up with the right arm and down with the left leg. That gives you a thorough cross-stretch at the midsection and should make you feel good. Return to position, and stretch the other side with the left arm up and the right leg down.

Nobody will have to tell you to hold the stretch. You will do it naturally because you like the way it makes you feel, pulling the midsection slim and loosening the tension in those tired muscles in the shoulders. When you have finished stretching, lie with your eyes closed for a moment and enjoy the feeling of complete relaxation which ensues.

Now, over you go on your side, with the head resting on the upstretched arm and the other arm in front. Have the legs stretched down, one on top of the other as a brace. Raise the top leg high in the air, stretch clear to the toes, and slowly lower. Repeat slowly and rhythmically, ten times. Then roll over and perform on the other side. Relax between stretches if you like. There is nothing better for strenghtening the muscles of the thighs, abdomen and waist.

Now that summer is here, cooler exercises are in order.

Stretching Movements Relieve Nervous Tension.

Try one more stretch before you get up. Turn crosswise on the bed and let the head and shoulders hang over the edge, with the face down and arms and shoulders limp. Now, straighten the arms and hold them straight out from the shoulders at either side, slowly bringing them up in back. At the same time raise the head and force it back. Don't let the chin poke out, keep it level, and use those muscles in the sides and back of the neck in a good stretch. Hold this position for a moment, then let the arms and head dangle. Repeat from five to ten times.

Such stretching exercises as these relieve nerve tension and give you a smoother start for a hot day.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, July 12.

This is the moment when countless thousands of our young women, released from their desks for the annual two weeks, storm the hills, beaches and forests, intent upon two things—rest, and, they wouldn't mind, romance. And who can blame them? Name one!

ALICE HUGHES

This is too late to say that for this brief, pungent summer interlude there are no rules. At least, axioms that work. The combination of boy, girl and climate produces unpredictable results, in spite of the tut-tuts of the moralists and the snickers of the cynics. Yet many men and women of long experience in the summer resort business find it useful to promulgate a few thoughts on this matter at this time of year—especially if their well-meant words get into the newspapers. For instance, Brother Frank Seiden, who heads a whole flock of resort hotels, delivers a few well-chosen chestnuts.

Don't flirt, he suggests, to which I am tempted to say humph. Listen and don't try to outtalk the boy—which is an instinctive rule with all smart women. Don't talk about other boy friends—gosh, does he think we are that stupid? Be yourself—which is sensible but difficult, under the circumstances. Don't try to reform him—who wants to, anyway?

Thank you very much, Brother Seiden. Vacations are always the same, and will be until the earth spins sadly away into space. We shall go away on our two-week holidays according to the old system of trial-and-error. And if the latter wins, ten times out of nine it is only because that is the way the world works. And always has, yet we seem to get by, year after year!

• • • •

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—It seemed nice to hear little Helen Hayes on the radio the other night, even in a "Jane Eyre," which didn't mean much to these aged ears. She'll be playing Portia near hear any night, now, and will we be glad to see the little gal again! . . . If you feel like attacking a ton of books these warm weeks, you might take a high dive into "House of All Nations," by Christina Stead. Reads to me like a mighty fine piece of work, but don't drop it on your toes if you want to waltz the summer out.

• • • •

New York is as near a rebellion this summer as it is ever likely to be, and it is because most of the open-roofed Riverside Drive buses have been replaced by the closed type, and are the youngsters mad! That long chug up the drive with the lighted Hudson on one side and the real sky overhead was a 10-cent heaven to thousands here! Yep—the city's sweethearts are up in arms—around each other!

• • • •

Naturally enough, the state of Europe has much to do with the buying trips of our big store people this summer. For reasons I needn't state, the great majority of them are concentrating in Italy, the south of France and England this month. Most of my best girl friends in the business world are already overseas, but there's no sailing for me this year. Nose to the grindstone!

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

Summer Bachelor.

She packed listlessly, thinking of how jauntily he had walked down the street that morning. For several days there had been a suggestion about him of a bird in spring preening its plumage. And at the party the other night he had taken on an unwonted popularity. Especially with Maudie Burns . . . and that young wife of the lieutenant who had gone to San Diego.

Well, of course, it was nice for the other women to have an unattached man around . . . and nice for him too, not to have a dumb wife and children always hanging around his neck. Why was it that wives were always "dumb?" And "Jealous" . . . and "possessive?"

Well now she would give them all a chance . . . and him too. How miraculously that married look had seemed to slide off him the last few days! And that sudden interest in his clothes! Sending home those new shirts and ties. Of course there had been a sale. "Now is the time to buy," he had kept telling her. "And these things will all be good next summer." But then—sending three suits to the cleaner . . . and getting those new white Oxfords . . . and the blue socks with the white stripes . . . and that hair pomade . . .

Maybe it was a mistake to go. There were all those things you read about that men did . . . and the mixups they got into. And he had been talking so much about that new Miss Piper in the office . . . just kidding of course, really making fun of her. Still when a man began to make fun of a girl it usually meant—Oh well he always seemed to get some woman on the brain—to talk about. It was as regular as clockwork.

• • • •

Still she really wished she were staying at home. It would have been a lot easier all around. And yet there were all those silly women at the party saying, "Oh how wonderful it must feel to be going away!" and then sighing martyrlike. It would be a lot easier to stay home she could tell them, than to move the children to the beach . . . and entertain relatives there all summer . . . and then come home to a house in a mess . . . and a husband——

• • • •

No she musn't think of such foolish things. Didn't all the psychologists say husbands and wives should get away from each other occasionally. Maybe he would appreciate her more when she came back. And the children needed the beach . . . and, of course, she could have her mother down . . . and poor Aunt Mamie, who never got to go anywhere. She really owed something to them. Oh, a woman was pulled so many different ways.!

Oh, well, if he wanted to make a fool of himself, there was nothing she could do about it. He was a grown man—at least, he should be. If he wanted to step, let him step. Only—if he would just be nice to Elsie Brooks and Jane Carter . . . nice girls like that who didn't get out much . . . women you could trust . . .

Or, if he were only one of those perfectly dependable men like George Todd—still, to be married to George Todd. She shuddered. Anyway, he wasn't exactly undependable. It was just that—well, that he was the type that made a good summer bachelor.

• • • •

Seeing him on the train platform as he waved good-by, a surge of motherly pity swept over her. He was so naive, so transparent, a small boy, bewildered at being left alone, yet eager to try his new freedom. After all, it wasn't going to be easy on him, working there in the heat, eating in restaurants, going home to an empty house. Poor darling! He did have a right to a little fling. If only he didn't see too much of Maudie Burns . . . or that new Miss Piper.

No, she must put all that out of her mind. This was her vacation. She must make the most of it. And why—why, when you got right down to it, she was not exactly a dead one herself. And you never could tell just who you would run into on a trip. She opened her bag and reached for her compact.

Argentine Ship Guests Keep D. C. Society Busy

Second Set of Foreigners Supplants Swedish Royalty, Affording Opportunity for Parties Gone for Summer.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

Foreign visitors continue to keep the Capital's mid-summer social calendar from being a minus quantity. When just about everybody had decided formal partying was over until autumn, Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden and Crown Pincess Louise arrived early yesterday for an unexpected, and unofficial, visit to Washington.

Functions for them dominated the social whirl (what there is of it) yesterday and last night, but with the departure of the royal couple this afternoon the spotlight will shift toward officers and midshipmen of the Argentine training ship, Presidente Sarmiento.

HOPE R. MILLER.

While the rumor is going the rounds that the crown prince agreed to come to Washington only on condition that his visit be as quiet and informal as possible, he and the crown princess were honor guests at a formal luncheon given by the Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull yesterday at the Carlton. Members of the royal party, representatives of several Government departments and a scattering of diplomats were in the company.

Guests included the Secretary of the Treasury, Henry Morgenthau, jr.; the Secretary of Agriculture, Henry A. Wallace; the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Sumner Welles, Norman H. Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross; the newly appointed United States Minister to Sweden and Mrs. Frederick A. Sterling, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Jesse H. Jones, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Mrs. Jones; Mrs. Benton McMillin, Civil Service Commissioner; James Clement Dunn, of the State Department; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Morley, and Commander Hamilton Bryan, United States Naval Aide to the crown prince.

Members of the royal party present at the luncheon were Nils Rudebeck, master of the household for the Crown Prince; Miss Brita Steuch, lady in waiting to the Crown Princess, and Dr. H. J. Ernberg, physician for the Crown Prince.

Late yesterday afternoon officers and midshipmen of the Argentine training ship Presidente Sarmiento, arrived from Charleston, S. C. Heading members of the party on hand to meet and greet them were Capt. Saba H. Sueyro, Naval Attache of the Argentine Embassy, and Commander Victor Padula of the Argentine Naval Commission.

Commander Luis S. Malerba did not accompany his officers and midshipmen to Washington. Remaining in Charleston for a visit with some friends, he delayed his visit here for several hours. He was expected to arrive this morning at 7 o'clock. Officers of the ship will be at the Mayflower during their Capital sojurn; the midshipmen are at the Hamilton Hotel.

A tea dance in honor of the South American visitors will be given this afternoon by Admiral William D. Leahy, Chief of Naval Operations, and Mrs. Leahy. The party will take place at the Army and Navy Country Club from 6 to 8 o'clock. Other social functions planned for the Argentines include luncheon today at the Pan-American Union, a concert tomorrow at the same place, and a big reception at the Mayflower Friday afternoon.

Blocks Off Tomorrow For Nantucket House

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Block will leave tomorrow to spend the remainder of the summer at Nantucket. They have a house at Siasconset, on the tip end of the island, which is noted for its charm and fine surf bathing.

Mrs. Block and her children will return in time for the opening of school in fall.

Col. and Mrs. Brady Ruttencutter have returned to Washington after an absence of 14 months. They spent several months in Europe; followed this up with a stay in Miami, Fla., and for the past eight weeks have been in Havana, Cuba.

Accompanying them on their trip was their airdale, Buster, whom Mrs. Ruttencutter whimsically describes as now able to speak Italian, French and a little Spanish.

Mrs. Acheson To Go Abroad

Mrs. Dean Acheson, with her son and daughter, David and Mary, will sail a week from today on the Queen Mary for several weeks in Europe. She hopes to be joined by Mr. Acheson later.

Mrs. Acheson wil spend three weeks in France, where her children will be left with a French household to study French, and then will go to England for two weeks.

Miss Jane Acheson, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Acheson, is a member of the Bennington (Vt.) stock company this summer. During the winter she studies at Bennington College. Mrs. Acheson says that she loves her work with the players and is very busy with her job.

Lieut. Jordan, Wife Entertain at Dinner

Lieut. and Mrs. Julian B. Jordan, who will leave their quarters at the Navy Yard next week for the West Coast, where Lieut. Jordan has been assigned to duty on the U. S. S. Oklahoma, gave a dinner last evening at the Shoreham Terrace.

Their guests included Capt. Ferdinand L. Reichmuth, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Harley F. Cope, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Marion R. Kelley, Lieut. and Mrs. Seymour A. Johnson, Lieut. and Mrs. Doyle M. Coffee, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton A. Wishart, and Mrs. Charles C. Hoffner.

Dr. and Mrs. Robertson Are on Visit to London

Dr. David Allan Robertson, president of Goucher College, and Mrs. Robertson are spending a few weeks in England and at present are making their headquarters in London.

They will leave soon for the French Riviera, remaining there until they start home. They expect to be back in Baltimore early on August.

Bridal Couple At Sea Resort

Mr. and Mrs. Tyrus J. Howell, who were married at 8 o'clock last Saturday evening, are spending their honeymoon at Rehoboth Beach, Del. They will make their home at 1334 Farragut street upon their return.

The bride is the former Miss Joan Thompson, daughter of Mrs. Clinton R. Thompson, of Washington, and the late Mr. Thompson. Mr. Howell's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Howell, of San Antonio, Tex.

Mrs. Kirksey Matron of Honor

The Church of the Transfiguration was the scene of their marriage, at which the Rev. J. J. Queally officiated. The bride wore a gown she had made herself, of ivory white slipper satin with fitted sleeves and a heart-shaped neck. Her finger-tip veil of tulle, made in three tiers, was attached by ivory satin roses, and she carried a shower bouquet of white carnations, gladioli, and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Woodrow W. Kirksey, who served as her matron of honor, was attired in peach-colored mousseline and carried varicolored African daisies. Miss Roxie Lou Davis, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Miss Margaret Rice, of Washington, were bridesmaids, wearing dresses in an aqua shade made like that of the matron of honor. They carried bouquets of yellow snapdragons and larkspur. Miss Claire Croft served as flower girl.

Twin Brother Is Best Man

Arthur E. Howell, of San Antonio, twin brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and the ushers were Edgar Melton, of Rocky Ford, Colo., and Raymond Martin, of Arlington, Va.

A reception for relatives and close friends of the couple followed the ceremony. When she left for her wedding trip, the bride was wearing a dress and coat ensemble of natural sharkskin, with accessories of linen.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Howell, mother of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. William A. Hiene, of Roselle, N. J., and Miss Frances Mershon, of Baltimore.

Mrs. William Styx Goes to California

Mrs. William Styx, of Washington, the former Yaltah Menuhin, will attend the wedding Saturday in Los Gatos, Calif., of her sister, Miss Hephzibah Menuhin, to Lindsay Nicholas, 22-year-old Australian wool grower.

Since their marriage earlier in the summer, Mr. and Mrs. Styx have been occupying the Foxhall road residence of Mrs. Higgins Chapin, who is in Europe.

Miss Menuhin, who is a sister of the famous violinist, Yehudi, will have only members of the two families at her wedding. Her fiance will arrive in Oakland Tuesday. His sister, Nola, who married Yehudi, will meet him.

A later train will bring Mr. Nicholas' parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Nicholas, of Melbourne, their older daughter and son-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Edmond Alcock, of London, and their youngest son, Hylton Nicholas, 13.

From St. Louis will come Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Styx, parents of Mr. Styx. The future bride and her husband will remain in California until September, when they will sail for Melbourne.

Katherine Witt Engaged To Wed Daniel Jacobs

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Witt announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Katherine Witt, to Daniel William Jacobs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Jacobs, of Baltimore.

The wedding will take place in the fall.

Take House.

The Misses Bettina Belmont, of Middleburg, Theresa Schey, of New York, and Bruner Hunneyman, of Philadelphia, have taken a house at Saratoga for August.

W. R. Winslows Are Parents of Son Born July 5

Capt. and Mrs. William Randolph Winslow are being congratulated on the birth of a son on July 5 at Walter Reed Hospital. The boy has been named John Randolph.

Mrs. Winslow is the artist, widely known as Marcella Comes, who had a one-man show of her work at the Little Gallery, Georgetown, last November. She sxhibits frequently at the Phillips Gallery.

Mrs. Malin Craig, wife of the chief of staff of the United States Army, and her mother, Mrs. Charles Woodruff, will go to Virginia Beach the end of the week to spend a fortnight.

Miss Elena Villa Engaged to Wed

Washington, as well as New York, is interested in the announcement by Count and Countess Alfonso P. Villa, of Manhattan, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elena Villa, to Robert Grant 3d. Miss Villa's uncle, Brig. Gen. Augusto Villa, was military attache of the Italian Embassy about ten years ago.

Miss Villa attended La Petite Ecole in Florence, Italy, and Miss Hewitt's classes in New York, and was presented to society in Newport three years ago.

Mr. Grant was educated at Eton in England and at Harvard. He is a member of the Harvard, Meadowbrook, and Racquet and Tennis Clubs of New York, where he is in the banking business. His mother is the former Miss Priscilla Stackpole, of New York, and he is a grandson of Judge Robert Grant, of Boston.

Countess Villa, mother of the bride-to-be, was formerly Miss Helen Lippincott, of New York.

Miss Thompson Plans to Make Debut in Winter

Mary Dora and Her Mother, Mrs. Hempstone, Off Today for Europe.

Add to the list of next season's debutantes pretty Miss Mary Dora Thompson, daughter of Mrs. Smith Hempstone and granddaughter of Theodore W. Noyes. Miss Thompson, who should be outstanding in the group of girls to make their bow next winter, recently returned with her mother from the West Coast, where Capt. Hempstone has been stationed.

Mrs. Hempstone and her daughter will leave today to spend the summer in Europe. Last evening Capt. and Mrs. Hempstone entertained at a dinner in the Shoreham Terrace in honor of Miss Edith Clarke, daughter of Col. Thomas S. Clarke, U. S. M. C., and Mrs. Clarke, who are visiting Lieut. and Mrs. Stanley K. Robinson at Bolling Field. Miss Clarke and Mrs. Robinson won the District of Columbia women's doubles championship at the Columbia Country Club last Sunday. In addition, Miss Clarke was co-winner of the mixed doubles and Mrs. Robinson annexed the singles championship.

Other guests at the dinner included Lieut. and Mrs. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Thompson, jr., who only recently returned from their wedding trip, and Mr. and Mrs. William Hill.

Roswell Magill Back From Vacation Visit

Roswell Magill, Undersecretary of the Treasury, has returned from a month's vacation in Westport, Conn., where Mrs. Magill and their son, Hugh, are spending the summer.

Mr. Magill will visit them week-ends during the season. Katherine Magill, their daughter, is spending the summer at a camp in New England.

Drafting of Chaco Agreement Playing Havoc With Vacations

The draft agreement which, it is hoped, will put an end to the 100-year-old Chaco conflict in South America, has played havoc with the summer plans of a number of diplomats who have been reresented in the delicate negotiations.

Among them are the United States Vice Consul at Buenos Aires and Mrs. Allen Haden, who will probably postpone until October the trip back to the United States which they had planned to make this summer. The pact was initialed with much ceremony on the morning of July 9, Argentina's Independence Day, but much remains to be done before it is formally accepted and signed by the governments of Paraguay and Bolivia.

Mr. Haden, besides being vice consul, is serving as secretary to Spruille Braden, American Ambassador at Large, who has been among those working on the pact. Mrs. Haden is the former Miss Janet Ball, of Washington, daughter of Mrs. Henry Winfield Watson.

Mrs. Watson had been expecting her son-in-law and daughter to visit her at her summer home, broadmoor, at Siasconset on Nantucket Island. But now that their visit has been postponed, she has decided to sail for Europe, with Monte Catini, in the mountains above Florence, as her destination.

Spruille Braden was recently appointed United States Minister to Colombia, but has delayed his departure in the hope that he could eventually work out a pact to end the boundary dispute between Paraguay and Bolivia. However, he is expected here shortly to receive his instructions as envoy to Colombia. It is probable that Alexander Weddell, United States Ambassador to the Argentine, will hereafter represent the United States in the Chaco Peace Conference.

Many diplomats credit Mr. Braden and Ambassador Jose de Paula Rodriguez Alvez, Brazilian delegate to the peace conference, with having held things together until an agreement was reached, although the going has been extremely difficult.

Mrs. S. L. Campbell Leaves After Making Pla ns for D. A. R. To Continue 'Good Angel' Work, Building, Supporting Schools

$10,000 Domitory Hoped for at Tamassee, Tenn., Project.

Mrs. F. M. Dick Gives Health Unit to Smith Campus.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Nearly 800 boys and girls of South Carolina and Alabama are receiving education through the efforts of the Daughters of the American Revolution, according to Mrs. Samuel James Campbell, of Mount Carroll, Ill., newly appointed chairman of Approved School's for the D. A. R. She left yesterday for New York, accompanied by Mrs. Leland Stanford Duxbury, of Minneapolis, historian general, after a conference at headquarters with Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., president general of the society.

"I believe our work with approved schools is the activity nearest to the heart of members of the D. A. R.," said Mrs. Campbell. Educating the mountain children, who come of sturdy, early American stock, is a living memorial to their forefathers who helped establish the country, she pointed out.

The Daughters of the American Revolution not only give support to schools which need assistance, but have also built two schools—Tamassee, in South Carolina, in 1919, and Kate Duncan Smith, in Grant, Ala., in 1924.

Tamasee is a boarding school with an enrollment of 250, and Kate Duncan Smith a day school attended by 500 children from the primary grades through high school. It is the only school in that section. The D. A. R. established and provides all books and equipment for work above the first two grades. The State pays the teachers and provides books for the first and second grades. Lunches and clothing are provided needy children.

Chapters Give $100 Scholarships

The National D. A. R. appropriates $1,000 a year for each school. Additional support comes from individual chapters. A scholarship for a girl at Tamassee is $100 a year and an additional $15 supplies material for her uniforms which are made by the girls at the school as part of their home economics work.

This year there are several new projects under way at Tamassee. A laundry with modern equipment is being built as the gift of the Michigan D. A. R. New Jersey is giving a memorial cottage honoring the late State regent, Miss Mabel Clay, which will be dedicated in the fall and used as a home for the school president. Money is being raised by Pennsylvania for a health house, where a trained nurse will be maintained as well as dental chairs and other equipment for medical service and public health instruction to students and members of the community.

Mrs. Campbell, who retired a year ago as Illinois State regent, during her term of office designated as a State project the raising of money for a telephone line to the school. The nearest phone had been 12 miles away. Boys cut trees for telephone poles and did much of the work, as they do on all projects at the school. They build, make furniture and help in maintenance of the institution, earning part of their tuntion, contributing their part to the development of the institution and gaining practical experience at the same time.

This year Illinois plans to raise $10,000 for a boys' dormitory, Mrs. Campbell said. At first the school was only for girls. Then they came bringing their little brothers and begging to have them enrolled also.

A building which had been used for a chicken house was renovated and converted into a dormitory for the boys. They have been using it ever since, but will have a new one as soon as the Illinois chapters can raise the $10,000.

It is the practice of the organization to have the money in hand for its school projects before it embarks on expansion. Last year over $80,000 was given to approved schools by the national society and individual chapters.

New Projects at K. D. Smith School

A new health house has been given to Kate Duncan Smith School by Mrs. Frank Madison Dick, of Maryland, who is one of the "good angels" of the schools, according to Mrs. Campbell. This summer the home economics instructor there is taking her pressure canner to help mothers of the vicinity with their canning. For this assistance she is given fruit and vegetables for the school.

A sewage disposal plant and heating plant are tow of the major needs at Kate Duncan Smith. There may be undertaken as national projects unless individual States are interested in sponsoring them, says Mrs. Campbell. She is preparing a chart, listing the needs of the schools, from which chapters may select projects. After they have made their choice, the national project will be selected from those that are left.

Schools on the approved list which receive aid and support from the D. A. R. as well as from other organizations are the American Indian Institute in Wichita, Kans.; a rural school in Wisconsin; American International College, Springfield, Mass.; Schauffler Woman's College, Cleveland; Berea College, Kentucky; Martha Berry Schools in Georgia; Maryville College in Tennessee, where 656 of the 800 students work their way; Pine Mountain Settlement School, Harlan County, Ky.; Car Creek Community Center, Knott County, Ky.; Hindman Settlement, Knott County; Crossnore, in North Carolina; Hillside School, Marlboro, Mass; Lincoln Memorial University, Tennessee; Blue Ridge Industrial School, Green County, Va.

Mrs. Duxbury, who accompanied Mrs. Campbell to Washington, is serving with her as a Federal commissioner for the Northwest Territory Celebration They attended the dedication of the Borglum Monument at Marietta, Ohio, on their way East. Mrs. Duxbury is both historian general and chairman of historical research. She discussed with Mrs. Robert during her stay here the golden jubilee project which has been proposed, pending the approval of the national board in October—a library of the period of the American Revolution and a document room for the preservation of valuable records. It is planned to use space in the basement of the first building of Memorial Continental Hall for the library, which will be air-conditioned to preserve the old papers.

Mrs. Duxbury will stress the educational angle of her work and expects to ask the States which have already sent their D. A. R. histories to headquarters to bring them up to date and request the others to prepare theirs. This will complete the organization's records. Chapter regents also will be asked to send in 250-word stories of the founding of their chapters, and throughout the country members of the society will continue their work of locating and preserving historic documents and records.

Games and 'Music' Feature Night At Maryland P.-T. A. Congress

Toy Balloons, Horns, Whistles Comprise 'Band' at Brent Hall Party, Held at University Under Direction of Mrs. Homer V. Hart.

The Maryland State Congress of Parents and Teachers, in session for the week at the University of Maryland, last night held its only evening meeting. It was a play night, under direction of Mrs. Homer V. Hart, fourth vice president of the congress and chairman of the conference, and was held at Margaret Brent Hall.

The program was not only for the entertainment of the delegates but also to suggest recreation for local Parent-Teacher Association meetings. There were guessing games, stunts, and an indoor treasure hunt. In this, 25 small articles were secreted about the room in places where they could be seen without moving anything. The "hunters" had a list and checked them off as they were located, saying nothing to anyone else as to "what was where." This was one of the most popular of the games. Another was the organization of a band, instruments in which were toy baloons, horns and whistles.

Mrs. Hart presented a humorous reading, "Her First Club Meeting," and at the end of the program distributed gilded walnut shells in which she had placed miniature blue candles. These were lighted and, as they burned, familiar old songs were sung. "Good Night Ladies" ended the songfest just as the flames flickered out.

Mrs. G. R. Clements, president of the congress presided Monday, opening day. Yesterday morning Mrs. H. Ross Coppadge, chairman of membership and rural service, presided and Mrs. Charles E. Roe., national field secretary of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, led the discussion. Others on the program were Mrs. Robert C. Doty, in charge of congress publications; Mrs. William H. Diefel, treasurer, and C. S. Richardson, professor of speech at the University of Maryland, who talked on parliamentary procedure.

Mrs. Milton D. Moore, of Hagerstown, first vice president, will preside at the morning session today and S. Denmead Kolb, of Salisbury, in the afternoon.

The congress program is being given chiefly by representative members of the organization from various parts of the State.

Many of the delegates are spending the week at Margaret Brent Hall, devoting their time to the sessions. Others come in daily from over the State. Some of the local units are sending different groups each day in order to have full reports on the convention.

Those staying at Brent Hall include Mrs. Clements, whose home is in Annapolis; Mrs. Milton D. Moore, of Hagerstown, first vice president; Mrs. William F. Podlich, of Baltimore, third vice president; Mrs. Hart, from Hagerstown, and Mrs. Doty, of Cumberland.

Others staying there are Mrs. O. K. Shugart, of Pisgah; Mrs. S. Jay Gower, of Williamsport; Mrs. Vincent Borgman, of Cumberland; Mrs. Harry Barton, of Cresaptown; Mrs. Elmer Hoffman and Mrs. Esther K. Crouse, of Ridgely; Mrs. William S. Griffin, of Fruitland; Mrs. Bryan Crockett and Mrs. J. E. Crumbacker, of Salisbury; Mrs. Carl K. Calhoun, Mrs. Brewer L. Stouffer, Mrs. I. M. Rase and Mrs. R. W. Willette, all of Hagerstown; Mrs. Edmund H. Skervin, Chestertown; Mrs. Robert Derham, of Westernport; Mrs. Robert O'Berry, of Solomon's Island; Mrs. Stanley E. Cook, Mrs. George Dering, Mrs. Clarence Carpenter and Mrs. B. R. Gill, of Indianhead; Mrs. Carl Keen, of Havre de Grace; Mrs. Albert Wilson, of Prince Frederick; Mrs. A. L. Twigg, of Cumberland.

Moose Women Plan Big Drive

The membership committee of Columbia Chapter, Women of the Moose, met last night at Moose Hall, with Mrs. Howard J. Clark, chairman, presiding.

Assisting on the membership staff are Mrs. Evelyn Rhoderick, Miss Mildred Blume, Mrs. Margaret Bates, Mrs. Alice McNulty and Mrs. Anna Wagner. Miss Blume will act as secretary for the committee and Mrs. Bates, who formerly served as membership chairman, will be assistant to the chairman. The senior regent, Mrs. Calvin Giles, and graduate regent, Mrs. Robert Baldwin, also attended the meeting.

Enthusiasm was expressed by the members over the chairman's plans for doubling the membership of the chapter during the ensuing year. A campaign will be conducted, starting in August, in which each member of the chapter will be expected to obtain at leasto ne additional member.

The first-class initiation is scheduled to be held in connection with the Maryland and Border States Moose Association conclave at Annapolis over the Labor Day week-end, when Columbia Chapter will, forthe first time, exhibit the initiatory ritual at a State meeting. Another class initiation is being planned for Mooseheart on Founder's Day in October, celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of this home, maintained by the Moose. The annual visit of the grand regent will be the occasion of still another special class initiation in January.

Bedtime Stories

The Careless One.

For carelessness some one must pay;
It is and always was that way.
—Old Mother Nature.

This is a truth that somehow people never seem to learn. It is a fundamental law of life. If the careless one does not pay someone else will. It has been so since the world began. It will be so until the world ends. It is true of the least of Mother Nature's children. It is true of mankind. It is true of all in between.

So one of the first things that children should be taught is to be careful. No one knows this better than Reddy Fox. Both he and Mrs. Reddy have learned through bitter experience what dreadful results may follow carelessness. So they try to send their children out into the Great World thoroughly trained to be careful.

There is a great difference in children. Some are naturally careful. It is equally natural for others to be careless. It is the latter who cause their parents most of their worries and who are the cause of much of the trouble and sorrow in the Great World.

One young Fox was the cause of more anxiety to Reddy and Mrs. Reddy than his four brothers and sisters combined. From the time he first poked his little black nose out of the doorway of his home to blink at the sun and wonderingly stare at the strange things around him, strange because new to him, he brought many anxious moments to his parents. It wasn't that he was deliberately disobedient. He wasn't. He was one of those "I didn't mean to" children. He was careless. And the trouble was that he didn't learn by experience. No, sir, he didn't learn by experience.

He was a little woolly cub when he tried to follow a butterfly and became lost among the bushes only a very little way from his home in the Old Pasture. His mother soon found him and carried him home. There she scolded him well. But the very next day he was in trouble again and all because he was careless. He fell down between some stones and couldn't get out until his father came along and pulled him out. As he grew older he continued to be careless. Once because he didn't watch where he was going he narrowly escaped being bitten by Buzztail the Rattlesnake. Once he tumbled off a ledge and was lame for a week. Once he went to sleep right out in the open and it was only his good luck that Flip the Terrier, nosing about in the Old Pasture in quest of excitement, turned aside just before reaching the place where the young Fox was.

When the time came for him to start out to make a place for himself in the Great oWrld he was still careless and happy-go-lucky. Reddy Fox shook his head and there was a worried look on his face.

Careless folk seldom live long," said he.

The young Fox grinned. "Don't worry, I can take care of myself. I'm not exactly stupid," he replied.

It was true that he was not stupid. Indeed, he was quite the opposite. In some ways he was the smartest of all the children. Perhaps it was because he was so smart that he was so careless. It often is that way with clever people. They know that they are smart and they trust too much to their smartness to get them out of difficulties.

"No," replied Reddy, "you are not stupid. You are too smart. You are too smart for your own good."

The young Fox looked puzzled. He protested that such a thing couldn't be. It just didn't make sense to him and he said so.

"Folks sometimes are so smart they get to believing that no others are as smart as they and that therefore they can do about as they please. It is about that time that they grow more and more careless. Sooner or later they pay for that carelessness despite their smartness. None ever yet was so smart that he could afford to be careless," replied Reddy.

The young Fox grinned. "If carelessness gets me into trouble I guess I'll be smart enough to get out of it," said he.

"It would be much smarter to keep out of it," replied Reddy.

CLAUS BOGEL last night recalled his association on the stage with George Arliss, Minnie Maddern Fiske, Cyril Maud and other noted people of the theater, in a talk before Miss Alice Hutchins Drake's books and their makers group at the Y. W. C. A. It was the season's last regular meeting for the organization and was held on the roof of the "Y. W." building.

Mr. Bogel, who is now in the Library of Congress, told of his first engagement in New York with Mrs. Fiske's old Manhattan Stock Co. in the Standard Theater, then located where Gimbel's store now stands. He was assistant stage manager at $12.50 a week. Mrs. Fiske, he said, was a generous artist, strict in stage discipline and was one of the first to insist upon realism in acting.

HE traced his own career in the theater through such vicissitudes as belonging to a company which was stranded in Fremont, Nebr., and such outstanding successes as playing Oswald for two seasons in Ibsen's "Ghosts." On one occasion, when George Arliss was ill, Mr. Bogel took his part in "Septimus" for two weeks, thus keeping the play going until his recovery. He paid tribute to Arliss as one of the finest gentlemen he had ever known.

Miss Drake, who conducts the Books and Their Makers Group and gives "Little Talks on Large Topics" each week at the Y. W. C. A., introduced the guest speaker.

Among the guests present for the evening were Dean William Allen Wilbur of George Washington University, Stewart Dickson and Mrs. Helen Turley, who has frequently sung for the group and who was accompanied to the meeting by her mother, Mrs. Miltonberger.

Among members of the group were Miss Florence Johns, Miss Anna Danerlein, Mrs. Mary Kent, Miss Elsa Needham, Miss Grace Woodcock, Miss Ollie Dean, Miss Elfreda Baker, Miss Helen McSweeney, Miss Margaret Lawrence, Miss Emily Ward, Mrs. Robert Burns and Mrs. Jane Donaldson.

THE ZONTA CLUB, instead of having a luncheon meeting at the Y. W. C. A. today, will meet at the home of its president, Emma T. Hahm, for a picnic tonight on her grounds, 6036 Daniels road. After the picnic supper they will hear from her all about the convention of Zonta International recently held in Canada.

A FRENCH SKETCH and music will be the program for the Bastille Day celebration at the Arts Club tomorrow night, following an afternoon card party and tea. Mrs. Consuelo A. Seoane will have charge of the tea with other club members assisting and Mrs. Frank B. Steele is planning the card party.

The evening program is under the direction of M. and Mme. Felian Garzia. Those participating will be Mary Mitchell, Charles Tuttle, Floyd Miller, Justin Lawrie, Francis Garzia and Bernard Garzia.

The program is planned for the garden but, in case of bad weather, will be held in the theater of the Arts Club.

A NEWLY ORGANIZED group which is continuing its meetings through the summer is "Ye Ladyes of the Round Table," an auxiliary to the Knights of the Round Table. Mrs. Alton Grinnell is president; Mrs. James E. Smith, vice president, and Mrs. C. G. Lueck, secretary and treasurer.

The next meeting will be a luncheon at the Highlands on August 12.

OFFICERS of the Second Division unit of the District of Columbia Department, American Legion Auxiliary for the coming year are Mrs. Bertha Angevine, president; Mrs. Matilda McCree and Mrs. Viola Thomas, vice presidents; Mrs. Rae R. Zaontz, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. Frances Snow, chaplain, and Mrs. Genevieve Griffin, historian. Mrs. Angevine also appointed Mrs. Matilda McCrae, membership chairman.

Mrs. Roberta Jacobs, a gold star mother, was made honorary member of the unit.

THE PLAYERS GROUP of the A. A. U. W. is continuing its activities through the summer. The first meeting was an informal gathering at the home of Miss Fannie Boyls, 2445 Fifteenth street northwest, last night, when the group read a James Barrie play.

Those taking part in the reading were Miss Jacquelyn Pringle, Mrs. Howard Oldham and Miss Gladys Conry.

Judge Howorth Takes Leading Role at Parley

Presents Program Report at Board Meeting of Women's Clubs.

Grand Rapids, July 12.—A Washington woman, Judge Lucy Somerville Howorth, acting as chairman of the program coordination committee, took a leading role at the annual meeting of the board of directors of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

She presented the report of the legislative program drafted by delegates to the biennial convention in Atlantic City last July and under which the organization must proceed until delegates assemble in Kansas City, Mo., July, 1939.

The three items on the support program for national legislation are: The extension and improvement of the merit system in the selection, promotion and retirement of United States Government employes; adequate appropriations for the women's and children's bureaus; and the equal rights amendment to the United States Constitution.

The federation is acting also under a mandate to oppose legislation which proposes to discriminate against women in business and professions, including the clerical classifications.

In the field of international legislation, the federation will follow out the support items adopted last July which provide for continuance and furtherance of the reciprocal trade agreements program between the United States and foreign governments, and adherence of the United States to the Permanent Court of International Justice.

Other important recommendations included one from the public affairs committee, of which Miss Amy Lewellen, of Pullman, Wash., is chairman, urging that all State public affairs committees report on the number of offices held by women following the election in November, 1938.

From the education committee was one sponsoring a campaign for the appointment of trained vocational counselors in the schools, and another for the appointment and election of women on all boards of education.

With an education fund of more than $47,000 in the treasuries of 156 clubs belonging to the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, the question of how best to use this money has arisen, according to Miss Mary Armstrong reporting yesterday to the national board. Miss Armstrong was appointed chairman of a special committee to study educational funds and present the committee's findings.

Miss Madelyn Seabright, a member of Miss Armstrong's committee, made the suggestion in the chairman's report, that while national federation education funds are lying idle, it is uncertain how long the National Youth Administration, which is helping students will last.

"Students in high schools and colleges now are getting $15 or more a month for doing a piece of work and the money need not be returned,' 'she said. "Formerly the student had to borrow money and plan on returning it. Our funds could be used for scholarships instead of loan funds or help the more mature, deserving woman in retraining."

This question of the mature woman requires our thought. If other groups in the community are neglecting the needs of the mature woman and are p aying attention to youth, what is the responsibility of our own groups, made up of mature women, toward these groups?"

The complete report made recently by the federation on "Why Women Work" which was published in a pamphlet, has been submitted by request to the international labor office in Geneva, according to Miss Emma P. Hirth, chairman of the advisory committee on research yesterday.

Alexandria Club Hears Talbert Haslett, Barytone

Tlabert Haslett, barytone, sang last night the July meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Alexandria. He was accompanied at the piano by his sister, Annah Haslett Meeks, a member of the club.

The dinner meeting, at which about 30 were present, was held at the George Mason Hotel. Miss Elizabeth Apperson presided in the absence of Miss Corinne Reardon, the president, who is taking a special course at the University of Maryland. A report on the State convention was given by Miss Dolly Calahan, delegate from the club.

2 Capital Women At Scouts' Camp

Mrs. William Floyd Crosby and Mrs. O. G. Hankins, of Washington, are attending Camp Edith Macy, Girl Scout national training school at Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., for the council member's course which began July 6.

There are 23 women from Washington and six States at the camp known as the "university in the woods." Miss Hazel Allen, president of the American Camping Association and member of the Girl Scout national staff, is director of Camp Macy, and Miss Ida May Born, of New York, is director of training.

Training courses for all phases of recreational leadership given there and in 24 other centers throughout the country are planned by the Girl Scout national personnel division at headquarters in New York City. Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth, of Montclair, N. J., vice chairman of the Girl Scout national board of directors, is chairman of the division, with Miss Agnes Leahy, of New York City, as executive secretary.

leading their opponents on the basis of early returns. Will Rogers, Congressman-at-large, polled 2,587 votes in 86 precincts, compared with 841 for his nearest rival.

Other Representatives ahead were Wesley E. Disney, First District; Jack Nichols, Second District; Wilburn Cartwright, Third District; Lyle Boren, Fourth District; Jed Johnson, Sixth District; Sam Massingale, Seventh District, and Phil Ferguson, Eighth District.

Incumbents Find It Easy.

In the Fifth District, where Gomer Smith left the field wide open through his decision to make the Senate race, T. Bone McDonald, Edmond soil conservationist, paced Mike Monroney, Oklahoma City business man, and Merle G. Smith, Guthrie attorney.

State office incumbents generally were finding easy sailing.

The Republican primary voting was light and the indorsements given by a State "grassroots" convention were proving effective.

Harry O. Glasser, indorsed Enid attorney, was leading in a field of four for the Senate nomination, and Ross Rizley, former State Senator of Guymon, was ahead in the contest for Republican nomination as Governor.

Mae West Runs Third.

Josh Lee, Vinita farmer who bears the same name as Oklahoma's junior Senator, pulled slightly ahead of Joe C. Scott, incumbent, in the race for Democratic nomination as president of the State board of agriculture. Mae West, Oklahoma City, mother of seven, was running third in the contest for commissioner of charities and correction.

The election was expected to give President Roosevelt a speedy answer to his speech delivered here Saturday.

erted Senator Thomas had been of "enormous help" to the Administration.

He tossed a compliment to Gov. Marland for his oil conservation work.

The Oklahoma primary will give the President his first opportunity to gauge political effects of his transcontinental speaking tour.

En route from Washington, he spoke kind words for Senator Barkley, seeking renomination in Kentucky, and delivered pats on the back to Senator Bulkley, of Ohio, and Senator Caraway, of Arkansas.

In his Oklahoma City talk Mr. Roosevelt made no reference to Gomer Smith, Fifth District Congressman running against Thomas and Marland for the Senate nomination. Smith voted against the Administration farm bill and against the President's reorganization measure.

"Alfalfa Bill" took notice of the President's remarks, in a broadcast address last night, declaring if the governorship was an appointive office, he didn't want it.

Pluralities Will Win.

The candidates with pluralities will win the nominations, since the last legislature repealed the runoff primary law, passed in 1929.

With the exception of Gomer Smith, all of the State's nine Democratic Representatives asked renomination. Voters also selected nominees for 22 State offices, 43 district judges, 22 State Senate seats, 115 positions in the State House of Representatives, and numerous county offices.

Czechs Plan Retaliation For Nazi Confiscations

Prague, July 12 (AP).—Premier Milan Hodza's newspaper Venkov announced today the government is planning legislation which might be used as a reprisal against states which confiscate "for state purposes" without a fair return the property of Czechoslovak citizens living aboard.

Seizure of property of Czechoslovaks in Austria when the country was absorbed by Germany was cited as an instance.

or more of the executive agencies, and announced new appointments to the investigating staff.

Preceding the meeting, Assistant Attorney General Arnold announced appointment of Wendell Berge as alternate member of the committee for the Justice Department, and of John Abt, of the Justice Department legal staff, as the department's chief assistant in the work of the committee.

Arthur Himbert Named.

O'Mahoney named Arthur R. Himbert, of Laramie, Wyo., on the faculty of the University of Wyoming Law School and a former assistant counsel on the State department legal staff, as assistant to the committee, chairman. Named administrative assistant to the executive secretary of the committee, was Daniel Bertrand, of Barre, Vt. William Leary, of Salt Lake City, was appointed to the committee's staff.

O'Mahoney made the following assignment of Congressional members to each of the departments, under the committee's plan for "pairing off" the study in groups of twos:

Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, and Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, to the Justice Department and the Federal Trade Commission.

Representative Sumners, to the Treasury Department.

Representative Reece (Republican), of Tennessee, to the Commerce Department.

Representative Eicher (Democrat), of Iowa, to the Labor Department.

Senator O'Mahoney, to the SEC.

At the same time O'Mahoney appointed an "executive committee" of five to direct the routine course of the investigation when a quorum of the full committee is out of town. O'Mahoney will serve as chairman of the executive group. Other members named are Representative Sumners (Democrat), Texas; Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold; Assistant Secretary of Commerce Patterson and Isador Lubin, chief of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Douglas said the SEC will proceed "right away" to inquire into large preferred placements of security issues with insurance companies, but had not determined when subpenas would be issued to compel submission of information.

"Appropriate instructions authorizing the delegate of the United States to act for the President, in the event that the treaty is signed and ratified have been telegraphed to the delegate of the United States."

The accord recently reached between Bolivia and Paraguay through their delegates to the Chaco peace conference at Buenos Aires provided for a submission of the outstanding problems to arbitration.

Minister-Designate Braden has represented the United States in the peace negotiations for nearly three years. The war over a boundary dispute lasted three years and cost 100,000 lives.

[Others who have accepted the invitation, the United Press said, are President Roberto M. Ortiz of Argentina, Getulio Vargas of Brazil, Arturo Alessandri of Chile and Oscar Benavides of Peru. B. F. Crowson, 49, School Head, Dead

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlotte Hall, Md., July 12.—Lieut. Col. B. F. Crowson, 49, headmaster of Charlotte Hall Military Academy, died suddenly today in his fiftieth year. He had been head of the school for 15 years.

A graduate of Virginia Military Institute, Col. Crowson won Statewide fame for his career in education. He was noted for his skill in teaching military tactics to undergraduates, and for his understanding of young men.

Surviving Col. Crowson are the widow, Mrs. Gladys W. Crowson; a son, B. F. Crowson, jr., a student at the University of Mexico, and a daughter, Gladys Crowson.

Funeral services will be held at his home Friday at 11 a. m., followed by burial in the family plot here.

her, she added.

Asked about the newest break in the long case, she said:

"I don't want to comment on it."

Cole described Olson as rather slender with sharp, dark features. His clothes were old and his two-day growth of beard heavy. He wore a cap and shuffled as he walked, his head thrust forward and his eyes darting from side to side nervously, Cole added.

In Olson's confession, Cole said, the man broke into the Mattson house and seized the child in the presence of Charles' brother, sister and a young Seattle girl acquaintance.

Then he said he dashed with the boy down the precipitous cliff behind the sumptuous Mattson home and reached the beach in pitch blackness. A rowboat was moored there and he rowed with the boy for several hours across Commencement Bay to Dash Point, where he had parked his car.

Drove to Everett.

He then drove to Everett while the manhunt was being organized.

Cole said Olson insisted he had not put the body where it subsequently was found in newly fallen snow in a thicket near Everett 15 days later.

"I wrapped the body up and buried it," Cole quoted him as saying. "One other man knew where the body was buried and he must have dug it up and moved it."

The patrol chief said Olson gave him the name of the asserted accomplice who was arrested later today. Olson implicated the accomplice in several robberies.

Cole quoted Olson as saying he strangled the Mattson boy, then beat the child on the head and stabbed him. It was recalled the condition of the body at the time it was discovered indicated the stab wounds were inflicted after death.

Olson originally made a statement to Sheriff Melvin Oestreich of Adams County Sunday. He had been working on a farm near Ritzville, and Cole said he understood Olson had questioned his employers as to "what kind of a man the sheriff is."

Olson was placed under arrest by Oestreich and State Patrolman Jack Crooks after he had paid a call to the sheriff's office.

He was then brought to Tacoma.

Foes of Murphy Plan Own Ticket

Detroit, July 12 (AP).—The newly created Constitutional Democratic Party of Michigan, formed in opposition to Gov. Frank Murphy, called a State convention today for September 24 at Lansing.

Herman Kramer, chairman of a provisional State central committee, said the convention would draft a full State ticket.

The group, at today's meeting, attacked Gov. Murphy in a statement declaring the party "has fought too long to obtain a fooothold in Michigan to allow itself to be sacrificed on the altar of one man's ambition."

"It is fairly evident," the statement said, "that the force of Federal and State machines has scared off all primary opposition to Gov. Murphy."

175 Cuba Teachers Due for Visit Here

A group of 175 Cuban teachers and officials in education will arrive here tomorrow from Miami on a tour of the United States, sponsored by the department of education of Cuba.

Host to the visitors at a cocktail party will be Cuban Ambassador Pedro Martinez. The tourists also will be entertained at the Pan American Union and George Washington University.

After spending two days here, the group will leave for New York. Included among the visitors will be school directors and members of various boards of education, as well as teachers of high and elementary schools in the island republic.

"CAMELS AGREE WITH ME"

ROUND-UP TIME at the famous Pitchfork Outfit, 200,000-acre Wyoming ranch of Charles J. Belden. The picture above shows "Chuck" Curtis, one of Pitchfork's best at "heeling" calves. Exciting work, but it's plenty tough too. So "Chuck's" cigarette is Camel! "When I get dog-tired," he says, "a Camel gives a quick 'lift' to my energy!" And that goes for many another cow-puncher. For out west, too, Camel is the favorite cigarette.

COME NIGHTFALL, the bunch sets out at Cook George Weller's chuck-wagon. Ken Stingel wrangles his guitar, while the boys vocalize, "Home on the Range." Camels aplenty here, for, as Ted Riegel (right of coffee pot) puts it, "After you've tucked away a hearty meal, there's nothing like a Camel 'for digestion's sake'—and for extra-mild, tasty smokin' too. And most top-hands'll go along with that sentiment, all right. We say Camel's the cigarette that agrees with us—all 'round!"

Are Camels really different from other cigarettes? "Yes," say smokers in the west—and in the east—the north—the south! All over America, millions know the big difference Camels make in smoking pleasure. Camels set you right!

COW-PUNCHERS Curtis and Riegel certainly feel that there is a big difference between Camels and other cigarettes. Read what they say—at right!

"NO JUMPY NERVES FOR ME!" says "Chuck" Curtis, who needs every ounce of nerve-power for the exhausting work of riding herd—wrangling horses—roping more than a hundred calves a day. "Chuck" says: "It's a big point with me, havin' my nerves healthy. Camels don't get on my nerves. And Camels never get my throat to feelin' all roughed up and ticklish. Cow-punchers have a mighty friendly feelin' for Camels. They set us right!"

"Finer, more expensive tobaccos—that's why we smoke Camels," say the men who grow and grade tobacco

Planter Jesse T. Hardy brings out the fact that Camel buyers take the better grades on the market. He says: "For years Camel has bought my best tobacco—paid more to get it. We planters around here smoke Camels because we know Camel buys the finer tobaccos."

"Raising tobacco is my business," says John Thomas Caraway, veteran grower. "Camel bought the best of my last season's crop, as they have for many a year. So I know Camel gets finer, COSTLIER tobaccos. Naturally, Camel is the big favorite with us growers."

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Presidential Special, Salida, Colo., July 12, 1938.

As the President sat on the rear platform today at the bottom of the Royal Gorge, blinking into the sun up toward the hanging bridge 700 feet above, several who climbed out for a peek recalled the terse tribute paid the Grand Canyon by a friend in Al Smith's entourage in 1923. "I'm a so-and-so," said the New Yorker, awestruck, after gazing into the chasm several minutes. "Isn't nature a so-and-so."

* * * *

Mutely Senator Alva Adams gazed this morning at the Presidential lips at Pueblo, hoping for a mention of his name. None came, and the somewhat dissident Senator must campaign Colorado without a blessing. His rival, Judge Hilliard, didn't even show up at the train which is a break for Alva, who at least got into some pictures with F. D. R.

Maury Maverick. . . . missed a meal?

* * * *

HALLELUJA EXPRESS: Two casualties so far—Secret Service man Tom Qualters bruised a knuckle on Woody Hockaday, who wanted to shine the President's shoes, and another G-Man acquired a mild shiner in Texas—a tale confirmed only by the fact that he has been wearing colored glasses after dark. All three lady secretaries in the White House party—Misses LeHand, Barrows and Tully—wore shoes with their toes peeking out, for their view of the Royal Gorge.

"They think maybe it's Teddy"

That drawling, even tempered mystic, Lee O'Daniel, a homespun flour salesman running for Governor of Texas, quite captured the imagination of those of the Presidential party who let him. His opponents call him a city-bred imitation hillbilly carpet-bagger from the North, and accuse him of various sins. "So he calls me a fake hillbilly, eh," says O'Daniel into the mike. "Boys, strike up a tune."

And his quartet sings a parody called "He Hates Mountain Music."

* * * *

An impression persists that some of the citizens who lope in from the arroyos and gulches to see the President cherish a belief that it is Teddy they are to look at goggle-eyed. Or at least a reincarnation of Teddy.

At all events, Gov. Allred of Texas went to some pains yesterday in a platform speech to make it clear that it was not Teddy this time, but another and a greater Roosevelt. The Teddy legend is strong; when Teddy Junior campaigned for Governor in upper New York State many a patriot thought it was Teddy the first back again.

* * * *

Congressmen who leap aboard this train in the hope of a Presidential caress, in front of their own constituents or to clutch at a benediction, scowl and fidget and brood dismally for hours, afraid that they can't wangle their names into one of his platform speeches.

* * * *

Then, when Mr. Roosevelt relents under their blandishments and finally taps them for the "My Friend Congressman Zilch Club," their spirits soar, their appetites revive and they sit down to eat a big steak in the diner. Maury Maverick, an enthusiastic eater, missed a meal until he was befriended. Representative McFarlane didn't get his name mentioned, but he did get the President's autograph on a menu for his daughter.

* * * *

"To clutch at a benediction."

Long after midnight crowds gathered at these remote Western villages for a glimpse of the Presidential train long after he had gone to bed, hoping that he might still be awake to wave at them. To those who peer out from the compartments or the diner and club car, which are open all night, there's something unreal about the mosaic of upturned faces under the depot lights.

"Are you for Roosevelt?"

"Yes, if he'll come out and wave to us."

* * * *

Almost constantly there's a secret service man on the rear platform as the train bowls along between stops. Occasionally lone watchers on the hills and in the fields think he is the President and give him a yell, and he waves back obligingly.

OVERLAND MEDLEY: The Washington Zoo ought to acquire a specimen of Amon Carter's strange cattle—one a cross between a range cow and a Brahma bull, with a sizable hump, the other a cross between a cow and a buffalo. We have just passed through the land of high winds, with a cyclone cellar behind almost every house. And just now there were three lithe, long-limbed daughters of the plains standing in front of a ranch-house in the foot-hills, each waving an American flag.

Dodd Supporters Draft Strategy for Drive in Arlington

Tentative plans for an active campaign in Arlington County in behalf of the candidacy of William E. Dodd, jr., for the House were drafted last night at a rally meeting at the home of Frank L. Ball, jr.

Dodd, who seeks the seat now held by Representative Howard Smith, of Alexandria, answered charges he was not a Virginian by pointing to the fact he had been born in Virginia and spent most of his life there.

Unanimous support for Dodd was claimed yesterday for 200 members of the Southern Railway Shop Federation by J. W. Collins, federation secretary.

Judge Tells City It's 'All Right' Not to Raise Pay

Alexandria Council Told Recent State Increase Was Sufficient.

Corporation Court Judge William P. Woolls told the Alexandria City Council last night it will be all right with him if the council does not appropriate money to increase his salary.

Because the State recently voted to increase its share of judges' salaries, Judge Woolls now receives $6,900 a year. If the council continued to pay him the pay raise it voted last year, his salary would be $7,400. Judge Woolls said, in effect, that $6,900 was enough and the city could save its money.

On the motion of Councilman Henry Cooper, council voted against amending the zoning ordinance to permit two-family dwellings in areas zoned residential A.

The city's governing body decided to adjourn for the summer subject to call by the mayor to consider candidates for appointment as city manager. Candidates for the office were scrutinized at an executive session Monday night.

U. S. Veterans' Ban Is Denied By 2 Officials

Mitchell, Civil Service Head, and Doctor Say Charge Is False.

The president of the Civil Service Commission and a physician of the Public Health Service last night denied charges that a "positive effort" is now under way to prevent Federal employment of disabled war veterans.

Harry B. Mitchell, head of the commission, said that body is "more charitable" toward veterans than toward anyone else. He asserted the recent "rather alarming" increase in disability retirements from the Federal service has not resulted in any discrimination against wounded veterans.

"Our figures on the retirements are rather indefinite," Mitchell said, "and we are, therefore, contemplating a thorough study of the exact causes of the disabling illnesses in Government service. However, as yet we haven't sufficient funds for such a survey. And we certainly haven't exerted any pressure to prevent the appointment of disabled veterans to the positions they are fitted for."

A physician in the Public Health Service who, examines applicants for Government jobs also denied there had been any "tightening" policy. "We merely state what is wrong with the applicant," he said. "We are not permitted to make any generalizations as to his fitness for Government service, and we never have done so. Sometimes we are surprised when an applicant is rejected on health grounds—and sometimes we're surprised when he is accepted despite serious disability, but we don't express any judgment on such matters, so it's wrong to pick on our department.

The allegation that disabled veterans qualified for minor Government positions were termed "ineligible" by a Public Health Service physician was made Monday night by E. Claude Babcock, past president of the Disabled American Veterans.

W. Va. Youth Sentenced To 15 Years for Holdup

Fredericksburg, Va., July 12.—John Wade Wilson, 22, of Welch, W. Va., was sentenced to 15 years in the State penitentiary upon his plea of guilty to holding up and robbing Charles Zeigler, York (Pa.) traveling salesman.

Wilson was brought here after his arrest in Alexandria several weeks ago.

D. C. Commissioners Appoint Capt. Chapman Battalion Chief

Promotion Comes After 33-Year Service in Fire Department.

Thirty-three years after entering service of the District Fire Department, Capt. Harmon A. Chapman was appointed battalion chief yesterday by the District Commissioners.

In recommending the appointment to the Commissioners, Chief Charles E. Schrom said he was the "best qualified" to fill the position. Capt. Chapman has been in command of No. 8 engine company of the first battalion, and has been acting since 1929.

Capt. Chapman has been injured twice in recent months fighting fires, first last December fighting a blaze in a drug store at Twelfth and F streets northwest. In January he suffered a fractured shoulder fighting an awning store blaze on E street northwest.

His first commendation was in 1907 for calming a threatened panic in the old Academy Theater. He has been cited several times since then. He is director of the Firemen's Relief Association and of the Firemen's Family Relief Association.

He is married and the father of two sons, Ray, in Atlanta, Ga.; Marvin, with the Department of Agriculture, and a daughter, Peggy, a student at Roosevelt High School. He lives at 3927 Seventh street northwest.

Gordy Scores Factional Rift In Md. Party

Jackson - O'Conor Feud Called Selfish Fight of City Groups.

Control of Baltimore at Stake in Battle, Says Aspirant.

By the Associated Press.

Cambridge, Md., July 12.—State Comptroller William S. Gordy, jr., launched the active phase of his Democratic gubernatorial campaign here tonight with open criticism of factional disputes between Baltimore city rivals for the nomination.

Aligning himself with another county candidate, State Senate President Lansdale G. Sasscer, in decrying the city contest between Mayor Howard W. Jackson and Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor, Gordy said it was placing the Democratic party "in jeopardy."

Sasscer has frequently issued campaign statements and speeches asserting the Jackson-O'Conor feud might split the party and result in a Republican victory in November.

"I hope that loyal county Democrats realize the jeopardy in which our party is being placed by the endeavors of factional Baltimore city politicians who are attempting to control the statewide Democratic organization," Gordy told an American Legion meeting.

The city factions, he added, "are in reality more interested in the control of the next city administration and the Baltimore city delegation to the Legislature, which they hope to use for their own personal, selfish aims, than they are in Statewide Democratic success and the election of a Democratic governor."

Gordy drew a sharp line between the city and the counties in the campaign, emphasizing that "I ask you, as county people, to support me, as a county man, with the assurances that I have your best interests and welfare at heart—for I firmly believe that a county man can best serve you as governor . . ."

Martinsburg Firm Faces Charge of Polluting Creek

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 12.—A warrant was issued here yesterday by Justice C. Ward Nicklin for W. A. Whitney, superintendent of National Fruit Products Co., this city, an apple by-products plant, charging that he be allowed poisonous matter to be run from the plant into Tuscarora Creek here Friday, resulting in the death of thousands of fish.

The warrant was issued upon complaint of the Izaak Walton League and Game Protector Ted Whitacre, after samples of water had been analyzed, and which, the warrant said, showed presence of acid.

Navy Asks Bids For Constructions

The Navy invited bids yesterday for construction at Quantico, Va., and Annapolis, Md., provided for under recent grants of the Public Works Administration.

Bids will be opened August 3 for work at Quantico including construction of 20 apartment buildings, a store house, steam distribution, street lighting and outside sewerage, water and gas systems, roads, walks and storm drains at the Marine barracks.

Bids will be opened August 20 on 14 apartment buildings at or near the Annapolis Naval Academy. The buildings will be three stories. Each building will contain six apartments with two or three bedrooms.

Harrisonburg to Hold Safety Parade Today

Harrisonburg, Va., July 12.—Concluding the safety campaign of police and fire departments, a large parade will be held tomorrow afternoon to demonstrate to both pedestrians and drivers their individual responsibilities.

Entries in the parade include a driverless car, operated by remote control by John J. Lynch; wrecked cars, showing the property damage caused by careless driving, and ambulances to reflect the human suffering in traffic accidents. Police cars and fire trucks will lead the line-up.

Union Veteran Unable to Hear Tribute at Fort Stevens Rites

But John T. Ryan, 91, Who Helped Halt Invasion of Capital 74 Years Ago, Relives Crucial Day in Reservation Observance.

John T. Ryan, 91-year-old veteran of the Civil War, sat on a bench at Fort Stevens military reservation yesterday while tribute was paid to the men who gave their lives at that scene to halt the invasion of the Nation's Capital 74 years ago by Confederate soldiers.

With him was his wife Sally.

"I've got the best job in the world," Ryan said, as the main speaker of the program commemorating the anniversary of the Battle of Fort Stevens, was midway in his speech.

He couldn't hear the speaker, who at that very moment was asking the throng to bow in tribute to John T. Ryan. He couldn't hear the stirring words of James Yaden, past president of the Federation of Citizens Association, and a veteran of the Spanish-American War, who was telling those who came to celebrate the battle and the men who took part:

"We are here this evening, friends, to carry on a tradition which started many years ago. The observance of this great battle right here in Washington, which was one of the most momentous of the entire war."

"He's a Great Man."

"I haven't been feeling well recently," Ryan was saying, "ever since Congress adjourned."

"You know, I am the doorkeeper at the House of Representatives. The Executive door. The one the President uses. He's a great man. That's why my job is the best in the world.

"We have foes from within and from without," Yaden was saying, "and just as you see here today, we must forever keep our flags unfurled to show those who would abolish our form of government that we still keep and believe in the traditions of our country."

The stooped, aged veteran tried to hear the words of the speaker. He cupped his hand behind his ear. His wife, Sally, also tried to hear the speaker.

Joined Army at 17.

Ryan entered the Army at the age of 17. He joined the Eleventh Maryland Regiment in May of 1864 and was honorably discharged in June of 1865. On July 12, 1864, there met on the battlefield, of what is now Quackenbos street, between Thirteenth street and Georgia avenue, several companies of the Confederate Army and several of the Union Army. The Union Army was under Gen. Horatio G. Wright, the Confederate Army under Gen. Jubal Early.

It was a Tuesday. A hot day, just like yesterday. Georgia avenue was then a patch of dry clay. And the battle took place here. It was here also that Abraham Lincoln stood on the parapet exposed to the fire of sharpshooters until Gen. Wright ordered him to come down.

Yesterday there was no re-enactment of the battle, but there was music by the Navy School Band, a pledge of allegiance by Mrs. Bertha B. Brown, of the Department of the Potomac, Grand Army of the Republic; a speech by Yaden, and a crowd of persons who listened intently.

And John T. Ryan, whose company marched on to Baltimore, sat with his wife Sally reliving the days of the war.

Clarksburg, Md., Man Dies of Crash Injuries

Frederick, Md., July 12 (AP).—Injuries received in an automobile collision at Old Germantown proved fatal today to George Darby, 55, of Clarksburg.

The collision, which occured Saturday, involved a car in which Darby was riding alone, and another driven by Richard L. Murphy, of Gaithersburg. Murphy escaped injury. Melvin Dove, also of Gaithersburg, riding with Murphy, was treated for a leg injury.

'Reduce Tax' Faction Hit by Va. Democrat

Ruth Shoemaker Declares Group Would Find Problem Hard.

Remarks Made in Address to Woman's Club at Takoma Park.

Charges contained in a pamphlet published by the tax reduction Democratic faction were target of an address by Miss Ruth Shoemaker, county member of the Maryland House of Delegates, before the Takoma Park Women's Democratic Organization Club meeting last night at the Takoma Park firehouse.

Miss Shoemaker declared the faction will find reducing taxes a much harder task than they imagine looking in from the outside. She cited the Better Homes and Gardens Magazine as saying Montgomery County has a fair tax in its March issue.

She defended the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission charges for water and declared that cost of supplying water to the scattered homes of Montgomery County naturally is more expensive than in a closely settled community. Miss Shoemaker pointed out a committee of the House of Delegates investigated charges brought by Delegate Joseph A. Cantrel and gave the commission a clean bill of health.

Promises Cited.

The speaker cited promises of the faction to obey the mandates of the Montgomery County Civic Federation and declared the Democratic organization has given serious consideration to the federation's requests.

She said so many real estate men are in business in Montgomery County because most of them were farmers' sons whose land became too valuable to farm, so they naturally gravitated to real estate but continued exercise of their heritage of participating in county politics.

She opposed the abolition of the liquor control board, approved a central purchasing officer for the county and ridiculed the plank in the faction's platform which promises to reduce gas and electric rates, pointing out this is a State duty and not possible for county officers.

Miss Shoemaker attacked general reassessment of real estate as merely an effort to make Montgomery County pay more taxes to the State, where already it pays the second highest amount in the State.

Passed the Law.

She declared the Legislature passed a law which expressly gives the county commissioners power to equalize assessments.

Others who spoke were Mrs. Charles C. Ailes, vice president of the Women's Democratic Club of Chevy Chase; Miss Laura Gilliland, candidate for the Democratic State central committee; State Senator Stedman Prescott, candidate for the Democratic nomination for judge of the circuit court, who merely said "Hello"; Jack B. Diamond, past president of the Upper Montgomery County Young Men's Democratic Club; Mrs. Ralph Wells, president of the Silver Spring Women's Democratic Club; Park Commissioner Lacy Shaw, Charles S. Miner, editor of the Maryland News.

Mrs. Rex Ware, Mrs. George Titrington and Mrs. Emma Kennedy were in charge of the reception which followed the meeting and Mrs. Alice Lyddane presided.

Prince Georges Board Weighs Land Purchase

Part of Carroll Estate Urged as Site for Court Addition.

Purchase of about three acres of land belonging to the estate of John Carroll, first Catholic bishop in America, for construction of an addition to the courthouse at Upper Marlboro, Md., was taken under consideration by the Prince Georges County commissioners yesterday.

At the same time, the commissioners named a two-man board to conduct a preliminary study of expansion of the courthouse. Appointed to the board were Commissioner Vinton D. Cockey and Irving C. Root, engineer of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission.

Purchase of part of the Bishop Carroll estate, located adjacent to the present courthouse grounds and owned by the Archdiocese of Baltimore, was urged by three prominent residents of Upper Marlboro, who appeared before the commissioners at their meeting there yesterday.

There were Judge T. Van Clagett, president of the town's board of commissioners; Tilghman Davis, registrar of wills, and Samuel A. Wevill, newspaper publisher. They pointed out that the land could be used as a parking lot for those having business in the courthouse until such time as the county might obtain funds for construction of an addition to the present building.

In the first month of the rabies' quarantine in Prince Georges County, 125 stray dogs have been killed by county police, Sergt. Ralph Brown reported yesterday.

The quarantine, effective in the election districts of Chillum, Hyattsville and Riverdale require owners to keep their dogs confined on penalty of a fine of from $5 to $25 a day. Stray dogs may be shot on sight.

Dr. Mark Welsh, State veterinarian, who ordered a 90-day quarantine June 11 after a mad-dog had been discovered in the county, said he had requested that no dogs be killed wantonly.

Whenever possible, he said, dogs found running loose were returned to their owners with a warning against future violations.

The State Roads Commission has completed negotiations to purchase approximately eight miles of rights of way along the old Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis electric railway line from the District of Columbia boundary to High Bridge, in Prince Georges County.

Dr. Homer E. Tabler, retiring chairman of the commission, announced the price of the right of way, 66 feet wide in its entirety, would be determined later "by mutual agreement" between the commission and the receivers for the W. B. & A.

Commission officials said the right of way would be used to link the Crain Highway with Eastern avenue in Washington and eventually might provide a secondary route between Baltimore and Washington to relieve the traffic burden on other main highways.

The annual convention of the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers will be held at Hagerstown November 14-16, it was announced yesterday at the University of Maryland, College Park, where the Congress is holding its summer conference.

Selection of Hagerstown for the annual convention was made at a meeting of the executive board of the Congress. Mrs. Milton Moore, of Hagerstown, was named general chairman of the convention and Mrs. H. Ross Coppage, of Baltimore, was designated program chairman.

Speaking before the 100 delegates at the summer conference yesterday, Mrs. Charles E. Roe, field secretary of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, declared P.-T. A. work should make them better parents, friends and neighbors. Mrs. Roe led a round-table discussion on "The Purpose, Structure and Policies of the P.-T.A."

Representative Dewey Short (Republican), of Missouri, will speak at the annual outing of Prince Georges County Republicans Saturday at Glen Isle, Md., it was announced yesterday.

Mayor William C. Wedding, of Riverdale, Md., chairman of arrangements, announced that motor caravans would leave from Bladensburg and Upper Marlboro at 1:45 p. m. More than 500 persons are expected to attend the outing, sponsored by the county Republican Club, assisted by the Young People's Republican group.

Other speakers will include Oliver Metzerott, former State Senator from Prince Georges County and Frank Small, a member of the Republican Central Committee for the county.

The Maryland-National Capital Park and lanning Commission yesterday announced it has received a donation of 25 acres of park land in Prince Georges County from the National Broadcasting Co. The property is at the junction of Northwest Branch and Sligo Creek and will form a part of both of those parkways. It has a frontage of several hundred feet on Ager road and extends along Northwest Branch.

The site forms part of a 44-acre tract purchased by the National Broadcasting Co. and the portion not dedicated will be retained by the company for use as a broadcasting station. It will be improved as a natural woodland park to serve the locality.

Creek Death Still Far From Solved

Prince Frederick, Md., July 12 (AP).—The three-week-old death of Mrs. Esther Lewis, 30-year-old Washington widow, appeared headed for the "unsolved mystery" records tonight.

State's Attorney Arthur Dowell insisted today "it's still a murder case," though no clews as to the person or persons responsible have been found.

The body of a woman, an expectant mother, was discovered in Lyon Creek June 20. An examination disclosed that she was dead when her body entered the water.

"We haven't abandoned the case. I can't say that," Dowell said. "But I have no idea when we will recall the coroner's jury."

Fort Belvoir Unit Plans 'Invasion' Of Massanutten

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 12—Camping plans for the Fifth Regiment of Engineers stationed at Fort Belvoir, Va., and 200 college R. O. T. C. members, who are making a study of Stonewall Jackson's Valley campaign, have been changed, Capt. Gullatt announced here today.

The Army regiment of 48 officers and 450 men and R. O. T. C. members will camp Thursday night at Massanutten Caverns, east of Harrisonburg, and stage a review and parade there in the evening. They will ride and march here from Mount Jackson, where they spend tomorrow night and will not camp at Melrose Caverns, as originally planned.

The engineers will visit the Cross Keys and Port Republic battlefields near here, and then make a night march to Luray, where they will be picked up by trucks Friday and returned to the Fort. Lieut. W. W. Powens, an authority on Jackson's campaign, lectures each evening on the points visited during the day.

Arlington Fires Cost $2,530 in Month of June

Eight Grass Blazes, Six in Dwellings Among Total of 18.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Clarendon, Va., Tel. OXford 0509.

Losses in 18 fire calls in Arlington County in June amounted to $2,530, County Manager Frank C. Hanrahan reported yesterday.

Eight were grass blazes, six were dwellings, two automobiles caught fire and there was two false alarms.

Hanrahan reported 81 inspections in the month by County Fire Chief A. C. Schaffel. There were twelve calls for the county ambulance.

The application was approved by the Zoning Appeal Board at a recent meeting.

To safeguard the colored settlement in South Washington area of Arlington County from typhoid fever, the county health department is continuing its free clinic.

Started last week by Dr. Ralph G. Beachley, county health officer, and it will be conducted each Tuesday for the next four weeks by assistant Health Officer Dr. Edward Jones. The action was taken following the death of Edward Augustus, colored, of the 900 block Columbia pike, July 1. The case of typhoid fever is believed to have resulted from drinking contaminated well water.

Announcement was made yesterday at the office of the First Federal Savings & Loan Association that future meetings of the board of directors will be in the form of a dinner meeting the second Tuesday of each month. The meeting will be held at the Washington Golf and Country Club at 6:30 o'clock.

Sewer-Tapping Law Enforced In Alexandria

Property Owners Given Reasonable Time for Compliance.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Temple 3767
Delivery Service, phone Alex. 1400.

Acting City Manager Carl L. Budwesky and City Health Officer Dr. W. Lewis Schafer are taking steps to enforce the city ordinance requiring property owners to tap abutting sewers as a health precaution.

Property owners will be given a reasonable length of time in which to comply before court action is taken. An estimated 400 persons have not arranged for sewer connection from their property.

Miss Emma Sutherland, 45, of King and West streets, is at liberty because:

The weather is hot.

The city jail is not air-onditioned.

The jail is booked to capacity with women prisoners.

Miss Sutherland, in police court yesterday morning, was tried on a charge of violating the provision of the alcoholic beverage control law and fined $250, with $4.25 costs, and sentence to 30 days in jail. The fine and costs were made payable immediately, but the jail sentence was deferred until September 1, pending provision of additional quarters for women prisoners. She paid her fine.

According to the police, 32 pints of liquor was found in the house. The court ordered the house padlocked.

The drum and bugle corps of Squadron No. 24, Sons of the American Legion, will hold a meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock, in Gadsby's Tavern, and later participate in a parade on King street, in connection with the moonlight excursion to be sponsored on Friday night by Alexandria Post No. 24, American Legion.

The Alexandria Lions Club today will install recently elected officers. Fred Petirr, the retiring president, will conduct the ceremonies at the George Mason Hotel.

The officers are Aubrey Matter, president; Marvin Wilson, Charles Jones and Dr. Nathan Schuman, vice presidents; Howard Richardson, secretary-treasurer; W. Clifton Cunningham, tail twister, and John Jacobsen, lion tamer.

New members of the board of directors to serve with President Matter will be Edwin Burchell, Cary Blackwell, Clayton Taylor and Smiley Griesemer and Petitt.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Northern Virginia Hotel Corporation, which owns and operates the George Mason Hotel, was held on Monday in the hotel, showing the first mortgage reduced by $6,000 during the last year. This leaves a balance of $162,000 first mortgage and $99,000 second mortgage.

C. Page Waller is president of the board. John Barton Phillips was secretary of the meeting. Directors re-elected are Waller, C. S. Taylor Burke, Harry Hammond, Charles T. Nicholson, Benedict Weil, Luther H. Dudley, J. Leslie Kincaid, Edward Elmsted and Frank W. Case.

Dr. Robert South Barrett, of Alexandria, was chosen grand treasurer of the Grand Lodge of Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, in Atlantic City yesterday, at the annual convention of the organization. He was nominated by Judge Harry F. Kennedy, of Alexandria, who was accompanied to the meeting for this purpose by Elliott F. Hoffman, Howard D. Carter and Hannon E. Norris.

Nuisance Law Is Sought for Falls Church

Town Council Reappoints Samuel Styles to School Board.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. BOX 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Falls Church 2088-M.

The Falls Church Town Council last night reappointed Samuel Styles to the school board for a term of three years.

C. J. Galpin appeared before the council to ask the adoption of an ordinance prohibiting public nuisances and making them punishable by a fine of $25. In the tentative draft, which he submitted and was turned over to the committee on laws for consideration, he defined public nuisances to include all night parking of trucks on the streets, particularly in residential neighborhoods; mistreatment of animals, dogs which howl or whine at night, breeding dogs for sale on private premises.

A delegations of citizens appeared to ask the status of negotiations with the State Highway Department in regard to widening and surfacing of Broad street and to urge the council continue its refusal to grant the State permission to cut down the trees which, they said, forms the chief ornament of the town. Mayor L. P. Daniel declared that the State's plans for a 40-foot roadway, including curb and gutter, would mean cutting of 63 trees.

The county has refused the request so far and has asked District Engineer R. I. Mount, of Culpeper, for a conference in the endeavor to have the State compromise on a 38-foot road which would lie inside the line of all save a very few trees. Daniel also said that the State is ready to widen the Lee highway between Broad street and Route 50 (Lee boulevard) when the council provides the necessary additional right of way. This additional strip would necessitate cutting down the trees near the police station.

In response to requests for information when Columbia street will be improved Mayor Daniel stated that the council has already paid the State Highway Department to widen, grade and surface this road and the work will be done as soon as the State can arrange for the job.

The report of Fairfax County Dairy Herd Improvement Association No. 2 for last month shows there were 22 herds on test with 662 cows, of which 86 were dry; 6 were sold for beef and 3 for dairy purposes. The average milk production was 634 pounds and butterfat production 24.8 pounds. One hundred and two cows produced over 40 pounds of butterfat each.

The four high herds were owned by C. T. Rice, with an average of 899 pounds of milk, 30.6 pounds butterfat; B. F. Salsbury, with 627 pounds milk, 33 pounds butterfat; Mrs. Euterpe Economos, with 865 pounds milk, 32.3 pounds butterfat, and John S. Barbour, with 706 pounds of milk, 31.2 pounds butterfat.

The three high cows were owned by B. F. Salsbury, with an average production of 1,530 pounds milk, 84.2 pounds butterfat; C. T. Rice, 1,425 pounds milk, 65.5 pounds butterfat, and T. B. Mason, 1,566 pounds milk, 56.3 pounds butterfat.

Mrs. Frank Wickers, president of the Herndon Parent-Teacher Association has appointed the following committee chairmen for the year: Mrs. C. A. Seaton, general chairman, room mothers committee; Mrs. Arthur Hyde Buell, civic and home improvement; Mrs. Lulah Ferguson, educational; Mrs. Frederick W. Robinson, Mrs. George R. Bready, church and welfare; Mrs. Daniel L. Detwiler, social and recreation; Mrs. John McDaniel, membership; Mrs. W. R. Crabill, Mrs. A. H. Kirk, E. J. Heglar, Mrs. Ernest Gibson, program. Executive committee, Mrs. Frank Wickers, J. H. Rice, Mrs. C. A. Seaton, Mrs. Pearl Jacobs, Mrs. Dallas Hutchison, Miss Sadie Detwiler, Mrs. A. H. Kirk, Mrs. John E. Burgette.

* WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, JULY 13, 1938 17

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

(Headline—Pirates take league lead.)

This is a strange date for lhe Pittsburgh Pirates to be occupying first place in the National League. The presence of the Pirates at the top would occasion no amazement whatsover if the calendar read April, May or even June. But here it is nearly mid-July and the Pittsburgh club is up there. This is getting serious.

POVICH.

In former years, the Pirates have been known as a faint-hearted club. Almost annually they dashed off in front of the pack, only to collapes and find lower levels. They earned much the same reputation as the Cleveland clubs of the past—fast to start and equally fast to stop.

But here it is mid-July as we were saying, and the Pirates are up there. Moreover, they are up there not by grace of any huge lead amassed at the start of the race. They moved up there only yesterday, on the impetus of a 13-game winning streak as yet unbroken.

A 13-game streak at this stage of the season is significant. It is the mark of a team that is coming and is able to produce the best kind of baseball at the hottest stage of the race. The Pirates do not loom this time as a flash in the pan. They have been winning their games the hard way, by one run and by coming from behind. It's the good team that wins the close ones.

If the National League race does, indeed, result in a Pittsburgh triumph, it will be a popular turn of events. Fandom is slightly weary of the New York Giants as champions and weary, too, of their annual collapse before the Yankees in the World Series. If Pie Traynor can manage a pennant with his early season 10-1 shots it will be roundly hailed throughout the league because the soft-spoken Traynor is a delightful personality.

It was only a year ago at this time that Pittsburgh wolves were yelling for the scalp of Traynor. His Pirates, after a sensational early-season splurge, skidded into the second division. And last winter the Pittsburgh front office was about to offer Bucky Harris the managerial job before deciding to give Traynor one more chance to make good.

A pennant victory for any club but the Giants would please National League fans. Bill Terry and his haughty demeanor have contrived to make the Giants a much-hated club and there is a general belief in National League cities that another club would make a better fight of it in the World Series against the Yankees, or whoever happens to win the American League pennant.

A victory for either the Pirates, the Cubs or the Reds would be tremendously popular. Owner Phil Wrigley, who has spent nearly $1,000,000 in an attempt to bring the flag to the Cubs, has put himself solidly in the esteem of fandom. There would be probably a greater acclamation if the Reds won it. They are the true long shots in the pennant fight and Manager Bill McKechnie has displayed what managerial skill can do for a ball team.

But Pittsburgh newspapermen are not yet acclaiming the Pirates as pennant winners, despite the sensational streak that has landed the club at the top. They are slightly ware of the future. They have hailed the Pirates as pennant winners before, only to eat their words. In early May, Pittsburgh papers, excited by the club's early season successes, and particularly the feats of young Johnny Rizzo, went overboard. One paper, in screaming headlines, began the publication of Rizzo's life story. From the date the first installment appeared Rizzo went into a fearful slump. He is just snapping out of it.

In the American League there were developments yesterday that also might be significant. The Cleveland Indians lost a game and a half to the second-place Yankees and saw their lead dwindle to a mere half-game. Is it the beginning of the end for Vitt's club?

In other years, such a set-back did signal the collapse of the Indians, a notoriously poor road club. But there are serious doubts this season that the Indians are collapsible. The forthcoming series in New York with the Yankees

Yanks Trail ½ Game; Defeat Browns Twice

Take Opener, 7-3, and Nightcap, 10-5; Ruffing Holds St. Louis Safe, Leads Attack in First; Hadley Wins Second Tilt.

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 12.—The New York Yankees advanced within a half-game of first place today when they trimmed the St. Louis Browns in both ends of a double-header while the pace-setting Indians were losing to Washington.

The Yanks took the first game, 7 to 3, with Charley (Red) Ruffing leading the attack in quest of his twelfth victory of the season. They won the nightcap, 10 to 5, through some concentrated slugging and nine bases on balls issued by Howard Mills and Ed Linke.

Ruffing held the Browns to eight scattered hits and drove in three runs with a pair of doubles. Hadley yielded only seven blows, but had to be relieved by Johnny Murphy in the ninth after walking the first two men. Lou Gehrig and Joe DeMaggio both their fourteenth homers of the season.

Harlond Clift got his ninth for the Browns in the nightcap.

Zivic Beats Phil Furr

Bout Stopped in Third as Furr Is Cut.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Pittsburgh, July 12.—Phil Furr, the Washington (D. C.) welterweight, was the victim of a bad break here tonight when he suffered a bad cut above the left temple—caused by a butt—and lost to Fritzie Zivic, local boy, by a technical knockout after 1 minute 52 seconds of the third round of their scheduled ten-rounder.

Both boys had fought fairly even until half way through the second round when blood began streaming down Furr's face, partially blinding him. It was evodent that he had not been hit. During the minute rest period, Chris Dundee, Furr's pilot, worked frantically over his injured boy, but the inch-long wound was too big to close up and the blood continued to flow freely as the third heat got under way. Whereupon Referee Grayber stopped the bout to save Furr from more serious injury.

Furr weighed 146 and Zivic, 145.

Nick Camarata, 133¼, another Washington boy, made his debut before local ringworms in the semi-final and left quite an impression with the 3,000 fans when he won the decision over the rugged Tiger Walker, 136, a local colored boy.

Jimmy Thomson Put Out in First Round Play; Cooper Also Loses.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.
A Staff Correspondent.

Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., July 12.—Ralph Guldahl's attempt to add the P. G. A. match play championship to his pair of national open crowns was halted by the sub-par brand of golf displayed by Dick Metz, Don Juan of the links from Chicago, over the Shawnee Course here today.

The curly-haired potential film star birdied the seventeenth hole with a pair of fine wood shots and two careful putts and halved the last hole in par to win the greatest victory of the day, 1 up. The stymie was a prominent factor in his win, as three times the National Open king was handicapped by Metz's putts stopping in his line.

Aside from this upset, the 16 players left for the third round tomorrow, out of the original 64, are mostly the big shots that were supposed to win. True, Jimmy Thomson, Harry Cooper and Ed Dudley were jolted out of this twenty-first P. G. A. tourney, but when 48 players lose in a single day, some of the stars have to go.

The District and Middle Atlantic players made a hasty exit, all losing in the first round, and only Ernie Ball went past the sixteenth hole. Wiffy Cox lost to Johnny Revolta, 4 and 3, while Leo Walper bowed out by the same score to Gene Sarazen. Henry Picard ousted Andy Gibson, 3 and 2, while Ball carried Medalist Frank Moore to the nineteenth before losing.

Prominent among the double winners at the end of the twin 8-hole rounds were Denny Shute, champion the last two years, who was a total of 10 up for his matches in the morning, after being 1 down at the ninth, he rallied to beat Clyde Usina, of Stoneham, Mass., 3 and 2, and in the second round he turned in the biggest margin of the day, a 7-and-6 win over John Thoron, West Newton, Mass.

Sarazen in Stride.

Gene Sarazen, again playing the brand of golf that carried him to six national titles, routed Walper and Harry Nettelbladt, the latter 6 and 5. Henry Picard counted Gibson and Bob Shave among his victims, while Jimmy Demaret, San Francisco match-play champion defeated Frank Rodie, LaJolla, Calif., and Johnny Revolta in his victorious march.

Paul Runyan joined the favored winners by defeating Levi Lynch and Tony Manero, while Ray Mangrum, stringbean from Oakmont, Pa., defeated a fellow townsman in the morning and accounted for last year's finalist, Jug McSpaden, on the twentieth hole in the afternoon.

The only former open champion aside from Sarazen left among the 16 players is Billy Burke, marathon king, who won 2 and 1 over Willie Klein, and then rammed home a birdie 3 in the second round to stop Frank Moore's hot streak in one of the three extra-hole matches. Byron Nelson over Butch Kregor on the twentieth hole was the other.

Three names, Jim Foulis, of Hinsdale, Ill.; Marvin Stahl, of Lansing, Mich., and Harry Bassler, of Long Beach, Calif., are the only "strangers" remaining. Foulis pulled one of the major upsets by trouncing Host Pro Jimmy Thomson on the last hole after winning by a like margin over Willie Goggin.

Stahl defeated Clarence Clark and George Whitehead, while Bassler won a surprising 4 and 3 victory over Ed Dudley, after defeating Alex Gerlack.

Felix Serafin, Clark's Summit, Pa., two-time open champion entry, pulled the only real upset of the initial round by winning by a convincing 4 and 3 margin over Harry Cooper, and then winning surprise victory No. 2 over Ky Laffoon, 3 and 2.

He qualifies as the third round opponent of Slammin' Sammy Snead, who won as he pleased over Frank Champ and Terl Johnson, both matches by 4 and 3 margins.

Bucs Beat Cubs, 14-6, To Take League Lead

Todd Paces 17-Hit Rampage Against Five Chicago Hurlers; Gets Double With Bases Loaded, Home Run and Single.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 12.—The rampant Pittsburgh Pirates rode their season's record-breaking winning streak into first place in the National League today by trouncing the Chicago Cubs, 14 to 6, as New York lost to Brooklyn.

The victory gave the Bucs a season's record of 44 games won against 25 lost, for a percentage of .638, which gives them a 3-point margin over the Giants, who, with 47 games won and 27 lost, have a mark of .635. Pittsburgh, nevertheless, is a half-game behind in games won and lost.

It was the Bucs' thirteenth victory in a row, their best spurt since 1922, when they hung up a similar string, and they used 13 men in achieving it.

Al Todd, who together with Pirate Coach Jewel was fined $50 today by Ford Frick, league president, for abusive conduct toward Umpire George Barr yesterday, led the Pittsburgh 17-hit rampage against five Cub pitchers. Todd slammed out a double with the bases loaded, a homer and a single to drive in five runs. Paul Waner had four singles.

Pittsburgh routed Tex Carleton with a first-inning four-run blast and in the sixth did the same to Charlie Root and Bob Logan with another cluster of four.

Feller Hurls Game Today

Kelly Will Face Bob on Mound.

Bob Feller will take his fast ball to the mound today in an attempt to even the series for the Cleveland Indians against the Nats at Griffith Stadium.

Manager Oscar Vitt, who yesterday sent Dennis Galehouse, one of his second-flight pitchers, against the Nats with disastrous results, will be pulling no punches this afternoon. Feller permitted only eight hits and one run in his last appearance against the Nats—on June 16 at Cleveland where he won a 4-1 game.

Manager Bucky Harris will send the newest sensation of his pitching staff—Harry Kelley, against the Indians. Since being restored to a starting role, the veteran Kelly has won three of his four assignments, two of his victories being shut-outs.

Umpire Bill Summers yesterday ejected Coach Johnny Bassler, of the Indians, from the game in the second inning. Disturbed by constant yelling from the Cleveland dugout, Umpire Summers warned the Indians to curb their shouts. Then he detected Bassler making funny faces and banished him from the game.

George Washington Case's improvement as an outfielder was strikingly displayed yesterday in the eighth inning when with a man on base, none out and Washington leading by a single run, he galloped far back toward the right-center wall for a spectacular catch of Ken Keltner's terrific drive.

Elon Hogsett's ability to strike out Earl Averill was no drawback to the Nats yesterday. In both the fifth and seventh innings he slipped sharp-breaking curves past Averill for third strikes, the last time with a man on third base.

Cox, Walper Gibson and Ball Beaten

All District, Middle Atlantic Players Out of Play.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Shawnee on the Delaware, Pa., July 12.—Wiffy Cox and Leo Walper, Washington's representatives in the P. G. A. Championship, lasted only 15 holes in the first match play round today as Johnny Revolta and Gene Sarazen, a pair of very capable shotmakers, won by respective 4 and 3 margins.

The other Middle Atlantic players, Andy Gibson, Baltimore, and Errie Ball, Charlottesville, met with like fates but by closer margins, the latter taking Medalist Frank Moore to the nineteenth hole before losing, while Gibson bowed out on the sixteenth to Henry Picard by a 3-and-2 margin.

Cox was off to a good start against Revolta, winning the first and third holes with a par and birdie, but Johnny holed a 20-footer on the fifth and scrambled to a 2-up lead at the turn with a birdie. After halving ten in pars, Johnny hit a birdie streak of three in a row, including a deuce on the twelfth, where he chipped in, to take a 5-up lead. Cox's second birdie on 14 reduced the margin to 4, but a halve in regulation figures on the fifteenth sealed Cox's doom, his fifth first-round defeat in five P. G. A. championships. Revolta was 4 under par.

Walper parred eight consecutive holes against Sarazen—but that was after he lost four of the first five, two to pars and two to birdies. A far superior putting touch was directly responsible for Sarazen's victory, as he holed five putts of 10 feet and over, three for pars that halved Walper and two for wins. They halved every hole after Sarazen's two on the fifth, ten in a row.

Gibson also had putting trouble. Picard won the second and fourth for a 2 up lead and curled in a 20-footer on the ninth for a 3-up margin. They halved in pars through 12 before Gibson won his first hole, with a birdie on 13. Picard got it back on 14 and they halved the sixteenth, the par 3 over the Delaware River, and it was the last time Andy will cross it in this tournament.

West's Long Fly Scores Bluege in 9th

Griffs Rally After Hale's Homer Ties Up Count and Take Game.

By Shirley Povich.

After a slight delay in the ninth inning, occasioned by Odell Hale's dramatic, last-ditch home run with two out that tied the score at 8-8, the Nats achieved their fifth straight victory yesterday.

They beat the league-leading Cleveland Indians, 9 to 8, in their own half of the last inning in a sort of bloodless uprising marked by only one hit, a bunt. A fly ball off the bat of Sammy West produced the game-winning run.

Big Bill Zuber put the winning run on base when he walked Rick Ferrell, first man to face him in the ninth. For that crime, Zuber was withdrawn and Manager Oscar Vitt gave the pitching job to tall Johnny Humphries, another of Cleveland's fire-balling rookies.

West Comes Through.

Humphries found himself knee-deep in trouble almost immediately. Elon Hogsett, attempting to sacrifice, pushed a well-hit bunt between the pitcher and Third Baseman Keltner, and Humphries lost his footing in an attempt to field the ball. Ferrell reached second and Hogsett was safe on first.

In his eagerness to prevent George Case from bunting, Humphries walked the hitter, thus filling the bases, and the 10,000 customers pleaded loudly for Buddy Lewis to produce some kind of a well-hit ball. But Humphries blazed three fast balls past Lewis and struck him out. He slipped two strikes past Sammy West with great rapidity and the 10,000 had great misgivings.

Then on the next pitch West swatted a fly ball into left field. Bluege, running for Ferrell, beat Jeff Heath's none-too-capable throw to the plate and Washington won a hectic ball game.

Then Came Hale.

It was indeed hectic, with the first two Cleveland men to go to bat scoring. Four times the score was tied thereafter, but there was no indication that the Nats would have to go to bat in the ninth, when with an 8-7 lead Hogsett retired the first two hitters to face him.

Then along came Odell Hale. The long-hitting second baseman had as yet hit no home run. He had hit a single and a double and a triple, but no homer. However, Hogsett's first pitch to him in the ninth produced the homer—a terrific blast over Al Simmons' head high into the leftfield bleachers that tied the score.

In winning the ball game the Nats performed the feat of scoring nine runs on seven hits. The Indians muscled nine hits off Ken Chase, Pete Appleton and Hogsett. The Tribe used four pitchers.

Appleton Takes Over.

Chase and Dennis Galehouse, who were the opening hurlers, were quickly routed out of the ball game. Chase departed in the second inning after giving up two runs and walking two batters in the second. A pass to Webb, a triple by Heath and a single by Hale produced two Cleveland runs in the first inning before Chase could get anybody out.

The Nats tied the score at 2-2 in their half of the inning after Case beat out a bunt and Lewis and West walked to fill the bases with none out. Simmons' long fly and West's grounder produced the tying runs.

When Chase walked Hemsley and Galehouse in the second inning

Cleveland's utility player, Webb (left), was safe at second on this play in the fourth inning of yesterday's game with Washington. Cecil Travis, Nats' shortstop, had to stretch out on the ground to make the catch—too late.

Baldy, $63.70 Shot, Takes Bester Memorial Purse at Hagerstown

Wins Initial Race Out of Track Chute

Time of 1:08 3-5 Mark for Distance; 5,000 Fans Jam Park.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Fair Grounds, Hagerstown, Md., July 12.—While a scattered few cheered lustily and the majority of a crowd of 5,000 looked on programs to determine the name of No. 6, R. V. Parrish's Baldy, a $63.70 shot, galloped to victory in the Harry E. Bester Memorial Purse. The customers, witnessing the opening of 10 days of racing, installed Washoe Valley, the Charles Town sprint champion, as the favorite, but the gallant filly ended her winning streak after four successes.

She could only finish third today while Morley Firth, a 35-1 shot, took down second money in the field of eight. Washoe Valley had plenty of excuses, however. She broke in a tangle, stumbled at the first turn and was forced to race wide for the remainder of the journey.

Baldy, claimed by his owner at Wheeling and a considerable sprinter in his youth, found his 7-year-old legs packing plenty of spring today. Jockey A. Gaither had him away in front and there wasn't a catcher in the gang behind him.

The winner's time of 1:08 3-5 goes as a track record for the distance of 150 feet less than five and one-half furlongs. It was the first feature race out of the new chute and over the Mason-Dixon course.

The Jones camera installed here for the first time, did not have to be called into action, Baldy winning by a comfortable length and a half.

Those in the crowd who backed Nancy Reed and Boro Poker in the daily double started the day right by cashing a $20.90 mutuel.

The combination of Owner-Trainer Mike Grant and Jockey Leon Garrett, which has clicked many times on the half-milers, accounted for the first race with Nancy Reed, from Agawam, providing the running. She was a $4.50 favorite and led Nob to the wire by a length and a half. Web Foot was third. Both Nob and Nancy Reed almost went down at the first turn.

Boro Poker, trained by Chuck Frost, led throughout to win the second race and paid $8.60. Chessie was blocked by the winner at the first turn and was second the remainder of the way. Running Water was third. Lou Machado rode the winner.

After three horses tossed their riders at the post, the third race finally got under way and Scout Rose, a $4 favorite, won by a length over Cats Cradle with Jimmy S. a distant third. The winner, recently shipped from Agawam, was well handled by Jockey Mannie Berg.

The Grant-Garrett combination made it two for the day when Hi Swing, another New Englander, won the fourth race. Paying $9.20, Hi Swing took the measure of an excellent field, the majority of the heavily played horses being back. Match Point was second and Royal Business third.

Baldy Wins Bester Memorial Handicap

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BALDY, $63.70, $23.00, $8.40; MORLEY FIRTH, $26.00, $7.70; WASHOE VALLEY, $3.20.

BALDY, first away and escaping interference at break, drew out on MORLEY FIRTH and was kept to drive to end. MORLEY FIRTH was hard ridden and showed good effort. WASHOE VALLEY broke in tangle and stumbled at first turn, improving position on outside thereafter and closed full of run. BUCKLEY'S PRIDE was bothered by WASHOE VALLEY at first turn, recovered and came to inside to close with bold rush.

SIXTH RACE—About 1 1-16 miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 5:10. Off 5:11½. Winner, Mrs. H. Horst's b. m. Bull Lea Winner At Arlington Park

Chicago, July 12 (AP).—Bull Lea, Warren Wright's 3-year-old thoroughbred, made his first appearance today since running in the Pimlico Preakness and carried off the Lakeside Purse, 1-mile feature at Arlington Park.

Bull Lea, ridden by Irving Anderson, won by a length and a half over Frank Seremba's Fairflax. Stands Alone was third.

Anderson held the son of Bull Dog—Rose Leaves in restraint as A. G. Tarn's Wise Sox set the early pace, but made his move at the head of the stretch as Wise Fox quit. Bull Lea ran the distance in 1:36 4-5.

Nominated for both Arlington classic and the Arlington Gold Cup races, Bull Lea today paid $3 to win, $2.60 to place and $2.20 to show.

At The Post ....

With Bill Bennings.

Selections at Hagerstown.

Dear Al:

First-day customers here were pleased to hear the voice of William H. Paulsgrove, a Hagerstown boy, over the loud speaker system. He made his track debut at Charles Town and did a swell job, keeping the patrons informed. He is adding the same big-league touch here. There was no canned music on the air and quite a few customers asked what had become of the "Sweet Violets" record that went over big in this section a couple of years ago. The Benningites started the day right. They were "covered all over" with money after my daily double hit. Harry A. Manley, president of the Cumberland track, was a visitor. He watched Harold E. Bester, local general manager, perspire as he tried to answer a million questions and put 100 applicants in 25 positions. Earl Waldon, mutual manager, had his hands full with a young army seeking places behind the windows. Johnny Shanks, Washington jockey, is going to try to change his luck by not riding here. He was injured here twice, breaking his wrist last year and in addition was disqualified on a winner several years ago that meant a lot to him. Lou Machado and the Feltners have come to a parting of the ways for some reason they will not divulge. Jockey Buddy Root appeared this morning in a gray ensemble, suit and shirt to match. One fair reader wrote in for a Hagerstown badge and addressed the envelope "Will Jennings." Ain't fame fleeting. Here's some more winners—and I do mean some more.

First race—Geodesian turned in some nice efforts at Agawam and seems nicely placed in today's opener. Needs only the right ride. Asterisk was a consistent money performer at Charles Town and the added route may give this one an excellent chance. Howellville raced encouragingly at Delaware Park and deserves some attention.

Second race—Topsie H. turned in fair efforts at the other track and needs only an alert getaway to assure her a purse in this company. Double On has worked well at Charles Town and ran poorly. Might surprise unless some of the "also eligibles" are in action. Look Forward to take care of the others.

Third race—Xmas Carol has plenty of early foot and with the start so important here, I'm going to take a chance. Philigal should like the softer track and is dangerous. Hary Allen has to come from behind, but is a threat.

Fourth race—Golden Key was prominent in Delaware racing and may be the right one here. Stand By has plenty of speed and looms as the one to beat. Jadaan won here last year and should go well.

Fifth race—Magic Line went in good fashion at the other course. Runs near the top in all races and should be right there in this field. Gee Sharp and Reigh Tetrarch for the place and show awards.

Sixth race—Shot and Shell closed at Charles Town in a blaze of glory and appears headed for another purse in this field. Happy Road and Helen Bab to take care of the others.

Seventh race—Machilla defeated about the same kind at the West Virginia meeting and appears capable of taking this event. Lucky Turn and Timepiece for the other money places.

Best bet—Golden Key.

Metz Upsets Guldahl, 1 Up, In Pro Play

Golf

championships will meet a potential stumbling block today in Jimmy Hines, who showed a liking for the seventeenth green by dumping Alex Watson and Frank Walsh by 3 and 1 and 2 and 1 margins.

Nelson vs. Bassler and Stahl vs. Foulis are the other upper bracket pairings, while in the other, Horton Smith, impressive in winning over Mike de Massey and Leo Diegel, tangles with Burke. Mangrum and Runyan, the long and short of it, meet while Sarazen vs. Demaret and Picard vs. Metz, a likely showstealer, complete the round before the quarter-final encounters. All are over the 36-hole route.

Guldahl was out in 35, 2 under regulation and 1 up over Metz, but at the fifteenth tee was all square. Several times on the next few holes he was disgusted with his shots and banged his clubs to the ground or over the gallery. On the fifteenth green he knocked Metz's ball over the green.

Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., July 12 (AP).—Pairings for tomorrow's 36-hole third-round matches in the national P. G. A. championship:

Officials Named For Bel Air Meet

Baltimore, July 12 (AP).—Officials for the 10-day race meeting beginning at Bel Air July 27 were approved today by the State Racing Commission.

The meeting, conducted by the Harford County Fair Association, is the second of the State's half-mile seson and follows the program opened today at Hagerstown.

Work on the new clubhouse at Bel Air is nearing completion and the building will be ready by July 24, said General Manager G. Ray Bryson. Other track improvements include erection of 160 additional stalls and opening of a new dining room.

Eight races will be run daily, seven on the flat and one over the jumps.

The Chief, Stagehand, Arrive for Cup Race

Chicago, July 12 (AP).—Earle Sande, trainer for Col. Maxwell Howard, notified Arlington Park officials today that The Chief and Stagehand would arrive in Chicago Friday and be pointed for the $30,000 classic stakes July 23 and the $25,000 Arlington Cup.

Maryland Amateur Mixed 2-Ball Play Opens Here Today

Down In Front

By Richards Vidmer.

Some years ago in the National Open at Olympia Fields, Al Watrous, playing down one fairway, spotted Johnny Farrell, followed only by his caddy, playing an adjoining hole.

"How are you going, Johnny?" he called out.

"Great!" replied the smiling Farrell, who at the moment was leading the field by a wide margin. "I've never played better in my life. I'm breaking the course record."

VIDMER.

"That's fine!" said Watrous, then added in surprise, "Where's your gallery?"

Farrell grinned back.

"Over behind the clubhouse watching Hagen play mumblety-peg!" he said.

* * * *

Which wasn't such an exaggeration as it seems. Wherever Hagen was in those days there the gallery gathered. He had the color, the charm and the personality that attracted the crowd, on or off the golf course. And times haven't changed very much.

It's been a long time—too long a time—since The Haig has been around this part of the country, but while he was roaming the globe, playing exhibition matches with Joe Kirkwood in foreign lands, absent from the United States for more than a year, he still was not forgotten.

And this week, while the leading professionals in the country are furnishing the main attraction at Shawnee-on-the-Delaware as they compete in match play for the P. G. A. title, which Denny Shute has won two years in a row, The Haig still furnishes the side show. A good part of the gallery would rather just listen to him than watch the others play.

Hagen isn't playing himself. He offered lack of practice as his excuse for not entering the event, but there is a suspicion that his desire to mingle with his old friends after his long absence may have been an influential factor.

Besides, he has won the P. G. A. title four times during the course of his career. In fact, he's won every title within his reach—the National Open twice, the British Open four times, the Metropolitan and the Western each three times, and the North and South four times—the list is much too long.

* * * *

But for 25 years The Haig has been a magnet for the gallery, whether he was the reigning champion or not. When he played his memorable match in Florida against Bob Jones, beating the Emperor by the overwhelming margin of 12 and 11 in a 36-hole match, John McGraw was in the gallery at Sarasota. On the last hole Jones had a 6-footer for his par. Hagen was 30 feet away for the cup. If he missed that putt it wouldn't make a great difference. He had the match wrapped up and tucked away anyway, but The Haig knocked his ball in for a half.

On the way back to the clubhouse someone asked McGraw what he thought of Hagen. McGraw shook his head.

"I think he's a great ballplayer gone to waste," said the Giants' manager, sensing the competitive spirit, the nerve control and the perfect poise of the golfer.

And as a matter of fact, McGraw may not have been far wrong, not that Hagen wasted his life playing golf. In his reigning years, and he ruled a long time, he made $90,000 to $100,000 annually from exhibitions, endorsements, the sale of clubs, in prize money and associated ways. But he really wanted to be a ballplayer in the beginning.

He pitched for the Rochester High School team before he ever swung a club, and later on he was offered a contract by the Phillies. But by that time he had made a few dollars as a caddy, hit a few balls and discovered that there was more gold to be made in golf.

* * * *

In 1913 Francis Ouimet, an unknown youngster from Boston, tied with the great Harry Vardon and Ted Ray and beat the two veterans in the play-off. Ouimet immediately became a hero and in the excitement no one paid much attention to the young fellow who finished fourth, but it happened to be Walter Hagen playing in his first Open championship. The next year he won it.

That was the beginning of his career. From that time on he drew the crowds. Even when someone else was breaking the course record. For Hagen had a way with him, a swaggering sort of way that appealed to the people. Probably because he made good on his boasts so many times, nothing seemed impossible.

He went out for an exhibition match, having bet $1,000 that he would break the course record, a rather large statement, as anyone will understand who realizes all the things that can cost strokes on a golf course. The record was 69, and after Hagen had taken 67 strokes he was still 30 feet away from the eighteenth cup.

He studied the line a second, crouched briefly over his ball, stroked and then turned and walked away without looking where it went.

"Huh, I certainly wouldn't miss a putt like that with $1,000 riding on it," he grinned, and even as he said it the ball dropped for a new course record.

He was always sure of himself like that, and his confidence often made his opponents quake. There was a time when he was going to play an important match with Gene Sarazen, over a course that was strange to him but quite familiar to the little Roman. Hagen would have liked to look over the layout, but because of a blistered foot he didn't want to wa[illegible] around the 18 holes and s[illegible] morning sitting on the [illegible] porch with his foot [illegible] up in a chair. [illegible]en Sarazen came along and offered to show him around, Hagen shook his head, but not wanting Gene to know about his lameness replied:

"Never mind, Gene. It isn't necessary. I've sent my caddy out to look it over. That's enough."

Tournament Scheduled at Manor Club

Flower of Washington and Baltimore Golf to Take Part.

The flower of Washington and Baltimore amateur golf talent will risk wilting under the broiling summer sun today on the Manor Club course in the annual 18-hole Maryland State Amateur Mixed Two-Ball Tournament. The first squad will get under way at 10 a. m. More than 100 will compete.

One potent championship threat was wrecked when Volney Burnett, golfing fireman, paired with Mrs. Betty Meckley, burned his hands so severely yesterday while working at his trade on the American Ice Co. blaze as to require hospital attention. Burnett's lunch hooks will be okay for golfing again, the saw-bone assured him, but not for a couple of months.

Mrs. Meckley will be on hand for her noon tee-off with another partner; but no matter who it is, rivals will feel less fearful.

A strong D. C. "dark horse" entry is the team of Marian Brown and Buddy Sharkey. This duo can trip over the fairway in scores which demand respect from the foremost amateur-lay combinations in this region.

Mrs. John Lever and Mel Livingston will smack out the opening ball at 10 o'clock, followed by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kreuzberg and Mrs. Betty Meckley and her "mystery" companion. The final foursome, Mrs. Marian Varner and Emmet Gary, and Mrs. J. G. Johnson and Carl Johnson, will tee off at 3 o'clock. The event is a selective drive, alternate shots affair.

Pairings:

10:00—Mrs. John Lever and M. Livingston.
12:00—Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kreuzberg. Mrs. Betty Meckley and Volney Burnett.
12:20—Miss Effie Bowes and John V. D. Tweedy and partners.

Muncaster Cup Play Will Conclude Today.

Washington Golf and Country Club ladies wind up their battle for possession of the Dr. Stewart B. Muncaster Cup with 18 holes today. The first twosome or threesome will tee off at 8 a. m.

Yesterday's opening 18 holes saw Mrs. Edward Hotze take a one-stroke lead over Mrs. H. B. Master in Flight A. Mrs. Hotze turned in low gross of 91, which, with a 16 handicap, gave her 75, while Mrs. Master had 100-24, 76. Mrs. Fred Nesbit is third with 103-25, 78.

Three are deadlocked for fourth place with 80's, Mrs. J. E. McCabe, Mrs. Wilda Martin and Mrs. W. F. Draper. Flight A is for those with a handicap of 25 or less.

Mrs. O. M. Reed is setting a burning pace in Flight B with a 74, with Mrs. P. D. Patterson two strokes behind. Mrs. Lafayette Franklin, Mrs. W. E. Niles, Mrs. G. F. Freer and Mrs. E. V. Wilson are tied for third place with 83. Flight B includes golfers with handicaps over 26.

Seventeen are participating in Flight A and 15 in Flight B. The Muncaster Cup has been in competition for seven years.

Junior Golf To Greiner

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, July 12.—Walter Greiner, 22-year-old assistant pro at Woodholme Country Club, won the Maryland State junior open golf crown today by firing a 2-under-par 70 to outclass a field of 73 youngsters, including his brother, Otto.

Runner-up was Carroll Boggs, 20, of Cumberland, who posted a 76 over the 18-hole layout at the Baltimore Country Club. Next in line was Eddie Johnston, of Forest Park, whose 77 took the prize for the 15-16 year-old division.

Otto Greiner, 18-year-old State and Middle Atlantic amateur champion, posted a 78, as did Charles Bassler, Rolling Road caddie. Bassler shot a 38, one stroke better than Greiner, to win the 17-18-year-old division prize in a 9-hole play-off.

Walter Greiner, with a red-hot putter, shot the first nine in 33, 4 under par. He was erratic in the back nine and scored a 37, 2 over par.

Galento the Gladiator Gets a Royal Reception

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Fight fans of Philadelphia turned out Monday night in numbers variously estimated from 100,000 to 500,000 to cheer the arrival of "Two-Ton" Tony Galento who came to pitch his training camp for his July 26 fight with John Henry Lewis, the light-heavyweight champion. The rotund tavern keeper, who is currently rated No. 1 challenger for the world's heavyweight crown is shown nonchalantly quaffing his favorite drink during the procession of welcome.

Dodgers Top Giants, 13-5

New York Drops to 2d in League Standings.

Brooklyn, July 12 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers dropped the New York Giants into second place in the National League standings today when they whipped their interborough rivals for the first time in 11 games this season.

The final score was 13 to 5, but the Dodgers actually won the game in the first inning when they coupled four hits, and as many walks with four Giant errors to score eight runs. The defeat left Bill Terry's men three percentage points behind the Pirates, who chalked up their thirteenth straight victory at the expense of the Cubs. It also was only the second time since April 27 that the Giants have been out of first place.

Nats Defeat Indians, 9-8

Nats

Pete Appleton took over the job. He was no roaring success. A double by Heath and a triple by Hale established the Indians in a 5-2 lead.

By the end of the third the Nats had tied the score. Jimmy Wasdell swatted a home run over the rightfield wall to knock Galehouse out of the box in the second inning and against the veteran, Earl Whitehill, in the third the Nats came up with 2 more runs. Myer authored both. He hit an inside-the-park homer with West on base.

Elon Hogsett, who took over the pitching job for the Nats at the start of the third inning, yielded 2 unearned runs in the fourth and the Indians went in front, 7 to 5. Buddy Lewis' muff on what would have been the third out, was followed by Hale's double to short center which West failed to hold and 2 runs scored.

Thereafter, until the ninth, when Hale hit his homer, Hogsett was immense, giving up only two hits. The Nats cut the Indians' lead to 7 to 6 in the fifth when Buddy Lewis tripled against the right center wall, and in the sixth they went to the front for the first time, 8 to 7.

That sixth inning was a brutal one for Whitehill, who should have escaped undamaged. After he walked Myer, he disposed of Travis and Wasdell easily enough, but Hale fumbled Ferrell's grounder and the tying run scored from third. Then a three-bagger was hit by—of all people—Hogsett, whose drive into the rightfield corner scored Ferrell with the run that put the Nats ahead, 8 to 7.

Those were the figures that obtained until the ninth, when the Indians wasted a lot of everybody's time by tying the score and forcing the Nats to go to bat and win the ball game all over again.

may leave a lasting imprint on the league race.

Vitt's club, however, has not folded against the Yankees this year. In ten games between the two teams, Cleveland has won six. During the last Western invasion of the Yanks, the Indians won three straight to turn back a New York challenge. There are signs that it is a different kind of Cleveland ball club that is now winging out in front.

O'Mahoney and Ernie Dusek Headline Weekly Grapple Bill

Danno O'Mahoney, moon-faced Irish lad who was picking shamrocks and digging in the peat bogs when the famed Dusek riot squad was terrorizing the East, meets up with one of the clan tomorrow night at Griffith Stadium where he tackles Ernie in the feature bout of the weekly wrestling show.

It is one of those grudge matches with a side order of revenge, for Ernie has pledged himself to kick out Danno's teeth for the uncouth manner in which he handled young Joe Dusek two weeks ago. The Irishman was in rare form that night, flattening the puffing Joseph in some 35 minutes—almost a main bout record.

Promoter Joe Turner, who has rounded up such a wild collection of gladiators for the evening he's almost afraid to get closer to them than his telephone, has promised to get "Crusher" Casey for the winner. Casey, it appears, is the bait in all these bouts, for Uncle Joe has promised to get him for every matman from Rob Roy Mackey to the present day.

Both O'Mahoney and Ernie Dusek, oddly enough, have unsullied records in Washington, although both have been balanced precariously on the brink of defeat several times. Hence, tomorrow night's affair possibly would end in a draw if the boys care to preserve their records. But from the way Ernie's talking Danno won't be with us long after the referee gives them the go signal.

Danno smiles pleasantly when such talk is heard and suspicion is rife that he may have a hunk of the Blarney Stone hidden in his pants pocketa for any emergencies.

The preliminary bouts are extraordinarily good, what with Jack League, Milld Middlekauf, Mike Mazurki, Slim Zimblema, Hank Barber and Joe Maynard judiciously paired for the evening's festivities.

Chisox Wins Over A's, 8-6

Get Six Runs in First Half Rally to Win.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, July 12.—The Chicago White Sox banged Lynn Nelson for six runs in the first inning today and then fought off a closing rally by the Athletics to score an 8-to-6 victory.

It was the eighth straight loss for the A's.

Home runs by Mike Kreevich and Joe Kuhel accounted for five of the six runs. Kreevich hit his with one on while Kuhel came through with his circuit clout with two on.

The Sox scored twice more in the fourth on Luke Appling's single after Al Williams had filled the bases on three bases on balls.

Monte Stratton yielded 12 hits, but was effective in the pinches.

Young and Justice Sign With Redskins

The Champion Redskins' grid roster neared its full strength yesterday when Bill Young, a guard, and Halfback Ed Justice returned their signed contracts to headquarters.

Young, who is beginning his second season in pro football, blossomed into stardom late in the season, reaching his peak in the championship game with the Chicago Bears. Nominally a tackle, he was inserted at guard to stop the Bears' running attack and fulfilled Coach Ray Flaherty's fondest expectations.

Justice, who has served two years, in paid ranks, was on the receiving end of a majority of Sammy Baugh's passes, and starred in this role against the New York Giants and Bears.

Ritzenberg Wins Public Parks Match

Defeats Henry Gardner for Third Straight Net Victory.

Allie Ritzenberg, top-seeded player in the Public Parks tennis tourney, captured his third straight tournament victory yesterday, defeating Henry Gardner, 6—2, 6—2, in the feature match at Rock Creek Park courts. The match was closer than the score would indicate, however, Ritzenberg's play in the first set was ragged, but his lower-bracket could not capitalize upon his adversary's erratic performance.

In other matches in the men's singles, Tom Sherbourne, fourth-seeded netman, defeated Abe Brooks, 6—1, 6—4. The polo-playing Sherbourne had a comparatively easy match yesterday, in sharp comparison to his grueling match Sunday when he was extended to three sets before he disposed of his first-round opponent. Hugh Trigg eliminated Larry St. Jean, 7—5, 6—3, and Mel Tarpley disposed of Bernie Blankin, George Washington University frosh ace, 6—0, 6—1.

The feature doubles match of the day found Allie Ritzenberg teaming with Mel Tarpley to win their second doubles match of the tournament, defeating Capt. Sherbourne and Capt. S. Guevera, 6—2, 6—4. Ritzenberg and the clever Tarpley teamed beautifully, executing superb back-court shots, and finally won out over their clever opponents.

Quarter-final matches in the women's singles division were held yesterday, with Mr. Dorette Miller, seeded No. 1, winning over Kay Baker, 6-2, 6-4. Willie O'Steen, former playground champ, and seeded No. 2, defeated Joan Bransford, winning the first set in easy fashion, and staving off the final thrust of her adversary in the second. The scores of the matches were 6—0, 7—5.

The semifinal round of the women's division will be reached tomorrow when Mrs. Miller faces third-seeded Charlotte Decker, and Willie O'Steen clashes with fourth-seeded Edith McCulloch.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

Men's Singles.

Tom Sherburne defeated Abe Brooks, 6—1, 6—4. Hugh Trigg defeated Larry St. Jean, 7—5, 6—3. Mel Tarpley defeated Bernie Blankin, 6—0, 6—1. Allie Ritzenberg defeated Henry Gardner, 6—2, 6—2. Capt. S. Guevera defeated Harry March, 7—5, 7—5. Bob Bradley defeated Will Morris, 6—2, 6—3.

Men's Doubles.

Deck and Smith defeated Truetheart and Huls, 6—2, 6—1. Allie Ritzenberg and Tarpley defeated Sherburne and Guevera, 6—2, 6—4. Haney and Hy Ritzenberg defeated Herbert and Brooks, 7—5, 7—5. Judd and Bradley and Baker and Doyle drew. Judd and Bradley won the first set, 6—1, and Baker and Doyle won the second, 6—4. The third set was postponed until tomorrow because of darkness.

Women's Singles.

Dorette Miller defeated Kay Baker, 6—2, 6—4; Edith McCulloch defeated Hazel Bishopp, 6—1, 6—1; Charolette Decker defeated Eleanor Voith, 6—3, 6—4; Willie O'Steen defeated Joan Bransford, 6—0, 7—5.

David Is Leader In Western Golf

South Bend, Ind., July 12 (AP).—Johnny David, strapping 20-year-old golfer from Indianapolis, clipped 2 strokes off par today in registering a 34, 35—69 to lead the field of 149 playing the first 18 holes in the 36-hole qualifying round of the thirty-eighth annual Western Amateur golf championship tournament.

David, a Purdue University student who consistently whacked the ball 280 yards, put together four birdies and an eagle to offset poor putting and bad approaches on two holes to take a 1-stroke lead over Henry Castillo, of Louisiana State University and Larry Mollerfi Quincy, Ill.

Man of the Month

By Arch McDonald.

(WJSV-Wheaties Baseball Commentator.)

(Each day, Arch McDonald distributes 10 points among the Nats whose play was most helpful to the Washington Club. At the end of each month The Washington Post will award to the leading player a gift in token of the honor of being The Post-Wheaties "Man of the Month.")

Buddy Myer takes the lead in the Man of the Month contest following his meritorious performance against the Indians yesterday, but to Elon Hogsett goes the bulk of the latest award of points.

To Hogsett, five points, because he pitched five-hit ball as a relief pitcher in the last seven innings, because only one of the three runs he allowed were earned, and because he contributed a triple and a single to the Nats' attack.

To Myer, two points, because he drove in two runs with his third-inning homer that tied the score at 5-5.

To Sammy West, two points, because he broke up the ball game with his long fly in the ninth inning and because he hit an important single in the third.

To Jimmy Wasdell, one point, because he aided in cutting down the Indians' lead in the second inning with his over-the-wall home run.

The Score.

Cecil Travis	11	Zeke Bonura	5
Jimmy Wasdell	11	Rick Ferrell	5
George Case	10	Wes Ferrell	4
Sammy West	9	Pete Appleton	4

Scalzo and Dupre Headline Next Monday's Fight Show

Bout Is Second in Featherweight Elimination Tournament—Looks Like a Good One.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Pete Scalzo, the lean Italian pillow-pusher with the thick Greek accent, and Tony Dupre, New England featherweight champion, headline the ring program Monday night at Griffith Stadium.

Their bout will be over the 10-round route—the second in an elimination tournament sponsored by Messrs. Turner and Ahearn to determine the No. 1 contender for Henry Armstrong's crown.

On paper it shapes up as another of those every-man-for-himself affairs, but following immediately after Joey Archibald's sensational duel with Mike Belloise it will have to be a knock-down, drag-out affair to satisfy a critical audience.

Scalzo, rated sixth among the featherweights by the National Boxing Association, probably will be a decided favorite, but Dupre, ninth-ranking 126-pounder, has more than an outside chance. The muscular Manchester counter-puncher boxed the ears off Archibald two years ago in a whirlwind argument for the New England bantam and featherweight crowns.

He got up off the canvas after carlessly bumping into a left hook and gave Lou Gevinson the worst threshing of his career here last year, and more recently added the long, thin Abe Denner, a good looking New York prospect, to his lengthening list of victims. He really needs no introduction, for Washington fans are well acquainted with his merits.

Scalzo has piled up the amazing total of 41 victories in 42 bouts, losing only to Belloise in a hotly disputed bout. He has shown twice in Washington, winning both bouts by knockouts. He disposed of Al Gillette in one round, and won from George Carlo by a T.K.O. in five the night Pete Sharron gave Gevinson a boxing lesson.

Hunt Wins In 2d Round

Gil Victor by 6—0, 6—0 in Maryland Net.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, July 12.—Gilbert Hunt, of Washington, seeded No. 2 player, won added support from fans favoring him to win the Maryland men's tennis championship tournament when he flashed through his second round match today without allowing his opponent a game.

Hunt defeated Joe Challiss, an unseeded entry, 6—0, 6—0. His easy victory stood out in a day that saw one vaunted player defeated and several others slide through by narrow margins.

Harold Surface, top-ranking player from Kansas City, defeated Joe Skrentney, unseeded, in the first round, 6—3, 6—0, and disposed of C. B. Levering in the second round, 6—1, 6—2.

An upset of the day was the defeat of Douglas Cameron, Canadian Davis Cup player, who went down before Isadore Bellis, of the University of Pennsylvania, 6—0, 6—1.

Bellis met defeat himself in the second round, losing after a hard battle to Robert Peacock, 3—6, 7—5, 6—2.

John McDiarmid, Chicago ace ranked sixth, won an easy second-round victory over Albert Shapiro, 6—1, 6—1. Ernie Sutter, New Orleans player seeded ninth, advanced to the third round by defeating F. B. Harvey, jr., 6—0, 6—0.

Barney Welsh, defending champion from Rockville, Md., and Frank Kovacs, Californian seeded No. 12, were idle today after gaining the fourth round in matches yesterday.

Eddie Cinotti Leads All-Star Italian Nine

With Eddie Cinotti officially designated as manager, the Italian All-Star diamond aggregation will get down to work for its scheduled clash with the Jewish All-Stars at Ballston July 27.

Cinotti is rounding up all the top-flight Italian-American players in and around Washington and plans to call a drill within a few days. Cinotti has been long identified with local sandlot baseball.

Soaring Corn Prices Send Wheat Higher

3 Cent Rise Follows Reports of Severe Crop Damage.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 12.—Corn whirled suddenly skyward 3 cents a bushel today, reaching new high price records for the season and giving a big hoist to other grain.

Speculative buying of corn broadened to large proportions aroused by reports that hot weather threatened to bring about severe crop damage. Previous conspicuous sellers of corn were among the most active buyers today, and there were indications that export purchasing of corn recently had been much heavier than heretofore estimated. Traders took particular notice that the Government forecast showed 300,000,000 bushels less corn than last year in Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

At the close, corn futures were at the day's top level, 2⅛@3 cents above yesterday's finish, July 60⅜, September 61⅞@62, December 61¾@61⅞; wheat 2⅛@2½ up, July 73⅝@73¾, September 74¾@74⅞; oats ½ to 1 cent advanced; rye showing 1⅞@2 cents gain, and provisions a jump of 10 to 17 cents.

Control Fund Halts Sterling Decline

New York, July 12 (AP).—The foreign exchange market was highly unsettled today as the dollar continued to strengthen itself abroad and the British government control fund used its resources to protect the pound sterling from a continuance of the sharp decline of the past few days.

Excitement prevailed in London in early trading when the sterling rate fell to $4.92½, in terms of the dollar. The control fund moved in, began selling dollars in quantity and steadied the British currency, which closed in London at $4.93. In subsequent trading in New York, however, the pound declined to $4.92⅝, a new low for more than a year, before rallying slightly, and closed at $4.92¾.

Cotton Rallies; Oct. 8.79 Cents

New York, July 12 (AP). — Early losses in cotton were followed by rallies today in sympathy with firmness of stocks. October, which had recovered from 8.66 to 8.84, closed at 8.79, with final prices 5 to 9 points net higher.

The opening was 1 to 5 points lower influenced by easy foreign markets, selling from abroad and July liquidation against 57 notices. With prices slightly more than $2.50 a bale under the recent highs, a little trade price fixing and other scale down buying appeared. After active positions had sold up to net gains of 13 to 14 points there was a disposition to take profits and final quotations were 3 to 5 points under the best.

$100,000,000 Bills 2.1 Times Subscribed

The Secretary of the Treasury announced yesterday that the tenders for $100,000,000, or thereabouts, of 92-day Treasury bills, to be dated July 13, and to mature October 13, 1938, which were offered on July 8, were opened at the Federal Reserve banks.

The total applied for was $210,024,000, of which $100,214,000 was accepted.

New Monopoly Probe Might Prove Harmful

Antitrust Laws Seen as Another Obstacle to Recovery.

New York, July 12.—The present Congressional investigation of monopolies is probably next to the wages and hours law in fundamental importance, among the actions of the recent session of Congress, according to the Standard Statistics Co. In fact, if this investigation produces a crop of antitrust suits or proposals for more stringent antitrust laws, it might prove to be a prime disturbing factor at a time when price relationships are unstable and the forward movement of recovery is checked by innumerable uncertainties.

The target of the inquiry will probably be those industries in which there are a relatively few dominant producers. For example, the recent Government study of the farm equipment industry uncovered eight leading firms, a fact which could probably have been established by an hour's search of the statistics company's corporation records.

It should not occasion surprise that the price for a standard article, whether produced by 6 firms or 600, is identical at one time and in one place. Effective competition itself produces this result and any other result would be ridiculous. The monopoly investigation, therefore, seems likely to concern itself with whether prices are fixed by tacit or expressed agreement, and which concerns are dominant in the price-fixing, and whether the price is "too high."

The state of doubt engendered by the new laws and investigations may continue a discouraging factor in regard to long-range planning for industrial expansion, on which any sustained and vigorous recovery will probably have to rest, as in the past. It does not, of course, prevent shorter recovery movements based upon consumption, which the Government can and will probably stimulate.

United Fruit Nets $5,550,000 in Half

New York, July 12 (AP).—Estimated profit of United Fruit Co. for the six months ended Julie 30, as reported today, was $5,550,000, before taxes, compared with a profit of $7,592,000 the first half of 1937.

Estimated profit for the June quarter was $3,024,000, before taxes, against profit of $2,526,000 the preceding quarter. Per share earnings on this basis would be $1.91 for the six months against $2.62 in the comparable period last year.

Brewster Aeronautical.

New York, July 12.—Brewster Aeronautical Corporation for the six months ended June 30 earned, after taxes, $210,397.28, or 60.1 cents a share on the 350,000 outstanding common shares of $1 par. This compares with a net loss of $45,299.67 in the previous period.

Stocks Resume Their Advance as Favorable News Is Received as to Business Conditions.

New York, July 12.—Cessation of the selling which had depressed prices on Monday, buoyant commodity markets, scattered reports of business improvement and vague rumors that wage readjustments are near in steel and rail industries, enhancing earnings prospects of those groups, caused the recently indecisive stock market to return to the advance today.

Gains were larger and more general than were declines on the proceding day and volume increased about 600,000 shares. Speculative bonds followed common and preferred stocks on the upside, with high-grade liens, including Governments, narrow and dull.

Gyrations on European exchanges attracted interest as the pound underwent another sinking spell and received support from the British stabilization fund. Dutch guilders broke 55 cents at one time, closing 22 points off, and other European exchanges receded in terms of the dollar. The London gold price at $34.8244 was the highest in a year.

Opening Was Low.

Stocks started a trifle lower with a bit of selling still in evidence in the first hour. The tide turned under an assortment of leaders. Sugars were bought briskly in anticipation of quota changes which would reduce supplies and make for higher prices in the commodity. Aviations resumed their advance and traders on the long side started gunning for the shorts as soon as it became apparent that a good floor of buying existed beneath the general list. Official data on the size of the short interest and stocks most affected had been given by the stock exchange late Monday.

Chrysler Advances.

Chrysler, posted as the stock with the largest short interest on June 30, of 99,290 shares, closed at 67, up 3⅛, and Steel common and General Motors, other issues which have been the principal targets of shorts, rose 3⅜ and 1⅝, respectively. These gains, however, were not unusual in a session in which the longs had it all their own way. American Can rose 3⅜; Johns Manville, 4½; Du Pont, 4⅞, while Westinhouse, Union Pacific, Bethlehem Steel, B-M-T preferred and scores of others were ahead a point or more. The composite of 100 key stocks on the big board was up 0.97 point against a drop of 0.62 point the day before.

Steel and Rails Up.

Steels led the rise with coppers, blue chip manufacturing, stores, motors and rails only slightly less strong. Oils and utilities and the rail equipments were less favored. Yellow Truck was the active leader with a gain of 1⅜ on turnover of 44,300 shares.

Rail Bonds Stronger.

Speculative railroad bonds and local traction issues were the main attractions in the listed bond market today. These groups moved upward as buying of equities was resumed and as rumors of unification progress spread. United States Treasury and other high-grade money market bonds were in good request on the rapid over-subscription of the new RFC notes. Foreign dollar issues were uncertain. Turnover in all bonds was $8,330,000 against $5,650,000 the previous day.

Carriers Move Upward.

The carrier group moved irregularly upward, as buyers continued to size up the results of the passenger fare increase. Eastern rail bonds showed better results than those of Western roads, although the latter also improved. Default bonds were uncertain. Among local tractions, B. M. T. 4½ A's took the lead with a gain of 3 points, while Interborough issues also advanced sharply. International Telephone 4½s due next year were highly active and a fraction nearer par on the announcement that financing for a subsidiary has been arranged and funds for the maturity assured. Holding company issues and other special groups were firm.

Treasury Issues Gain.

Among long-term Treasury issues gains of 1-32 to 4-32 point were the rule. Institutional investors turned their attention to the long bonds again, after rapid oversubscription of the $200,000,000 RFC notes. Guaranteed bonds of the farm and home corporations were quiet. Treasury notes and discount bills did not vary much in counter trading. Highest grade utility, railroad and industrial bonds were steady.

Polish bonds tumbled sharply in the foreign section, in reflection of similar losses in London. German and Austrian bonds were steady, as there is less connection between quotes here and in London than in the Polish issues. Latin-American default bonds were dull and mostly lower. Japanese and Italian bonds were idle and mostly lower. The high grade Canadians, Australians and Scandinavians were steady.

Lockheed to Build $140,000 Addition

Burbank, July 11.—First unit in its expansion program to provide additional factory floor area to handle the largest backlog of orders in its history was announced today by the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation. The new building will be a $140,000 assembly hangar, the largest single addition ever made at the factory here. General construction will start August 1, officers of the company said, and completion is scheduled for September 15.

Addition of this hangar and other units now under consideration will enable the Lockheed factory to complete between 15 and 20 planes monthly during 1939, it was said.

Rail Prospects Are Favorable As Costs Rise

Wages, Taxes and Material Costs Continue to Be Burdensome.

New York, July 12.—Traffic prospects for the railroads are relatively favorable, although there is little hope for relief from burdensome wages, taxes and material costs, according to a new study of the railroad industry in Poor's Industry and Investment Surveys.

"A second normal agricultural year, together with satisfactory foreign demand, should bolster grain and cotton shipments, while the improved business outlook heralds better industrial traffic," states the survey. "Intense and growing competition, however, will continue a restrictive force, rendering most difficult the current weak financial position of the rails.

"To allow each form of transportation to carry only that traffic for which it is best suited economically would appear the logical solution and should best meet the competitive problem. This would involve extensive consolidation of railroad plants, together with the elimination of competing or hopelessly unprofitable routes.

"With further freight rate increases unlikely, the principal hope for the railroads is a rise in the volume of traffic. This now appears in prospect, with agricultural production again normal and modest recovery in the steel and building industries a logical expectation."

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, July 12.—Industrial securities were generally lower following Monday's decline in Wall street and partly due to disappointing metal production figures. Rayon, rubber and tobacco shares were in supply and domestic rails were weak. Transatlantic issues declined 1 to 3 points with U. S. Steel closing at 56½. European bonds and the giltedged section followed the downward trend. A slight rally took place near the close.

Paris—The bourse closed with a steady tone and price movements during the session were narrow. Government bonds were in better demand, rentes finishing unchanged to 40 centimes up. Bank of France issue lost 80 francs and Suez Canal was off 20.

Liverpool—Wheat futures declined a half penny early on the bearish American spring wheat estimate, but rallied and closed ⅛d to ⅜d net higher. The advance here followed higher American prices today and small stocks in merchants hands. Cotton futures eased in sympathy with lower New York prices and favorable crop advices. Closing quotations were 9 to 11 points lower.

Tobacco Markets.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., July 12.—Maryland—Receipts declined to 1,101 hhds., which was caused by dry weather, while sales showed a slight increase, totaling 928 hhds. There has been no material change in prices for any grade.

Ohio—Receipts, 20 hhds.; sales, 9 hhds.

Maryland—1937 crop: Firm leaf: Nondescript, 3.00@5.00; common, 5.00@12.00; medium, 13.00@30.00; good to fine red, 31.00@40.00. Seconds: Common, 4.00@10.00; medium, 11.00@20.00; good to fine, 21.00@35.00.

N. B.—Badly mixed hhds. from $2 to $5 lower.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia. In re: Condemnation of land for the extension of 28th Street, Southeast, from its present southern terminus at the easterly boundary of Parcel 213/33 to Alabama Avenue for the widening of Naylor Road between Texas Avenue and Good Hope Road, Southeast, and for the extension of Austin Street, between 28th and 30th Streets, Southeast, in the District of Columbia. District Court, No. 2548. NOTICE AND ORDER OF PUBLICATION. Notice is hereby given that the Commissioners of the District of Columbia (pursuant to a certain provision of the Act of Congress, approved March 4, 1913, entitled "An Act making appropriations for the expenses of the government of the District of Columbia, for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1914, and for other purposes," whereby they are authorized to open, extend, or widen any street, avenue, road or highway to conform with the plan of the permanent system of highways in that portion of the District of Columbia outside of the cities of Washington and Georgetown adopted under the Act of Congress approved March 2, 1893, as amended by the Acts of Congress approved June 28, 1898, and May 28, 1926, respectively, by condemnation under the provisions of subchapter One of Chapter XV of the Code of Law for the District of Columbia), have filed a petition in this Court praying the condemnation of the land necessary for the extension of 28th Street, Southeast, from the present southern terminus at the easterly boundary of Parcel 213/33 to Alabama Avenue, for the widening of Naylor Road between Texas Avenue and Good Hope Road, Southeast, and for the extension of Austin Street, between 28th and 30th Streets, Southeast, in the District of Columbia, as shown on a map or plat filed with the said petition, as a part thereof and praying also that this Court empanel a jury in accordance with the law provided for in such cases to assess the damages each owner of the land to be taken may sustain by reason of the said extension of 28th Street, Southeast, from its present southern terminus at the easterly boundary of Parcel 213/33 to Alabama Avenue, for the widening of Naylor Road between Texas Avenue and Good Hope Road, Southeast, and for the extension of Austin Street, between 28th and 30th Streets, Southeast, in the District of Columbia, and the condemnation of the land necessary for the purpose thereof, and to assess the benefits resulting therefrom, plus all or any part of the costs and expenses of said proceedings, upon any lands which the jury may find will be benefited, as provided for in and by the aforesaid Act of Congress approved May 28, 1926, it is, by the Court, this 30th day of June, 1938, ORDERED That all persons having any interest in these proceedings be and they are hereby warned and commanded to appear in this Court on or before the 4TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1938, at 10 o'clock A. M., and continue in attendance until the Court shall have made its final order ratifying and confirming the award of damages and the assessment of benefits of the jury to be empaneled and sworn herein: and it is further ORDERED That a copy of this notice and order be published twice a week for two successive weeks in the Washington Evening Star, The Washington Post and the Washington Herald, newspapers published in the said District, commencing at least twenty days before the said 4th day of October, 1938. It is further ORDERED That a copy of this notice and order be served by the United States Marshal, or his deputies, upon each of the owners of the fee of the land to be condemned herein, as may be found by the said Marshal, or his deputies within the District of Columbia, and upon tenants and occupants of the same, before the said 4th day of October, A. D. 1938. By the Court. ALFRED A. WHEAT, Chief Justice. A true copy. Test. (Seal.) CHARLES E. STEWART, Clerk. By H. B. DERTZBAUGH, Assistant Clerk. 13.14.20.21

FOR SALE
Advertisements are sometimes misleading—no house is good value unless it pleases you in every respect and unless it provides for your family the proper setting and social atmosphere. Here is a new Williamsburg brick containing 4 bedrooms and 4 baths, club room, 3 fireplaces, maid's quarters and storage attic. Its setting is a wooded lot beautified by a sparkling spring-fed brook in a carefully controlled development providing fine social background. The property is priced closely at $17,850 and is in every sense a splendid value. Open daily until 9 p. m. For complete information call Mr. Boothby or Mr. Child, DI. 6830 or evenings EM. 4643.

NORTH CLEVELAND PARK

How to Torture Your Husband.

Bob Burns Says—

I don't believe that authors and artists are any more temperamental than anybody else. I believe that it's perfectly natural for anybody to be sensitive about something they create themselves.

I was talking to a sales manager of a firm out here the other day and he said: "I don't mind my stenographer chewin' gum, powdering, painting or loafing, but it sure gets me when she yawns while I'm dictating one of my snappy sales letters."

Anti-Semitism No Peril to U.S., Institute Told

America More Likely to Remain Sane, Says Charlottesville Man.

By the Associated Press.

Charlottesville, Va., July 12.—The Rev. J. Eliot Ross, author and lecturer of Charlottesville, told the Institute of Public Affairs tonight that "America, as a whole, will not be swept off its feet in an anti-Jewish campaign."

Discussing the question, "Are we facing anti-Semitism in the United States?" the speaker said "the United States is more likely to remain sane with the major portion of the world than go crazy with Germany."

The Rev. Holmes Rolston, D. D., pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Rockbridge Baths, Va., another speaker at the twelfth annual institute at the University of Virginia, said the church is "in very serious danger of having its message controlled by the financial groups to which the church looks for support."

"A Heartsick World."

Rabbi William Greenburg, of Charlotte, N. C., said "the church and the synagogue must recognize that there can be no healthy religion in an unhealthy society," while Father Edward H. Stephens, director of the Diocesan Missionary Fathers, Richmond, asserted that "the primary interest of the Church of Christ in the future of an insecure world is to establish the order, the discipline and the reign of authority of Christ in a heartsick world."

W. J. Cameron, of the Ford Motor Co., spoke on the interdependence of farm and industry tonight.

The Woman's National Farm and Garden Association, in an all-day conference, heard Dr. Frank C. Boudreau, director of the Milbank Memorial Fund; Charles J. Brand, chairman of the American Committee on the International Institute of Agriculture, in Rome, and Mrs. A. L. Hopkins, of the Michigan State Federation of Woman's Clubs, Bear Lake, Mich.

Maj. Frank P. Evans, chairman of the Unemployment Compensation Commission for Virginia, told a round table on social administration that he believed the present social security law is entirely workable.

Warns of Japan.

Dr. Elizabeth Boody Schumpeter, of Harvard, warned the Far Eastern section of the institute that there is danger of underestimating the strength of Japan.

"Japanese exports from January through April of this year were larger than for the corresponding months in 1936, which was the second highest year on record for Japanese trade . . .

"It is obvious that conclusions as to Japan's inability to pay for additional supplies of war materials must be modified."

N. Y. Nazi Chiefs Convicted Under Civil Rights Law

Riverhead, N. Y., July 12 (AP).—After deliberating less than two minutes, a Suffolk County jury today convicted all six defendants and the German-American Settlement League on charges of violating the State civil rights law.

Judge L. Barron Hill sentenced Ernest Mueller, of Brooklyn, president of the league, to serve one year in the county jail and fined him $500.

The other five fared likewise, but the jail sentences were suspended. Against the league itself, Judge Hill imposed the maximum fine of $10,000.

The New York civil rights law requires all secret oath societies, except religious and fraternal organizations, to file a list of members at Albany.

Pennies From Heaven? G.O.P. to Try Dollars

Omaha, Nebr., July 12 (AP).—Fifty $1 bills will float down from an airplane over the Douglas County courthouse tomorrow to settle an election bet between two prominent Republicans.

H. M. Baldrige, acting county G. O. P. chairman, will drop the bills, each inclosed in an envelope addressed to the Republican County Central Committee. He contends 40 out of 50 persons picking up the envelopes will turn them in "because they are with us in our drive to clean up the courthouse."

Auto-Railer Case Given to Counsel

The question of whether the Arlington & Fairfax Auto Railroad Co. will be permitted to run auto-railers into Washington yesterday had become a legal problem.

While Franklin K. Lane, president of the company, confidently predicted the way was cleared for their entry, members of the Public Utilities Commission declined to comment other than to say that the I. C. C. decision had been turned over to counsel for an analysis. Until the railroad company files a formal request for a routing with the Public Utilities Commission, the latter will take no action.
